EFFORTS TO HAVE THE RUNNERS HERE.

A New Hop, Step and Jump Record Claimed-General Sporting News of the Day.

Our sluggers are home again after one of the most successful trips they have had for a very long time. Manager McGunnigle set out for the East with the wish that his team would win six games. They have won eight, lost five and tied one. That is quite a record against such teams as there | champion light weight of the Northwest, and boys. They deserve a good reception, and particularly at this stage do they need encouragement. To-day they will tackle the Clevelands and the two teams will play three games at Exposition Park. The series really ought to be the most exciting of the senson as it is a fight between the two teams for position. One of them may likely get fifth place, as the Brooklyns have an extremely hard row to hoe in the East for the balance of the season. Manager McGunnigle is very confident that his

WILL BEAT THE CLEVELANDS OUT, and the series which begins to-day will go a long way toward determining the result. That both teams will make every possible effort to win is certain, and this fact shows that the series will be one of the most interesting there has been here this year.

It is needless to say that Manager Me-Gunnigle is well satisfied with the results of the trip; but he claims that the fates were dead against them at Boston. He points out that they met one of those unlucky streaks that fall to the lot of every team now and again. He states that the team are probably be able to play to-day. Galvin will likely be the home pitcher, and as Jimmy is in form just now he may score a The trip East was also a financial There is no desire to make any changes on the team at present, although a new man or two may be tried before the senson ends. Arrangements will at once be made for exhibition games, when Maul and lerger will be given a thorough testing.

THE OTHER PELLOWS CONFIDENT. The Clevelands are also in the city, and are just as confident of finishing in fifth place as either the Brooklyns or the Pittsurgs. Manager Tebeau points out that his sen have been in the worst kind of luck. but that they will be able to put up a good game to-day. It is likely that "Farmer" oung will pitch, and that means the Cleve-ands are determined to win to-day if they

A Pointer to Fielders

The following good advice to outfielders is given by Henry Chadwick in Sporting Times: "A point of play occurred in the Chicago Brooklyn game last week which is worthy of note. Anson hit a hot line ball over sec and lase which yielded a clean carned single base, but it was a hit which no outfielder should attempt to try for a catch from. should attempt to try for a catch from.

Griffin, however, ran in for the impossible catch instead of making sure of fielding the ball for the one base carned, and the result was that the ball bounded through him and Anson got home before the ball could be recovered, and he was erroneously credited with a home run hit. It was simply a beautiful low liner for a single, and such balls are not within possible reach of a catch him case out of fifty. The point is for the outfielder to make sure of stopping the ball, leiting the slight chance for a showy enten go.

Disbanded for the Season. The Our Boys ball team have disbanded for the scason, and all challenges to them will be of no avail. They have had a very successful season and have demonstrated the fact that they are among the best amatour teams in Western Pounsylvania. Manager Leng, speaking of Saturday's game between his team and the Climax team, stated

"There are four or five of us who feel sure that a running meeting here would be a success. We may have the matter fully discussed this week."

FRESH TROUBLE IN CENTRAL AMERICA

ISPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE DISPATCH. 1 NEW YORK, Sept. 21 .- The Herald this morning has the following cable from Chile: The suicide of Balmaceda yesterday morning in his bedroom at the Argen-tine legation in Santiago is the one absorbing and exciting topic of conversation in every part of this city. There is a mingled feeling of savage of falling into the clutches of the Congres-sionalists. The infurated citizens would have delighted to rend him limb from limb for the long list of cruelties for which they hold him responsible. It is impossible The work done has been so good that if the weather is fine to-day there ought to be quite a large crowd present to greet the large. The done has been so good that if the weather is fine to-day there ought to be quite a large crowd present to greet the large. The done has been so good that if the weather is fine to-day there ought to be eight round. The fight was for a purse of $100 a side and 75 per cent of the gate receipts to the winner.

