Some three years since the first Ladles' Orange Lodge was started in Western Penn-sylvania. Since then a number have been established in Pittsburg, Allegheny and Homestead. In the East, at New York, Bos-Homestead, in the East, at New York, Bos-ton, Rochester, Philadelphia, and other cities, lodges have been in existence over 13 years. The order is composed of men and women who uphold the Protestant cause, but the ladies have supreme control over their lodges, and their ability to conduct the lodges, and their ability to conduct the business coming before them has convinced the men that they are not the only persons who have judgment and ability. The Grand Lodge meets in Rochester, New York State, this summer, and a number of delegates will attend from this section. The second annual picnic of the United Ladies' Loyal Orange Lodges will be held at Wildwood, Wednesday, August 12, and the most complete arrangements have been made.

COLUMBUS CLUB LOOKING FOR A SITE

A New York manufacturing company, with a capital of $12,000,000, has decided to estab-lish a large branch office and exhibition rooms in Pittsburg. As a preliminary step the promoters have leased from Black & Baird the McKee property at the corner of Wood and Diamond streets, occupied before the fire by J. R. Weldin & Co., at an annual rental of $7,000. The work of rebuilding will begin this week. The new structure will be only two stories high, but this will afford ample space for the new enterprise, which will at once come into actual competition with at least one big local corporation. The nature of the business cannot be disclosed for a few days, as those interested do not want to give their rivals the benefit of premature publication, but everything is The Swift Farm Picked Up. What is known as the Swift farm, adjoin ing Knoxville borough, consisting of 61 acres, changed ownership, through Peter Shields, during the week, at a figure very close to $60,000. There were four interests involved, one of which, a life interest, is still held. The purchaser is a well known contractor, who will probably plot the prop-erty and put it on the market. It is expected that this deal will give Knoxville a fresh Business Condition and Outlook. Locally and generally trade during the past week developed more good points than bad ones. While there was no material im-provement in the volume of transactions, there were few instances of declines. Ex-ports increased, bank clearings made a good showing for the season, railroad earnings were large and collections were easier, showing a good distribution of money. All in all, the candid inquirer cannot but admit that the business of the country is in a healthy condition for the worst part of midsun mer. This is really remarkable, considering all the ups and downs, scares, discouragements and surprises which the business world has had during the past six or eight months. Admitting the worst, the fact remains that the country is well off. On the other side of the water are short crops; on this side heavy crops. On the other side is a scary feeling over money matters; on this side are ease, confidence and quiet, with an abundance of money for all legitimate requirements. All the great and little industries are doing well. The railroad companies are furnishing themselves with additional equipments and motive power. These things are too plain to he ignored. What do they mean? Simply that the recuperative power of the people of this country cannot be suppressed. It is superior to disaster. country is well off. On the other side of the

The cause of this sharp and quick reaction A QUIET WEEK, BUT SOME IMPROVE-

The cause of this sharp and quick reaction was attributed to the Standard taking the premium off of all field oil, making certificates and oil equal. This, it is believed by some, will send buyers back to the exchanges, and thus permanently stimulate trade, This is the view many local traders take of the unexpected turn of affairs.

A few, however, fear there is a snake in the grass, and that the improvement is only temporary. A decline with premium off will put producers in a worse position than before.

If the improvement be maintained all branches of speculation will soon feel the impulse, business will revive and values will move up to a higher level. Conditions are favorable to this view, but in the proent bearish temper of the country investors are slow to see the strong points of the market, while they are keenly alive to every influence that has a tendency to block the way to a complete recovery. So far as can be seen the crisis in speculation has been be seen the crisis in speculation has been passed, and any change must of necessity be for the better.

DEVOID OF FEATURE.

THE STOCK MARKET WAS DULL AND DISPLAYED NO TEMPER.

London Was Again a Burer in the Field, but Local Bear Element Was Inactive-Industrials Were Strong and Sugar Rises a Trifle. New York, Aug. 8,-The stock market to-day was again quite dull and displayed no decided temper, though the general tendency was upward, and prices this evening are generally fractionally higher than last night. The trading as a rule was devoid of feature, but the attention of the bears was turned upon Richmond and West Point again, and that stock was made comp ratively active and weak, though its decline was measured by a small fraction. The leading active stocks were St. Paul, Union Pacific, Northern Pacific preferred, Atchi-son, Burlington, Richmond and West Point and Chicago Gas, and only in the last named was the extreme fluctuation for the day as bear element was again a buyer and the local bear element was rather inactive, except in the stock above mentioned. The opening was firm under the influence of the foreign buying, but the pressure upon Union Pacific and Richmond and West Point from local and Richmond and West Foint from local operators caused a slight depression in those and checked the upward tendency in the general list after Atchison had risen %0 and others smaller fractions. The industrials were specially strong, however, and Sugar rose 1% per cent to 79%. The bank statement showed a loss in the reserves of over $1,000.000, but had no appreciable influence $1,090,000, but had no appreciable influence on the speculation, being about what was expected, and the late trading was utterly featurcless. The market finally closed dull but firm at small fractional galas for the day, no material change taking place in quotations among the leading shares.

