ALMY RUN TO EARTH

The Brutal Murderer of Christie Warden at Last Captured, and in Her Father's Barn.

THERE BESIEGED BY OFFICERS

He Holds the Fort Amid a Storm of Bullets Until the Patience of the Crowd Is Worn Out.

ON THE PROMISES OF A FAIR TRIAL

He Finally Surrenders, Is Taken to Jail and Guarded Against the Mob.

HANOVER, N. H., Aug. 20.—Frank C. Almy, the murderer of Christie Warden, was found to-day in the large hay mow in the barns of the Warden homestead.

Notwithstanding that little has been said publicly, vigilant search has been constantly going on. Monday evening Mrs. Warden, while looking for chickens in the barnyard, discovered a small opening at the underpinning of the barn which she thought might lead to the chickens' hiding place. She removed a small board, and found on the inside an empty jelly tumbler, and further in 12 cans which had recently contained salmon, oysters, peaches and other substantial eatables. There were also empty wine and beer bottles.

F. W. Davidson and N. A. Frost, who had been told of Mrs. Warden's discovery, made a further search yesterday, and found more cans and a club. The cans and bottles were identified as having been stolen, with their contents, from the cellars of families in the village.

ALMY SEEN IN A GARDEN.

Last night Prof. Witcher and Sheriff Brown watched the premises, and at 2 o'clock this morning they saw Almy walking about the garden. He was barefooted, ragged, pale and thin. He filled a bag with apples from the trees, eating ravenously at the same time. He then went back to the barn and walked around to the other side of it. The watchers returned to the village and aroused about 40 men, who soon surrounded the barn and a search began.

Charles E. Stewart, a student at the State College, was the first to locate Almy. He was prodding the hay with a shovel handle, when he struck the body of the concealed man. Instantly Almy fired through the hay. The bullet missed Stewart. Almy fired again and again, making his way up through the hay at the same time.

He fired at least 15 shots, and the barn was quickly deserted. One of the bullets struck and slightly wounded Azro Turner, of Norwich, Vt., a student here. The smoke from Almy's revolvers created the impression that the barn was afire and added to the excitement. A council of the besiegers was held and resulted in the appointing of the following as a committee of procedure: Sheriffs Stevens, of Lancaster, and Clark, of Lebanon; General C. O. Kurlbut, of Lebanon, and ex-Sheriff N. C. Bridgman.

BESIEGED IN THE BARN.

While many favored burning the barn to drive Almy out, the majority favored entering the barn, and volunteers for this purpose were called for. Twenty-two men immediately responded. As the party went into the barn Almy's voice was heard. He asked that John Fuller be sent to him, as he wished to talk to him.

Fuller and ex-Sheriff Bridgman went into the loft. Almy refused to surrender, but called for Mr. Mitchell, the prosecuting attorney, who then went into the barn.

Solicitor Mitchell says as follows: "I went up into the barn in accordance with the request of Almy. He sat on the hay and said his leg was broken. He had a large revolver in each hand and flourished them, pointing them sometimes at me and sometimes at his own head. He asked me if I would guarantee him a fair trial. I assured him that I would most certainly do so. He wished to know how much of his past history I had found out. I told him we would not discuss that now. Pointing the revolver at his own head, he asked me if I thought he had better shoot himself. The result of the conference was that he refused to come out."

A. A. Smith, a medical student then had a conference with Almy. He says Almy told him he did not mean to kill Christie. He said he fired the first shot accidentally, which threw him into a frenzy. Then he shot her again. He then said to Smith, as he pointed his pistol at him, "You get right down now; I will see you later."

THE MOB SPIRIT UNLOOSED.

At 1 o'clock the decision was reached by the Citizens' Committee to catch Almy unawares and shoot him, and thus put an end to what was becoming a grim farce. When this conclusion was made known it was greeted with yells of delight by the people, who, though strongly inclined to let the law take its course, had lost patience. The officers then renewed their attack upon the barn with Winchester rifles. Almy retaliated with shot after shot from his revolver.

At 1:30 o'clock Almy offered to surrender. The officers re-entered the barn. Ex-Sheriff Bridgman returned, mounted a ladder leaning against the house, and said: "Fellow-citizens, Almy has been found. Now I call upon you, in the name of law and good order, to restrain your anger and let the law take its course with this foul murderer. I say this at the request of the county officials, men whom we chose by our votes to act for us. We all have confidence in them. We have as good courts as there are on the face of the earth."

