trimmed with handsome pendants and passementerie formed of colored beads. Almost the entire back of the bbdice is covered with beads. There is a trimming of sable down the front of the coat and a deep border of the same fur round the hem. The interior is of pink silk. I thought it the most gorgeous garment I had ever seen. A cloak for the same young lady is of sable, lined with silk of a darker shade.

It is fashioned on the same lines as the bree-quarter length circular cloak, and has high shoulders and a sort of Elizabethan collar, which may be adjusted to two or three different positions. I was told that its price ran away into three figures. In the matter of extravagant dressing the English heiress is not in it with the rich American girl.

FOR A DARK COMPLEXION.

Chere is no fur that is so becoming to a dark complexion as sable. It is a pity that its price puts it beyond the reach of all but the very wealthy. Mink will be a fashion-able fur this senson. It is about the best substitute for sable one can get. Sealskin suits a fair complexion beautifully. I was shown some Tudor areas in confiderin One shown some Tudor capes in sealskin. One had a yoke and collar of astrachan; another was trimmed about the shoulders and down the front with sable. It was also ornam ed with a sable collar. The Newmarket coat is expected to supersede the long, double-fronted circular cloak. Short, furlined closks are made of plain cloth in pretty shades of brown, red terra-cotta, grey-blue and tan, and are mostly trimmed ith opossum, black fox, or lynx.

Sealskin jackets are very trim as regards shapes. Now is the right moment to invest . Every kind of fur that is popular rets dearer as the season advances. The arettiest jackets are tight-fitting at the back and semi-loose in front. A new model is made in the Newmarket shape. It is edged with astrakhan and has epaulettes of the same fur. A splendid cloak for an elderly lady-one of fashion's grand dames-is lined throughout with ermine. It is quite a regal looking garment. Boas have have under-gone but little change. The afternoon reception gown shown is of Persian like satin draped with black mous-seline de soie. SOME OF THE NOTEWORTHY EXHIBITS

That classical music is appreciated by the people of this part of the country was proved at the Exposition yesterday. The works of the great masters was given by Colonel Cappa and his band, and every number was listened to with that rapt attention that is the most flattering applause. The crowd last night was the gayest the great show has yet seen. Never yet has there been such a turnout of the fashionable people of the two cities. The main hall was a perfect sea of fall fashions. The classical music programme, of course, was one of the great attractions, yet the art gallery also came in for a big share of admiration. This is to be "People's day." The musical programme will be mixed, so as to suit all tastes, although popular music will prevail. Saturday is the day on which everybody feels like leaving work early and devoting a few hours to amusement. So the Exposition is always crowded on that day, and the management have done a wise thing in calling it "People's day" and making the entertainment of a kind that will please the masses. There will be a number of excursions in to-day, and it is expected that the halls of the Exposition will contain a larger number of visitors than on any previous occasion. People's day is worthy of its name, and the management is getting ready to look after a monster crowd.

An Interesting Suit Involving a Much-Prized Liquor License.

A bill in equity was filed yesterday Patrick J. Walsh against William F. Walsh and C. P. and Fred Mugele. Walsh alleged that he and W. F. Walsh obtained a liquor license for No. 1111 Carson street, under the firm name of P. J. & W. F. Walsh. The latter misappropriated the firm money and conspired with the other defendants, it is charged, to oust the plaintiff from the firm. In pursuance of this agree-ment W. F. Walsh conspired with the other defendants and confessed a judgment to them last June. The fixtures and stock were sold at Sheriff's sale. The defendants procured a duplicate license and under the firm name of P. J. & W. F. Walsh are car-rying on the business and, illegally, selling liquor. An injunction is asked for to restrain them.

GORGE '78 OPERA CLOAKS.

Opera cl.ass seem to get more gorgeous every season. One doesn't look for novelty in the shape so much as in the color combinations and trimmings. Jewel trimming has been called garish and treatrical, and garish and theatrical it certainly is; but, in spite of all that's been said and written against it, it is still the fashion. That it has survived the fluctuations of two or three seasons proves that the majority of women admire it. Bead triamings never will go out of style. They are cheaper and much more showy than silk embroideries. A new opera cloak for an elderly wearer is of old rose silk, trimmed about the neck with eathers, and bedizened all down the front old and silver iridescent beads and pink and yellow topazes.
