IMPORTANT CATHOLIC CONGRESS

PRESS.) BERLIN, Sept. 5.-The conferences b tween Chaucellor Von Caprivi and Count Kalnoky, the Austrian Prime Minister, at the Maires Schloss, near Schwartzenau, have ended in their advising the English Government not to be in a hurry to take any diplomatic action in connection with the Dardanelles incident. The tone of the official press here indicates distinctly that the Government is averse to joining England in any hasty remonstrance against the Porte's agreement with Russia. The North German Gazette holds that the Porte's assent to the claims of Russia is less important as a breach of treaties than serious as disclosing the new line or policy adopted by Turkey toward

The Viannese Presse, semi-official, anticipates sharp antagonism between British and Russian influences at Constantinople, and recommends that England become more amenable so far as Egyyt is concerned. In the opinion of the Presse the new position of affairs does not involve any danger to the peace of Europe. The other great powers, holds, have no grounds for taking an active share in England's impending diplomatic measure. The currents of intrigue around the Sultan, which are now in a swollen condition, may be allowed to run their coprse, as the vital interests of Turkey will finally bring everything back to the

The Imperial Chancellors' recommen-Lord Salisbury is explained by official advices from Constantinople to the effect that the life of the new Turkish Cabinet will be brief. The highest Turkish circles are indignant over the composition of the new Ministry, and especially at the dismissal of Ghazi Osman, Minister of War and the Marshal of the Palace. Strong protests have been sent to the Sultan, whose own position is menaced by the mal-belief that everything will return to the proper track points to the expectation of an early collapse of the pro-Russian Ministry A successful conspiracy for the deposition of the Sultan is among the contingencies that are discussed covertly in diplomatic circles. Premier Kalnoky and Chancellor Von Caprivi are too deeply engrossed in their conferences and will not witness the coming army maneuvers.

It is the expressed convictions in official circles here that Lord Salisbury, relying upon the general ultimate support of the Dreibund Ministers, will accept the advice proffered him and await the outcome of IMPORTANCE OF THE CATHOLIC CONGRESS.

Sunday, and held its closing session to-day, assumed unexpected importance. Over a thousand delegates were in attendance. The leaders of the Centrist party present in-cluded Herr Lowenstein, Count Ballestrem, Baron Herrmann, Prince Salmsalm and Baron Kettler. A resolution was adopted declaring that the time had come to congress for the consideration of the question of the restoration of temporal power to the Pope and a committee was appointed to ar-range for the holding of such a congress. This committee will probably select the 15th of May next, the one hundredth anniversary of the birth of Pope Pius IX, for the opening of the Congress. In discussing the question of neutral ground for a place for the meeting of the proposed Congress Switzerland was most in favor. Delegates will be summoned from every Catholic community in the world. The question of the restoration of temporal power to the Pope, for the consideration of which, as before stated, the congress is to be convoked, will as an Italian question, but as one of universal concern.

CHEERING POPE AND EMPEROR. The Congress just closed affirmed the de-termination of German Catholics to remain resolute supporters of the Dreibund, and decided to continue the policy of Dr. Wind-thorst in working for the recall of the Jesuits and for religious instruction in the primary schools. After considerable discussion it was voted to favor State regulation of labor questions. The concluding session of

The removal of the proposition against the importation of American pork into Germany has elicited few press comments. Several Progressist and Socialist papers refer to the satisfactory measure as a relief to the poor classes. William Walter Phelps, the United States Minister, his success has evoked many encomiums. Mr. Phelps will urn at Homburg, where he outcome of his fight on the pork question.

[BY CABLE TO THE DISPATCH.] LONDON, Sept. 5.-General Benjamir Butterworth, Major Moses P. Handy and Messrs. Peck and Bullock, comprising the World's Fair Promotion Commission in Europe, sailed to-day on the Augusta Victoria, after a most successful tour of Europe. Major Handy has only one sad recollection of the trip. The commission traveled 3,000 miles in Russia alone, and at each town where they remained over hight their passports were taken up at their hotels when they arrived and returned to them upon

At Moscow there was a long delay when the hour for departure came. As the pass-ports of the commission were not forthcoming, strenuous efforts were made by Butter-worth and Handy to ascertain the cause of the detention of these documents, and it finally transpired that some wise person had discovered that Major Handy's first name was a Hebrew one and had communi-cated this information to the police. After several hours' delay the Major was enabled to demonstrate that he was a Christian. The passports were returned and the com-missioner went on his way rejoicing.

