The summer is beginning to wane. When the dog days are over and the theaters show a disposition to open their doors, the ire-quenters of the seashore and mountains think it is time to turn their faces toward home. They think that those faces are tanned enough, and that they are almost ready for the social whirl that lasts from Sovember to April almost without a break. But they do not consider-or, at least, some of them do not-that the pleasantest time of the whole summer vacation is comprised within the six weeks or so from this date. is soon as the sun begins to shine with added strength they want to get out of town, ad the consequence is that by the middle August they are tired of everything perining to country life, and long for the dingy city with a longing that can only be accounted for on the theory that "there is to place like home." So they come home is composed of young men and women and and try to force the winter galety into life, ignoring the fact that those who have put off their vacation to this sensible time are enjoying themselves at the senshore or in the mountains to a greater extent than was possible to their predecessors. And yet there is something to be said in favor of Pittsburg in Angust and Septem-her, too. Although the heart of the city is not the most desirable place in which to spend warm days and sultry evenings, there are non-units of sultary evenings, ad try to force the winter galety into life, is the only club of its kind in the city. To-day there are many sensible people who will not go away at all, save, perfups, for a fortnight, to take a dip in the briny, hastening back as soon as this dury is performed to rest under their own vine and signer. Pittsburgers are not to be found who will say that they have never hall such a good time away as they have in this same "smoky Pittsburg." They talk chout the hawn, and think with a serene sense of comfort of the many hours they have spent thus in neglige costume, with no be of great interest to the order at large. Some radical changes were made in the or-ganic law of the order; a more liberal repre-sentation was provided for; hereatter each local circle having 100 members will be en-titled to one representative to the Supreme Circle. A Timely Philanthropy,

That is a glorious idea of the Society for the Improvement of the Poor to send working women and girls away for a short time every summer. It should be remembered that people of this class are not likely to live healthful suburbs of the city, but rather in close streets and alleys. To them week or two in the country may mean the saving of their lives. The society asks for the the addresses of people in the country who are whing to take respectable girls or women to board with them at a reasonable women to board with them at a reasonable figure. There must be plenty such, and it will only be necessary for them to know that they can thus give life to some of the poor workers of the city to insure their coming forward with offers of succor. PITTSBURG DISPATCH, SUNDAY, AUGUST 16,

BIJOU THEATER. "The Limited Mail" WORLD'S MUSEUM. .Curiosities, etc The above are the theatrical attraction for this week.

Only two of the large number of novelties promised New York for the coming season have as yet been tried. These are "The High Roller" and "Jane." The former is a so-called spectacular farce comedy, and its failure has been of the most pronounced kind. A stupider conglomeration of non-sense, vulgarity and objectionable display of the human figure has probably not been seen in the metropolis for many a day. The papers were unanimous in their condemnation of it, and it is somewhat improbable that it will fill the dates, which include Pittsburg, booked for it. It seems to be the general impression among New York managers that, although there are more comic farce comedies getting ready to more comic farce comedies getting ready to start out on the road this senson, the death knell of that very frivolous and unsatis-factory form of entertainment has been sounded in the failure of this highly expensive example, "The High Roller." Something like 40 or 50 farce comedies are going to travel this year, and a liberal estimate in that of these 35 will wobble disconsolately homeward within three months. Although homeward within three months. Although Pittsburg has given a kindlier reception to farce comedy than most cities, it is not likely that many people here will really regret its disappearance. "Jane" is a comedy of some merit, it ap-pears, but not particularly startling in originality or interest. In fact, in London, from whence it came, its particular claim upon theater-goers scems to have been a certain French naughtiness about which the less said the better. The critics in New York praise "Jane" mildly, but overlook en-tirely or appear not to see the particular tirely or appear not to see the particular quality which won for it success in London. They are hustling things at Davis' Alvin Theater these days, and it seems probable that the opening will occur some time toward the end of September or the be-ginning of October. Mr. Davis still insists that he will open the house on September 21 with Pauline Hall's comic opera company, but the chances are that he will not be able but the chances are that he will not be able to do so, though it is within the bounds of possibility that extra labor may put the house in a condition to receive the public by that date. After what we have seen done with other new theaters that have been hurried in the last stages of their erection, there is no absolute certainty that Mr. Davis will not be able to open on the day named. A great deal of interest is manifested abroad in the Alvin Theater, and it is gen-erally expected by professionals that it will be as handsome a theater as money and a disposition to spend it can obtain. It is true also that Mr. Davis has been very lib-eral in his terms to managers of traveling organizations that will come to his house, and one of the consequences of this is that the line of attractions which the new theater will have will be a fine one.

