A FEATURE OF ARTIFICIAL WATERWAYS

PART II.

[FROM A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

CHICAGO, Sept. 27.—There is not much to be added to what THE DISPATCH of Saturday contained regarding the state of the Exposition site. As far as the other buildings are concerned, the great halls of Manufactures and the Liberal Arts, 788x1688, and to cost $831,255, the mighty temples of Agriculture and Machinery, and the several Bunexes, the art galleries and so on, they them not even the ground is ready, and this leads me to the changes that have been made, and are still making of the Exposition up to date, it may be well to give the amounts appropriated by ing, to fit Jackson Park for Exposi-tion purposes. In a little pavilion by the lake side in that part of the park which has not yet been taken from the people—it is to be closed to the people on October I. I believe—a man in a white jacket behind a surlancholy temperance bar—why is it tectotalism is always so unattractive? who served me with ginger ale, and had the hon esty to tell me that the five-cent kind would quench thirst just as well as the twenty-nve-cent variety with a foreign label, also remarked that the Exposition would have been a good bit further elvanced if the designers of the rounds had not been bent upon making all he hills valleys, the valleys hills, the dry land water, and the water land. And couple of days spent upon the site convinced me of the justness of this criticism.

I noticed one place in particular at the northern end of the grounds, where one set of men were filling up a canal, and another set of men not 50 feet away were digging a river, said to be 18 feet deep! Of course, the land as it originally lay was not suitable for the grand purpose in view, for a good deal of it was swamp, I am told, and the made ground amounts to many acres, but from the workmen about the ground, as well the even more valuable time, right have been saved by adapting the plans more gen-erally to the lay of the land. Water will bigger figure in this exposition, I should say, than in any previous one.

There will be, in addition to the embraces of Labe Michigan, a host of artificial and spini-artificial waterways interesting the state stock subscriptions of sums ranging from $10,000 to $200,000. Altogether the State appropriations will amount to not less than the will lead from the northern at $5,000,000.

Only an expert in such matters could naswer the question which suggests itself as soon as the Exposition topic is broached, namely, is the work as far advanced as it should be? Workmen and foremen about the grounds told me that if the work went on at its present pace the World's Fair would be ready by the appointed time, and with some months to spare. The Exposition is being built by contract. The contracts call for fulfillment six months before the date set for the opening, which is May, 1893, thus allowing the Exposition Directorate time to remedy any defects or to complete unfinished work. The contractors are naswer the question which suggests itself as dete unfinished work. The contractors are il under heavy bonds, and the penalties for rectors of the Exposition with whom I discussed this phase of the matter were comfortable in the unanimous belief that the Fair was well under way, the prospect most encouraging, and the only consideradanger was that the people of the earth, as soon as they became fully and finally convinced of the Fair's genuineness, would make such a mad rush to get there with their exhibits that the present di-mensions of the Exposition would prove in-

THE OFFICIALS HARD AT WORK. The men with shovels and picks, the men who hold down the plows, the carpenters and the arrisans, and the executive officers of the Exposition, whose work is plainly to be seen in Jackson Park, are not the only one-laboring in Chicago for the great fair. Adams and enter the gigantic building of land, McNally & Co., the publishers; go up in the elevater to I forget which floor, it is hard to remember floors in these tremendons Chicago buildings, and you will find the clerical force and directorate of the Exposition, to the number of hundreds of men and women as hard at work with pens and ink, as the brawny fellows with spades and saws in Jackson Park. The Exposition has two whole floors of Hand, McNally & Co.'s building, containing scores of rooms, and another floor in that wonderful office building called "The Rookery," across the street. The department with which I became acquainted is that of Publicity and Promotion, of which Moses P. Handy is the chief and E. E. A. Dorr, an eminent Pennsylvania newspaper man, his assistant. Something of the magnitude of this department can be gleaned from the fact that there are 60,000 people on the mailing list, to whom interesting statistics and general information about the Fair are sent regularly, and 17,000 newspapers in all parts of the world which are kept informed in like manner. It was from Mr. Dorr that I obtained an exact statement of the financial condition of the Exposition and all the figures, in fact, that have appeared in this article.

DOUBLED UP THE CAPITAL.

The stock of the Exposition Company is $10,000,000. It was $5,000,000 at first, but several months ago, owing to the enlarge-ment of the plans, the amount was in-creased to $10,000,000. Of this $5,595,440 have already been subscribed. The subscribers, etitizens of Chicago, number 28,000. As yet 60 per cent only of the stock has been called for, and the amount collected is over $3,000. 000. It was on condition that $3,000,000 of the stock should be paid up that the city of Chicago agreed to issue $5,000,000 bonds for Exposition use, and this issue of bonds will ake place immediately. Of course, these bonds will be snapped up at once.