Then, turning to the County Solicitor, he said: "Solicitor Mitchell, I think I can assure you that these 1,500 people, most of whom I know personally, will consent to let the law take its course."

These remarks were greeted with cries of, "Yes, yes; let the law take its course."

Mr. Bridgman further said: "Almy is at this moment concealed under 20 feet of hay. He says: 'If you don't give me protection, I will sell my life as dearly as possible and then kill myself, but if you will guarantee me protection through John M. Fuller, I will give up my arms and come out.'"

QUIETLY TAKEN TO JAIL.

The law-abiding spirit of the people was put to a severe test, but the feeling soon became strong that Almy should die decently, after a verdict of guilty had been brought in from a regularly constituted jury. Mr. Bridgman, still perched on the ladder, then said:

"Your assurance that Almy shall be dealt with according to law is satisfactory. I promise you that you shall all have an opportunity to see him. Form in lines on each side of the road, and he shall pass along between the lines."

The crowd then formed in line, and Almy, guarded by a posse, was brought out, escorted between the rows of excited spectators and taken to jail. Here half a dozen officers, with drawn revolvers, stood at the foot of the stairs holding back the excited crowd.

THE STORY OF THE CRIME.

The following is a brief story of Almy's crime: Frank Almy was employed as a farm hand by Andrew Warden, in whose barn he was discovered this morning. He was handsome, and was more refined than is usually the case with a man in his position. While attending to his duties on the farm Almy made love to Christie Warden, the 24-year-old daughter of his employer. She was well educated and popular in social circles in Hanover. Almy's attentions were distasteful to her and she avoided him. He went away for a time, but returned and renewed his attentions to the young woman. Soon Miss Warden had a quarrel with Almy, who threatened her, and for this he was discharged by her father. He was afterward seen prowling about the Warden farm.

On the night of July 16 Christie, with her mother and sister Fannie, were on their way home from a meeting about 9:30 o'clock, when Almy jumped from behind a clump of bushes. He seized Christie by the arm and said, "I want you." She resisted, and when the mother and sister came to her aid he drew a revolver and fired several shots at them. They ran away to obtain help, but when they returned with several men Christie was found dead in the bushes with two bullets in her back.

Since then Almy has been hunted by Sheriff's posses, constables and detectives in Canada and New England. All New England was aroused, and every effort was made to capture him, but without result until to-day.

MARTINIQUE DEVASTATED

BY ONE OF THE MOST DESTRUCTIVE CYCLONES IN HISTORY.

At Least 20 Vessels Wrecked and the Loss of Life May Exceed 100—The Island Subject to Such Storms—Meager Reports From Various Points.

PARIS, Aug. 20.—The disaster which has befallen Martinique, a French island in the West Indies, is the worst since 1817, and equal to the great cyclone which swept over the island of Antigua in 1871. So far as can be learned there have been nearly, if not quite, 60 deaths as a result of the hurricane's visitation. At Forte de France alone there have been 12 lives lost. At St. Pierre five persons are known to have been killed, but it is feared that this number does not represent the entire loss of life in the capital.

The reports from the various sections received at St. Pierre show that the extent of the hurricane's devastation has not been much exaggerated. Destruction of property and loss of life is reported from all parts of the coast. The latest report s received at St. Pierre from Lamentin show that the hurricane counts ten victims in that place alone, in addition to a large number of injured. At Francois there have been 16 people killed and a large number injured, and at Riviere Pilote there have been two or more deaths, and so on from all parts of the island comes the tale of woe and desolation. La Trinite sends in the list of its dead at ten and a number of more or less severely injured.

The damage done to shipping and property was stupendous. Over 20 vessels are now known to be lost. The numerous sugar, coffee, cotton and cocoa plantations which have felt the force of the tornado seem to have been utterly destroyed.

Martinique lies in such a position that it is liable to receive the full force of the dreadful gales that prevail in these latitudes during the hurricane season. Masters of vessels at Matinique take extraordinary precautions to secure the safety of their vessels while lying at anchor or moorings at ports, and as a rule steamers, during the hurricane season, lie with steam up, ready to proceed to sea at the first indications of a hurricane.

FARMERS IN ABUNDANCE.

MANY THOUSANDS OF THEM AT THE MT. GRETNA ENCAMPMENT.

Speeches by General Hastings, Congressman Brosius and Others—Jerry Simpson Denies the Sockless Story and Talks Third Party.

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE DISPATCH.]