One of the first notable attractions of the coming season will be Mr. Joseph Haworth popular fancy. Such a drama is Elmer E. Vance's realistic railroad comedy drama, Vance's realistic railroad comedy drama, "The Limited Mail," which has for the past season met with phenomenal successelss-where. Unlike many other plays, "The Limited Mail" was written and produced by a thoroughly practical man, who knew ex-actly what he wanted and what he was writ-ing about, and his lifelong experience as night felegraph operator and train dis-patcher in the employ of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad depot at Columbus, O., has shown itself in every line and in every ac-tion of the play. The engagement at the Bijon, commencing to-morrow night, will be the dist consecutive week of this company, they having just returned from the Pacific coast, where their Eastern success has every where been duplicated. A four week's en-gagement at the Bush Street Theater, San Francisco, aggregating over $23,000, was the most profitable summer en-gagement ever played at that house. The following is taken from the Portland Oregonian of July 23: "Many of the sceness are startlingly realistic. The tele-graph scene in the third act, where the "Am-bitous Kid" taps the wires, was of hrilling interest. The great engine, puffing live sparks as it crashed over the warmang tor-pedo, the clang of the bell, the hiss of steam, the puff and glare and rusa and clatter fol-lowing the dash of a full-sized lightning ex-pross train, were given with a realism that dumfounded the audience. The sawnill scene, in which the heroine comes within a hair's breadth of being cut in two by a wicked-looking "buzz saw," is intensely ex-citing. In the last act a handcar, on which the two villains were trying to escape, jumps the track, tips over and throws the willing inter the fact the form the part in the fact the fourth the will the tast act a handcar, on which the two villains were trying to escape, jumps the track, tips over and throws the willing inter the fact the fourth of the wow the willing the of the fact the the wow the the will have the will the the stack the work the willing the track, tips over and throws the "The Limited Mail," which has for the past the two villains were trying to escape, jumps the track, tips over and throws the villains into the footlights, as though they were fired from a Krupp gun. QUESTION season of activity, offers a pretty big bill of attractions for the coming week. The lead-ing wonders will be Minerva and Charles P. Blatt, two immensely strong athletes. Of Biatt, two immensely strong athletes. Of Minerva it is said that she has lifted 35 pounds of iron, dead weight, from the floor, and the eminent sport, Richard K. Fox, of the Police Gazette, is willing to bet anyone $1,000 that she is the strongest woman in the world lifting weights. Moreover, she is a handsome and comely woman, in the perfect development of whose muscles much may be found to admire. Mr. Biatt is usually called the iron-muscled Hercules, and his sensational feats of strength justify the title. He has caught recently a cannon ball fired with six ounces of gunpowder from a large cannon, and will do it again. He also proposes to take a solid iron horse shoe weighing a couple of pounds and with a steady pull tear it apart, which is beyond a doubt a wonder-ful piece of muscular accomplish-ment. Fire thousand dollars will be paid to anyone who can rival Mr. Blatt in his feats of strength. There will be three gen-uine curiosities, and in the theater Daly's Specialty Company will give a strictly first-performance. Comedy sketches, dancing and songs will be included in this entertain-ment, of the exclience of which the presence of Mr. Tom McIntosh, the great colored comedian, is sufficient gnarantee. Minerva it is said that she has lifted 835 Furnish House

The show has never been seen here before, but comes highly praised by such competent authority as the Chicago Juer-Occum, which recently contained the following criticism: "Of Mr. Will E. Burton we can simply say that he is a phenomenon, and has in Tom Sawyer created a role, the equal of which, in all its varied phases, American theater goers have never seen equalid. The sup-port is remarkably strong."

Harry Williams' Academy.

The syndicate has invaded the variety stage and now we are to have Turner's English Girls' Burlesque and Variety Syn-English Girls' Burlesque and Varlety Syn-dicate monopolizing Harry Williams' stage for a whole week. But if the syndi-cate in this instance only corners laughter and squeezes out the blues it will be gently criticized. It is promised for these fair artists that they will give a full equivalent of fun, beauty and song for the price of admission, a week of hllari-ous hospitality is to be expected in this pop-ular home of vaudeville.