The stormy life thus brought to an end began in Santiago 51 years ago. Jose Mannel Balmaceda was the dead usurper's full name. He came of an ancient family, rich, well known, and of high standing in Chilean affairs. It was the intention of his parents that he should become a priest, and to that end he was carefully educated at the Seminario Concilias, of Santiago. But the young man had other ideas for him-self. His youth is described as turbulent and full of action, and as soon as his acad-emic studies were completed he plunged into politics.

Balmaceda, the Dead Dictator,

A POPULAR YOUNG MAN. There was at that time a political society in Santiago called the Club de la Reforma, composed of hot-headed young men who wanted to change or overthrow the Constitution by which Chile had been governed since 1830. Balmaceda joined it. At school he had developed a natural talent for oratory, and being much the most eloquent member of the club he soon became its foremost leader. By the time he was 28 years old young Balmaceda was known throughout Chile as a coming man. He was elected a deputy to the Chilean Congress, and took a prominent part in all the debates. There is no denying his strong native force of character and excellent ability. He was the best debater in Congress and a natural leader of men. He served five terms as deputy with credit to himself and his city. His ambition was imagined the extent to which his ambition was destined to lead him.

When President Santa Maria took m Balmaceds in 1885 and made him the Na-tional Minister of Foreign Affairs he greatly strengthened his administration and gratified the nation. Balmaceda was very popular. The next year the popular Minister became his party's candidate for President and was elected by an overwhelming majority

A CHILEAN FEATURE. In Chile presidents are ineligible for reelection. As the last year of Balmaceda's term began a gradual change came over his demeanor. His old friends and counsellors he treated with a growing coolness. New men who had no name in public matters re ceived his favor. For his chief favorite he took an obscure broker named Sanfuertes, a man who had been his private business agent, but who was unknown to the people.

His old friends remonstrated with him in his choice and pointed out that his administration would inevitably be closed with a failure of public confidence. Balmaceda drove them away with angry denunciations and made Sanfuertes of still greater importance. He retired from participation in public affairs, except through Sanfuertes' agency. Those who wanted to see the President must do so through the favorite. Then 6.2 began the series of events which culmin-ated in the revolution and now in the death of Balmaceda. THE FIRST OUTBREAK.

In June the pretended revolution began In June the pretended revolution began among the lower classes in Valparaiso, Arica and other seaport towns, where miners and laborers went rioting about for no apparent purpose. Unluckily for Balmaceda his share in instigating these disturbances was revealed. The country overwhelmed him with ridicule and anger and the local authorities put down the uprising with permitting the interfer-ence of the President. A committee headed by the Archbishop of Chile called upon Balmaceda and demanded that the unpopular Cabinet be dismissed; that he should not attempt to influence the naming of candidates for the Presidency and that the laws and usages of the country should be carefully observed.

Balmaceda yielded to all these demands. He dismissed his ministers, including the hated favorite; he appointed a new cabinet of men in whom the public had confidence and ostensibly he withdrew from any participation in the coming election. He promised to dismiss the men he had appointed to offices in the provinces and the police. He would not persecute the men who had opposed him in his schemes, and he would observe the wishes of the people to the end of his administration. the end of his administration.

These promises being announced in Congress by the new head of the Ministry were averwhere with rejoicing. It received everywhere with rejoicing. It seemed that at last the end of all the trouble had been reached. On the contrary, it had just begun. For a few weeks the Government ran smoothly. Congress devoted itself to passing the leg-islation which had been held in abeyance during the time of excitement. Balmaceda held daily conferences with his Cabinet about measures to be adopted and the men to believe again in Balmaceda.

Suddenly the whole fabric of the newly restored confidence came down with a crash.