(BY CABLE TO THE DISPATCH.) LONDON, Sept. 5,-Objection is taken by some of the leading shipowners to the new order issued by Mr. Chaplin for the regulation of the transatlantic cattle trade, in reference to the clause which requires that the stanchions of each pen shall be securely fastened to the deck by means of iron sock-

COSHOCTON, Sept. 5. - [Special.] monster Republican meeting was held in this city to-day. Fully 5,000 people were here to greet Major McKinley. The weather was threatening, but it did not seem to dampen the ardor of the Republicans of old Coshocton. The Major, accompanied by Captain W.

arrived early this morning. The meeting was held at the handsome residence of Mr. Houston Hoy, as the County Commissioners do not allow public meetings to be held in hour and a half, and ably handled the silver and tariff questions. He also devoted part of his speech to some questions pro-pounded to him by the Democratic Standard. He answered the questions ably and in such a way that they caused considerable amusement. While he was speaking, a heavy shower came up, but the crowd stood through the rain, and the Major did not stop speaking.

MYSTERY OF A WOOD.

The Skeleton of a Supposed Murdered Ma Found by Some Hunters.

POTTSVILLE, Sept. 5.—[Special.]—A murder mystery has developed near Lofty station, on the Catawissa Railroad, from the finding of a man's skeleton in the woods, with two plainly discernible bullet holes in the back of the skull. The discovery was made on Tuesday by two hunters, who were beating the woods surrounding Lofty in search of game. The body had evidently been exposed there for about a year, as the clothing was almost entirely decayed, and nothing remained but the skeleton and the dead man's shoes, a penknife and box of matches in what was once his trousers pocket.

From indications as to the quality o clothing and shoes, it is surmised that the man was young, and not an Italian or a Hungarian. Coroner Guldin, of Ashland, is investigating the case. So many persons have been missing in this locality at various times within the past two years that the occasional discovery of a skeleton in the woods has ceased to be surprising.

NAVY DEPARTMENT CANNOT USE IT

The Committee Finds a Good Many Objections to the Scheme.

USELESS FOR PRACTICAL PURPOSES.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 5 .- Pension Comissioner Raum has failed in his endeavors to have his refrigerator scheme adopted by the Navy Department for the new cruisers A committee was appointed to investigate the claims made for the "Refrigerine." consisted of Captain Montgomery Sieard, Medical Inspector H. M. Wells, Chief Engineer David Smith and Paymaster J. Q. The report states that the board met at the office of the company in this city, where the appliances were set up for exhibition. Raum claimed that the wonderful refrigerine salt, when mixed with 11/4 times its weight of water, would form the refrigerating brine which would do the work, and could be rewhich would do the work, and could be re-covered by evaporation over and over again without material loss of quantity or efficacy. The report minutely describes the ap-pliances, and says that after Raum's form-ula had been worked a thin layer of ice was formed on the surface of the molds, and formed on the surface of the molds, and that the formation soon ceased. "Ten pounds more of the salt were asked for," says the report, "and after a long delay obtained." This gave an opportunity to analyze the stuff, the result being stated in the following language:

"An analysis of the "refrigerine salt" shows that it is composed of nitrate of ammonia, 97.67; water, 1.33; insoluble matter (oxide of iron, etc.), 73; sulphate of magnesium and sodium, 27; chloride of ammonia, a trace; total, 100 per cent. The nitrate of ammonia is the active agent, and the reof ammonia is the active agent, and the re-maining constituents have little or no refrigerating effect."

SEVERAL EXPERIMENTS WERE MADE All sorts of experiments with the salt were tried. The tests were conducted with great care and exactness. In the first series of tests the lowest temperature of the brine was found to be 31.2°, and in the second series 34.1°; the lowest mean temperature 41° and 43.75°, respectively. The difference between mean and lowest temperature in the first instance is 9.8°, and in the second 9.650

"The results," continues the report, "show that the water added to the brine in the first test was lowered in temperature 20.6°. In the second 20°, the mean being 20.30°, or equivalent to 50.8 thermal units per pound of the salt. This refrigerating effect could not be realized in practice, as the water dissolves some of the surplus salt in the brine and lowers the temperature in the first test 5.02° and in the second 3.5°, or mean of 20.86 per cent, as computed from the specific heats of the constituents.

"Again, the loss due to transmission of heat through plates or pipes was avoided by bringing the particles in intimate contact by mixing, and the time of absorption of heat from external causes was reduced to a minimum. Had no dissolution of the surplus salt taken place and no loss of refrigerating effect from transmission or absorption of heat occurred, the mixture of five pounds of water at the temperature given with the original brine would have raised the temperature of the final mixture in the first test to 670.06, and in the second to 700.97, as computed from the specific heats of the con-

Judge Cronse informed him that he did not think it would be advisable to make such an experiment. While of course the Government could withdraw at any time, it would not be fair to property holders to impress them with the conviction that they were to be dislodged and unsettle their pusiness without a positive assurance that the land would become the property of the Government. Judge Cronse thinks that if Mr. Patterson is so sure of his prices he should have no hesitation in furnishing the subject amounts to nothing.

After the decision was given, and only a few weeks ago, the United States Company applied to Judge Wallace for a stay of all proceedings, while an appeal was taken to the new Circuit Court of Appeals, and Judge Wallace granted that stay.