MT. GRETNA, Aug. 20.—Lebanon, Lancaster, Dauphin and Berks counties were represented at the farmers' encampment today by between 25,000 and 30,000 of the inhabitants. State Lecturer Ailman delivered the first address, which was replete with information of interest to the farmers. In the afternoon a speech was made by Congressman Brosius, of Lancaster, who planted himself firmly in favor of a sound currency. He urged on the farmer the importance of taking an active part in politics, in the interest of better government.

General Hastings followed in an address full of war reminiscences and practical suggestions interspersed with much humor. The General started out by a complimentary reference to United States Senator Peffer and created much amusement by alluding to the "world renowned sockless JerrySimpson," both of whom were on the platform. Professor Atherton spoke on the subject of practical education, to enable a proper discharge of the duties of life. A study of the currency question was one of the things recommended.

There was a desire to see Congressman-elect Simpson, and he was introduced to the audience. As he is to be one of the speakers to-morrow, he confined his remarks to an amusing reference to the campaign story that he did not wear any socks. This story was certainly not true as applied to the present, as he had certainly not only stepped into the socks of his competitor in the Congressional race, which resulted in his election, but into his shoes. In an interview to-day Mr. Simpson said the Third party movement was spreading with marvelous rapidity. In the South it seemed to be more formidable than in the North. Kansas, he was sure, would be carried by the Third party for President. The Republicans were in mortal dread of the loss of that once stanch Republican State.

THE STREAK IS NINE MILES LONG.

The Bears are Predicting Fifty Cent Oil Before September.

BUTLER OPERATORS FEELING BLUE

The bears in the oil market, that is the few of them who are left, were eating honey last night. Every time they swallowed a mouthful of the busy bee's product they predicted 50-cent oil. The bulls were glum. They were in no mood to dispute the guttural statements of their arch enemies. The reports from the field have not been so far over on the bears' side of the fence for many a day. Producers were sulky, excepting of course those who owned the big wells. Those who were not in it could look into the near and adjacent future and in their mind's eye see the market go out of sight.

Eleven Big Oil Wells.

From the northeast end of the McCurdy field to McDonald there are 11 wells which are making from 25 to 100 barrels an hour. They form a string nine miles long, and it has only yet commenced to be developed. These 11 wells are: Fisher Oil Company, on the McMichael; Forest Oil Company, on the Wright; Russell, Guffey & Gailey, on the Albert Wettengel; Guffey, Jennings, Murphy & Co., on the Matthews; Guffey, Murphy & Co. on the Baldwin; Guckert, Steel & Egbert on the Mevey; Gartland & Hays on the Miller, two wells; Royal Gas Company on the Mary Robb; La Combe & Vallillee on the Short lot, and the Wheeling Gas Company on the Cook lot. Besides this there are a dozen small ones in the McDonald district which are making from 40 to 150 barrels a day.

The Southwest McCurdy Well.

The bearish talk of last night was created by the Fisher Oil Company's well on the McMichael farm. It is located 4,000 feet northeast of the Forest Oil Company's big well on the Wright farm in the extreme southwestern part of the McCurdy field. It had been placed in the no good category by every operator who was enough interested to even talk about it. They all said it was too far to the east, and even one of the owners wanted to sell his quarter interest in it for cost as late as yesterday morning. He found no takers, and in the afternoon his well was drilled into the sand and in the first two hours put five feet of oil or 150 barrels into a 250-barrel tank. Late last evening it was reported as down to 60 barrels an hour. The well is practically a wildcat and opens up and makes valuable a larger block of territory. The only well near it is Fitzgibbons & Co., on the Mertz. The latter is southwest of the McMichael and about 700 feet east of a line from the McMichael to the Wright. It is down about 1,400 feet, and Hoffman & Co., on the Moore, next to the Wright farm, are down about 1,500 feet, and have a rig up for No. 2 on the same farm.

The Wettengel Well.

NOBLESTOWN—Another report, which filled the bears with fiendish glee, was from the well of Russell, Guffey & Gailey, on the Albert Wettengel farm. It reached the fifth sand yesterday, and in the first 30 minutes put 15 barrels of oil in the tank. This would be at the rate of 30 barrels an hour, and, as it had only broken the shell and was liable to increase if allowed to flow, it was shut in until more tankage could be secured and pipe line connections made with it. This well was dry in the Gordon sand. It is located about 2,000 feet northeast of Guffey, Jennings, Murphy & Co.'s big well on the Matthews farm. The well on the Baldwin farm of Guffey, Murphy & Co., located south of west from the Matthews, was putting out from 25 to 30 barrels an hour yesterday.