It was discovered that the favorites whose removal had been promised were in secret conference with the President. The Cabinet asked what this meant. Balmaceda said he had concluded not to make any removals. The Cabinet resigned. The President appointed a new one composed of the old objectionable material. Congress summoned the new ministers before it. They refused to go. When Congress appealed to the President he ordered the House of Congress the National Guard had been collected in the arsenals. The commanders were under his influence. The military posts were in his hands. All private arms had been or-dered to be delivered to the authorities. The people were without wespons and the soldiers were marching toward the capitol. The only hope the advocates of peace could see was in the fact that the funds of the government were almost exhausted with the close of the year, and it would be the close of the year, and it would be necessary to convene Congress to make further appropriations when they thought difficulties might still be arranged. Balmaceda cut this hope short by issuing a decree in which he assumed the power to collect and use the public moneys for SOME RATHER ODD FAMILY RELATIONS

MET ON THE SHIP. Prominent members of Congress humbled themselves before the President to the ex-tent of begging that the session be called. He peremptorily refused. Then the mem-bers determined that Congress should assemble without the President's permission. Being unable to meet in safety on land they took to a ship of the navy in the harbor of Valparaiso, where they undertook measures of epposition to the President.

The President in the meantime was organizing his army and preparing for war. He enlisted 25,000 laborers for the public works. He drew for his expenses on the national treasury and when the Treasurer refused to nonor his draft he put a man in office more empliant. He removed the Judges of the upreme Court and supplanted them with his tools who decided that he could use the public funds as he chose. He forced loans and ordered confications. He arrested the leaders of the opposition, thrust them into prison and ordered them to be shot.

THE CONGREGATIONALISTS' MEASURES. The members of Congress fled. All persons who were unwilling to give submission to the President followed them. With great difficulty they organized a military force and the war began in earnest.

For the next six months it was fought with varying success. The navy was on the side of the Congressional party, the national army was in the hands of Balmaceda. At first the efforts of one side was toward getting arms and soldiers for an army and of the other toward getting a navy. The country was in a state of anarchy. Business was suspended, and murders, assassinations and riots were of daily occurrence. The representatives of foreign nations offered their mediation to recover mediation. their mediation to restore peace. By a trick of Balmaceda the negotiations were broken off as it was to appear through the determined vindictiveness of the Congress-ional party. Battles and skirmishes on land and sea followed. Gradually the superior numbers of the Congressional party overcame the stratagems of the President.

GUATEMALA WANTS WAR.

SALVADOR EXPECTS TROUBLE AND IS PREPARING FOR IT.

General Barillas Is Massing Troops and War Materials on the Guatemalan Frontler-Telegraphic Communication With Salvador Cut Off.

SAN SALVADOR, VIA GALVESTON, Sept. 20.-For the past few days vague rumors have been affoat regarding impending trouble between Guatemala and Salvador. These reports owe their origin to the fact that the Guatemalan Government had been welcoming Salvadorian immigrants with he probable intention of arming them and then putting them into Salvador's territory to start a revolution.

The dismissal of General Amayas from the War Department, taken in connection with the expulsion of General Plazas from the country, have confirmed these reports. These facts, moreover, are quickly followed by the rumor from the Guatemalan frontier

Salvador has naturally been on the alert for such disturbing demonstrations. The reason for the hostile movement is not clearly understood here, because there has recognized; people generally admitted that he would one day be President, but no one General Ezeta's administration. There is not the slightest intention on the part of General Ezeta nor of his brother to interfere in the affairs of Honduras. Both desire peace. The whole country longs for it. Salvador hates war, but will fight if she is obliged to do so by the ambition of Guatemala's chiefs. As Honduras is ready to obey the orders Barillas, Salvador has deemed it best to closely observe what was taking place on its borders and to cover the frontiers of both Guatemala and Honduras so as to be prepared, no matter on which side the ex-pected war might break out. It is believed, however, that Guatemala will be the country to start the trouble.

One strong proof of Guatemala's secret preparations at the frontier is the fact that her Government has wilfully stopped all selegraphic communications with San Salvador. Following Guatemala's example Honduras, under the pretext of its elections, actually stopped all communications.