Railroad bonds were fairly active, and the dealings in all issues reached $349,000, but there was no decided tendency of prices, and the final changes are irregular, but for small amounts.

The Post says: The temper of the financial community is extremely builtish, as was plainly enough shown by their heavy orders of the past week in Boston specialties. In the same connection the movement of the Boston money market is interesting call loans being quoted there yesterday at 7 per cent, and so scarce as to occasion a virtual money pinch. This has a bearing of some importance on our own local prospects, and suggests that the call money market, as well as that for time loans, may have a considerable part to play in delaying an organized movement for higher prices.

Brokers Brace Up.

Brokers Brace Up. John M. Oakley & Co. received the follow-ing over their special wire: "The feeling of hopefulness which marked the close of yesterday's business was continued to-day, and the opening prices recorded a still further advance, with the exception of Richmond. This stock seems to be the object of attack, a long and exhaustive article appearing today in a paper of this city, which tended to show that while they had not earned divi-dends they had continued to pay them. Not-withstanding this bearish article the com-mon stocks of the Richmond recorded a de-cline of less than 1 per cent from yesterday's closing prices. able. 'The bank statement showed a decrease of "The bank statement showed a decrease of $1,000,000 in reserve, but this is largely accounted for by shipments of currency which we are advised have this week been sent to Washington and the Interior. It was to be expected that some currency would be required in the bank for use in the movement of crops, but we think that far more will be required this year than in former years, as the Western banks aiready have a proportion of cash on hand to meet much of this requirement. The fact is that this market has hed its own to-day and prices have been as requirement. The hack stint his market has head its own to-day and prices have been as well maintained as they have ever been. "saturday being a haif holiday, the mar-ket is usually a dull and halting one, and in the face of this and the decline in the re-serve, the quotations were well maintained. The bull element may not yet be thorough-ly organized to innavarate a campaign, but ly organized to inaugurate a campaign, but they will join forces later on and will be well supplied with inclination for a long and successful one."

Reports of Foreign Requirements Has a Bullish Effect on the Wheat Market-There Was No Excitement, but Business

Was Fairly Active. CHICAGO-Wheat was firm throughout most of the session to-day. There was no excitement, but good steady buying and few reactions. The news was bullish. The Bradstreet bullish report on the crops of Europe and its probable import requirements and on estimates by Beerbohm that Great Britain and the Continent would take 209,000,000 bushels of American wheat were strong bull factors. Early cables were a lit-tle mixed, but prices abroad appeared to be well sustained. The continued freedom of the export movement was one of the strong features. Bradstreet reported both coasts for the week for flour as equal to 4,800,600, as against 2,165,000 bushels for the same week last year. A story was also started that the reported prohibition of the breadstuffs importations from Russia had been officially confirmed, but this was subsequently denied

Still these various reports made shorts Still these various reports made shorts more or less apprehensive, and there was free covering. It was part of the gossip that Pardridge and George Smith bought in the tail end of their short line, and the smaller shorts did the same thing. Some h il aterms were reported in Dakota and also hot winds, which were damaging the unmatured wheat.

Under the influence of these reports the market started off firm, and December sold market started off firm, and December sold 90%96%c. It haited at that and gradually sagged off to 90%c. Then came reports that nearly 900,000 bushels of wheat and some nearly 900,000 bushels of wheat and some flour had been cleared from the Atlantic seaboard, causings rally to 90% o again, and the close was at $63.4c.

Corn was strong and higher. The firmness in wheat and provisions gave it its first strength, but later it was materially helped by the lows crop report, which indicated a reduction in the condition of the corn grop in that State during July of 5% points, malling from 95c on July 1 to 89% on Angust 1. This started shorts to covering and the price of September, which opened $60% ou p at 56% $637c, advanced to 57%. Later, on realizing sales it reacted to 57c, but shot up again at the close, going to 58%c, and closing firm at 58%c.

THE BOTTOM OF THE SEA.

Wonderful Things a Diver Among the Coral Reefs Got to Sec.

The living things of green and red and white and pink stood up as plants stand up in air, says a diver describing his experience with a coral reef. It seemed as though s sudden flood had overtaken me as I walked in a conservatory of rare growth. There were the polyps of the Astræ tribeso like the garden aster in form and delieacy of coloring; the star-like oculina; the lace-like branches of the towering madreporo. Brain stones, some of them 3 feet in diameter, were scattered in my path. I librium the drums of the ears are momenstumbled over one of them, and paused to tarily strained. The relief is to swallow notice how like the head of a giant it was frequently. in shape and in its brain-like furrows. Scattered here and there in the midst of the honey-combed craters of the reef, were shells and marine things of kinds that I had never seen before. I remember the labor I spent trying to pull up a beautiful coral growth that looked like a miniature tree. It was no easy task to detach it, and when with the aid of hammer and chisel I broke its hold upon the cliff, it seemed to shrink and die. Its beauty was gone, and I threw is that it it in disgust away. I could see every object opened. clearly for at least 50 feet in every direction. Small fish would stand and watch me as though wondering at the intrusion.