Miller 2 a Gusher.

MCDONALD—There was only one well reached the fifth sand in this vicinity yesterday, but it was a gusher. It is Gartland & Hays No. 2 on the Miller farm, and was making 120 barrels an hour last night. It is located about 1,000 feet north of their No. 1, on the same farm, which started off at the same rate, and is about 700 feet west of Guckert, Steel & Egbert's 90 barrel an hour well, on the Mevey farm. It is on a line between the latter and the Mary Robb well. Gartland & Hays are spudding at their No. 3, on the Miller, and are building the rig for No. 4. Shaffer & Co.'s well, on the Fanny Johnson property, near the railroad station, is making over 100 barrels a day from the Gordon sand. Andy Gartland is down 1,450 feet on DeRoy property, which joins the Johnson on the southwest. The Wheeling Gas Company's well, on the Cook lot, is running nearly 100 barrels an hour. W. P. Rend is ready to drill his own property a quarter of a mile east of McDonald, near the railroad track. The Royal Gas Company has started to drill Nos. 2 and 3 on the Mary Robb farm. The same company is also drilling Nos. 5, 6 and 7 on the Sauters farm, and are building the rigs for Nos. 4 and 5 on the McDonald Bros. property. Their Ed. McDonald No. 4 will get the Gordon to-day. Sauters, Jennings & Co., on the Sauters property, 200 feet northeast of the railroad station, are down 1,950 feet. The Royal Gas Company's No. 4 on the Sauters is down 1,400 feet. Miller, Moyer & Co. are building a rig on the Maggie McDonald property, just across the railroad from the Wheeling Gas Company's Cook lot well. Pew & Emerson are 1,100 feet deep on the Davidson lot, 200 feet west of the old Sauters No. 3. George S. Martin & Co. are 500 feet deep on the Heiser lot, 100 feet south of No. 3 Sauters. The same parties are down 400 feet on the Druart property. The U. P. Church well of Boscher & Co. did not get the fifth sand yesterday as expected. They are still short of water, and facetious people say that water at McDonald is worth more than oil.

Little Better Than Dry.

CORAOPOLIS—The Forest Oil Company drilled its No. 5, on the Getty farm, into the sand to-day. It will not make more than a five-barrel well.

The Only Well Drilling.

CHARTIERS—The Fisher Oil Company's well on the Duff farm, the only one now drilling in the whole Chartiers field, is expected to reach the sand to-day.

From Butler County.

BUTLER—The producers in this pioneer district are as blue as heaven's own sky. There is nothing to cheer them up and hope has died in every breast. The report for the month of August will show an increase in production over that of July, all of which will be furnished by the Slagle, Lenz & Co.'s well, on the Newton Garvin farm, three miles west of Callery. It is still doing 25 barrels an hour. The Forest Oil Company's well on the Wallace farm back of Mars and located 350 feet north of Boland & Cummings' well on the Kennedy is 15 feet in the sand and showing light. Steelsmith & Brown's No. 3 on the Dr. Crawford is in the 100-foot foot and showing for a light producer.

MUDDY CREEK—Neely & Co.'s No. 3 on the Shaner is finished and dry. Rowley & Co.'s No. 1 on the Adam Ripper is through the sand and shot, and will be about a 15-barrel pumper.

GOULD—Curtis & Christy have a rig up on the William McKibben farm. William Yeagle has a rig on the I. McCall. The Farmers' Oil Company has a rig up on the J. W. Monks. The Chartiers Oil Company has made two more locations on the McKibben farm. Their No. 1 is holding up to 60 barrels a day. To this well is due the credit of the new operations under way in this vicinity. W. E. Griffith's wildcat well on the Bowers farm is through the 100-foot and the 30-foot and dry in both sands. It will be drilled to the fourth sand. He is down 200 feet in his test well on the Nelson farm adjoining the Parks. The production of this field for the last month was something over 31,000 barrels, an increase of 200 barrels over the preceding month. Steelsmith & Brown are in the salt sand on the Lloyd farm near the producing on the Nancy Adams farm. The Western & Atlantic Pipe Line Company is building a station in the Gould field. The "Spiritualist" well of the Enterprise Oil Company on the little Georgie Hays reserve has been plugged with a sand pump. This hole is only 12 feet from the hole where they drilled before and plugged on top of the sand.

It May Be a Duster.

WILDWOOD—The Roth and the Forest Oil Company's No. 13 Harbush is 15 feet in the sand and not showing any oil.