A second alarm was sent in, but this was unnecessay, as the fire was soon under control, and in less than half an hour was entirely out. The complainant's temper was particularly violent, he said, and she had exercised it so often and so vigorously on him that he felt often and so vigorously on him that he felt obliged to leave her. NO LOVE FOR MRS. MOST. The complainant insisted that she was his wife, and that he was far more interested in Mrs. Most than he was in her husband or his paper. This led the accused to call attention to the relative ages of himself and Mrs. Most. He is 68 years old and Mrs. Lena Most is about 28. "Would I not be foolish to fall in love with so young a woman, and would she not be still more foolish to waste any affection on so old a

"Mrs. Most is an estimable woman and this woman is doing all she can to ruin her character. She even showed a photograph on which I am pictured scated on a chair with Mrs. Most standing beside me. She must have secured two pictures and joined them together, because we were never pho-tographed together. Justice Murray put Koennacke under $200 bonds to pay the complainant $4 a week. He was locked up in default of bonds.

So that makes two editors of Freiheit in prison at once, Herr Most was sent to the Island for a year for inciting 100 people to a riot.

THE BIBLE IN SCHOOLS.

The Attorney General of Washington State Declares That It Is Itlegal. TACOMA, Sept. 20 .- [Special.] -- Attorney General Jones has just completed, for the purpose of mailing to the State Superintendent of Public Instruction, an exhaustive opinion on the constitutional-Bible-reading in the public schools. The opinion was called out by a note of inquiry from the State Superintend-ent. Attorney General Jones finds that the Bible cannot be read in the public schools without violating certain provisions of the State Constitution, and says that from an examination of the provisions on the subject of religion found in the United States Constitution and in the Constitution of several States, the people of this country declare against the union of religion with government and that the first Congress de-clared that Congress should make no law respecting the establishment of religion or prohibiting a free exercise thereof. He quotes Justice Lyon, who declares that the reading of the Bible in the schools is sectarian instruction and that pupils of ordinary intelligence are instructed thereby in sectarian doctrines. In conclusion, after reference to numerous au-thorities, he says that Bible reading is strictly a religious exercise within the meaning of the section providing that no public money or property shall be appropriated for religious worship or instruction.

They Fly With a Farmer's Valuable Mare but Are Soon Captured.

AURORA, ILL., Sept. 20.-While Mr. E. ing in what direction the animal was driven, and offered rewards for the recovery of his property and the thieves.

A few hours after the rig was taken Marshal McIntyre, of Mendota, arrested two girls, aged 16 and 17, who gave their names as Ruth Downey and Lillie Hill, the latter being dressed in male attire, with the stolen property. They had driven directly to Mendota. They were taken into custody, and seemed to take their arrest very coolly.

It was a daring piece of business, but the two girls are hardened criminals and have figured in several scrapes.

Burning Houses to Get Food. LONDON, Sept. 20 .- The Vienna corespondent of the Chronicle says there have recently been a large number of incendiary fires in Russia, the starving peasants setting fire to the houses in order to have an op-portunity to plunder them. Nine places in the Kieff district have been burned in two days. Many arrests have been made.

Two Children Burned to Death. The Cleveland Hotel and ten business houses are a total wreck, the loss being $110,000.

The insurance is light. The fire originated in the Cleveland Hotel, and is believed to have been accidental.

NERVOUS EXTRAVAGANCE.

Many People Waste Energy That They Need on Great Occasions. Do you know what an immense amount of nervous energy people waste continually, which might be stored up? A very nervous person is apt to have little tricks of manner which she fancies are a help to her and cover her confusion, whereas they are really an injury and loss. A habit of wriggling in your chair, of twirling some-a decided gain to restrain. Very few people realize how rare a thing it is to keep perfectly still or to do things composedly, without wasting any effort. An ocalist who was examining a patient's eyes placed a chair and told here to be seated. Then immediately he asked her to get up again. "Do you know that there isn't one person in a hundred who doesn't do that?" he asked. "Do wnat?" she said, thoroughly mystified. "Move the chair when sitting down. You moved it several inches and I wanted you in exactly that light."

thing in your fingers as you talk, of biting your lips or tapping on the floor with your foot or a hundred other things, it would be

Probably you never noticed this, yet observation confirms it. Now, why should anybody, having put her chair where she thinks she wants it, move it in the act of sitting down? It is from a habit of irresolu-tion and nervousness, a failure to do just what she meant to-to make her intention go straight to the mark. Probably it is quite unconscious with most people.