FAILINGS OF THE NATIONS

An Old Russian Legend to Account for National Shortcomings.

Among the many legends that obtain among the Russian peasantry the following is one of the oldest: They believe that | D. L. Down's HEALTH EXERCISER. when the devil was cast out of paradise he fell upon the earth, and that his body was broken in pieces, which were distributed smong the various countries. The peculiar characteristics of the people of each nation are supposed to have originated from this circumstance. Thus in Spain fell the. devil's head, which accounts for the pride and arrogance of that nation.

In Turkey his hands fell; therefore the Turks are covetous and rapacious. Italy received the heart of His Satanic Majesty, which is said to explain the amorous tem-perament of the Italians. It was Ger-of the devil's body, and it is for this reason that the Czar's domain has for centurie been called "Holy Russia."

STORIES OF OLD HICKORY.

General Jackson Always Appreciated the Services of a Good Soldier.

Washington Post.)

In a certain popular restaurant in this city there hangs a picture of Andrew Jackson—"Old Hickory"—in his old age, when he had become the sage of the Hermitage.
It is interesting because it differs somewhat from the accepted representations of him. from the accepted representations of him, and is evidently and undoubtedly authentic. Jackson has always been a popular hero because he was so human-a "human volcano" one writer calls him. When he became President old General Solomon Van Rens-selaer was postmaster at Albany, N. Y., under an original appointment from Presideat Monroe.

Van Rensselaer was one of the heroes of the War of 1812 on the Northern frontier. In politics, however, he sided with the Federalists, or as they had come to be known, the "National Republicans." He was a great friend and admirer of General William Henry Harrison, and always claimed that he was the real hero of the War of 1812, as perhaps he was on the Northern frontier. When Jackson became President an effort was made to have Van Rensselaer retired from the postoffice.

Two different delegations with the same object in view left Albany in the same month. They came to this city and told "Old Hickory" how Solomon Van Rensselaer would load his clay pipe, and then, sitting out on the public veranda of the only hotel in Albany, the capital of New York State, would puff tobacco smoke and denounce Jackson and all the works of his ad-ministration. When "Old Hickory" heard all this, he took from his mouth his own clay pipe, and said:

"Gentlemen, Solomon Van Rensselaer
was the first man in New York in 1812 to raise men to fight the enemy, and he led his own men. Now, by the eternal, he has gained the right to abuse me if he wants to, and he can do so as much as he d—d

Van Rensselaer held his office until finally removed by Van Buren. He was reinstated by President William Henry Harrison, though disappointed in not being called to though disappointed in not bein the Cabinet as Secretary of War. General Jackson on another occasion when complaint was made that Major George Croghan, whose defense of the fort at Lower Sandusky against a force of 1,000 British regulars and Indians was one of the most memorable exploits of the War of 1812

plied: "Major Croghan has earned the right to get drunk every day of his life if he wants to, and, by the eternal, the United States should pay for the whisky!"

and made the whole country ring with his fame, had fallen into dissipated habits and should be dismissed from the army, re-

SHE BOUGHT A HOUSE And Paid for It Out of Her Small Weekly Earnings.

New York Recorder.1 "I never should have thought of doing it," said a bright Western girl in the training school for nurses, "if I hadn't known how hard it was for mother to give up the old home to strangers. When father died we all agreed that it was best for my brother to have the homestead, but he sold it and invested the money in a sawmill. He meant to buy another house for mother, but he hasn't been fortunate.

"I told mother one time when I was at home that I would buy her a bouse. buy me a house? With what, pray?' It did seem unlikely, for $10 was all the money I had in the world. I sat down that afternoon and wrote to Pontiac for a place in the asylum there. I stayed in it six months, earning $16 a month. After that I had a private patient that paid better. When I had $100 saved I told mother to look for her house. She wrote back that she had found just the thing in _____, Mich. The house had six rooms and was precisely what we wanted. The town had water and electric lights and was quite a desirable place. The price of the house was $700, $100 dow

"I thought it over and sent the money to mother. I shall never forget how I felt when I realized that I had $600 to pay off and was only getting $25 a month. Fortune favored me, however, and Dr. C. sent me to a patient in Pittsburg where I had $10 a week for some time,

"I found it very wearing taking care of the insane so I decided to become a trained nurse. We have only $10 a month while we are learning, at least the first year, and with buying my uniforms and absolute necessaries I believe the last $50 I had to pay was the hardest of all. "How long did it take? Four years. No, it wasn't very hard work. I didn't suffer for anything. I had to wear my old clothes and to deny myself all luxuries. Now don't laugh, but the greatest hardship of all was not being able to see Bernhardt last spring. Then at Christmas time it was so hard not to remember people. Of course at the time it seemed a big load on my shoulders, but now that the last cent has been paid my few sacrifices seem very insignificant beside my great satisfaction in knowing that mother is happy again in a house all her own."