In learning to write or to draw you learn o steady your hand and draw lines which shall show no deviation or raggedness, but be always correct and firm. It is worth while to try to do everything in the same way, with no raggedness, no rambling off.

But, as every nervous person knows, it seems almost impossible. You feel that if you are debarred from "letting off steam" ou must go crazy, or jump up or down, or scream, or do something to horrify or shock Well, but try it. Keep perfectly still. Don't twiddle your fingers, or shake your foot, or jerk your shoulder, or giggle, or clear your throat, or say unmeaning things because you are afraid to be silent. Put all the force or your will upon yourself to keep from these things, no matter how it hurts (and it will hurt). Keep it up minute after minute. You will be surprised to find how long you can do it. Then when you cannot stand it any longer, take your escape and do some of the violent things you have in mind. You will find that you might have hysteria twice a week or reak a window occasionally without using up half the nervous force (which is to some degree vital force) that would leak out in hese little unsuspected ways.

SHE GOT THE SEAT.

Horse Car Incident That Didn't Pan Out as It Was Intended.

Wichita Engle, 1 The other day it was raining hard when Mrs. Lease boarded a street car. The car was chock full, and all the men on the seats sat closer back and evinced a determination to keep a position of sedentary comfort. Mrs. Lease cast her eye down the car, and at the same time a stupid man in the corner started to rise.
"Don't," said the man next to him, grasp ing his arm. "That's Mrs. Lease. Don't you know her? She believes in equality of the sexes. Woman suffrage, you know. The stupid man smiled and got up.

"Come," said the speaker, still more importunate, "you're not going to get up, are you? If she thinks she's equal to a man let her stand. Give her a dose of her own medicine. See, ch?"

But Mrs. Lease had taken the man's seat, greatly to the discomitive of the other. greatly to the discomfiture of the other, who wanted to see her stand. Next day he met the stranger on the street. met the stranger on the street.

"Hello," he said, "you're the man that gave up your scat to Mrs. Lease. You missed a good chance to take her down a little. There wasn't another man in the car who would have given way. Wasn't

"See here," said the man addressed, "I guess you don't know me.

"Can't say that I do. Who are you anyway?" "I'm Mr. Lease."

SON RUSSELL IN IT. An Effort to Indict Him for His Part i Texas Land Company

ARANSAS HARBOR, TEX., Sept. 20. [Special.]—This city is soon to be the center of interest in the United States because of an effort to indict Russell Harrison, son of the President. He is at the head of the Aransas Harbor Land Improvement the Aransas Harbor Land Improvement Company, which sold many hundred thousand dollars' worth of land here on the promise that within one year they would obtain deep water in Aransas Pass and so make a harbor rivaling any on the Gulf coast. In the meantime the year within which the company promised to have deep water in the Pass has about elapsed and nothing has been done.

As the company has failed to keep its promises, the purchasers of lots have refused to meet their notes. They invested here because of the distinguished names associated with the project. Ex-Lieutenant Governor Wheeler and Russell B. Harrison stand at the head. Mr. Wheeler says the people must pay. A flood of suits will be brought by Harrison and Wheeler, and probably 1.000 Texans will be defendants. City folks will thus have an opportunity to show their hospitality in return for favors received. We learn with regret that Max Klein, owing to a press of business, was unable to arrange a display this season, as in former years. Visitors to the city should by all means take a peep at his model establishment, No. 82 Federal street, Allegheny, which is within a stone's throw of the Ft. Wayne and West Penn depots. They can then return home with the satisfaction of having seen the largest and best equipped wholesale liquor house in this section of the State—the headquarters of those world-famed brands of absolutely pure whiskies, "Silver Age" and "Du-THE BIG PITTSBURG EXPOSITION world-famed brands of absolutely pure whiskies, "Silver Age" and "Du-quesne."