The United States Government appropriated $1,500,000. The assets of the Exposition in the treasury, broadly speaking, in cash are close upon ten millions of dollars. If the original plans of an Exposition to cost $10,000,000 or $12,000,000 had been adrash are close upon ten millions of dollars. If the original plans of an Exposition to cost $10,000,000 or $12,000,000 had been adhered to the financial resources in sight now would be ample. But the plans have expanded, and unforeseen expenditures have been made necessary, with the result that the control of the plans have mitted to the care of Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children and word want to be care of Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children and word to the care of Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children and word to the care of Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children and word to the care of Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children and word to the care of Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children and word to the care of Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children and word to the care of Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children and word to the care of Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children and word to the care of Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children and the care of Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children and the care of the care of Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children and the care of Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children and the care of Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children and the care of Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children and the care of Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children and the care of Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children and the care of Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children and the care of Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children and the care of Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children and the care of Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children and the care of Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children and the care of Society for the Children and the care of Society for the Children and the care of Society for the care of Society for the Children and the care of Society for $17,000,000 or $18,000,000. Now the Exposition directorate intend to ask Congress for $5,000,000 as a loan to be secured by the first gate receipts. first gate receipts. A syndicate of Chicago bankers is willing to advance this $5,000,000 now, but they ask 10 per cent, or five and a ner car Grassuere, with R. V. Day and Congress, therefore, will be appealed to this winter; and it is said that the Western Congressmen, at all events, irrespective of polities, will vote for the loan. As to the receipts from the Exposition, it is estimated that $1,000,000 will be realized from concessions and privileges, $2,000,000 from salvage—that is. sions and privileges, $2,000,000 from salvage—that is, from the sale of building materials, etc., after the Exposition is over and $7,000,000 from gate receipts. Nobody in Chicago expects to get anything back upon the stock subscribed, either interest or principal, and no subscriber is likely to be

THE CITY'S ACTIVE PART.

It must also be remembered in fairness to Chicago that outside of the subcriptions of her citizens, and the direct bonding of the city for Exposition purposes, not less than $5,000,000 will be appropriated from the city treasury for the improvement of the city, in order to make the best showing possible in the world's sight in 1893. From bankers, newspaper proprietors, and influential citizens generally, down to the newsboys, Chicago's heart and soul are wrapped up in the great undertaking. The 28,000 subscribers to the Exposition stock represent all classes and degrees. This en-thusiasm and sustained effort can hardly fail to be crowned with success. The jib-boom and bowsprit of the schooner were carried away. The Daylight proceeded on her way. The Circassia returned for repairs. There was no little commotion among the steamer's 120 passengers when the crash came. They will remain on the vessel while she is being re-paired. This will take but s day or two, for the steamer will not go on the dry dock.

A BUNCO STEERER ARRESTED

Charged With Robbing an Albany Man of $10,000 a Year Ago.

NEW YORK, Sept. 27 .- [Special.]-Thomas O'Brien, an all-around crook and confidence man, known the world over and the associate of "Hungry Joe," the prince of bunco steerers, was arrested last night by two of Inspector Byrnes' detectives on a bench warrant issued at the instance of District Attorney Andrew Hamilton, of Albany county. The warrant charges O'Brien with robbing a wealthy citizen of Albany of $10,000 in a bunco game about a year and a half ago.

O'Briez and George Post were operating at that time in Albany. O'Brien made the acquaintance of the victim, whose name is withheld, and invited him to inspect some goods in his apartments. A game was in progress. The victim took a hand and was progress. The victim took a hand and was induced to believe that he would win $10,000 by the turn of a card. They refused to let him play unless he could produce $10,000. The victim left the house, drew $10,000. 000 from the bank and returned. No sooner had he entered the room than the confidence men knocked him down, robbed him and fled. Post escaped to South America and all trace of O'Brien was lost until yester-

No Member of the Family Will Ever Cast a Vote for Blaine.

THE OLD FIGHT STILL RANKLES.

An Admission That the Plumed Knight Will Probably Be Named.

WARM ADMIRER OF MAJOR M'KINLEY

CHICAGO, Sept. 27 .- The Herald contains he following interview:

"I don't see how a Grant could vote for ames G. Blaine for President or even favor his nomination for that office on the Republican ticket. If a man should call you a thief and a pickpocket, or call your father a thief and pickpocket, you would not be likely to think well enough of that man to aid him in securing a public office. That is the reason a Grant could not vote for James G. Blaine for any office."

Those are the words uttered by Jesse R. Grant in an interview with a reporter at the Auditorium yesterday. Jesse Grant is compactly built and under the medium height. His complexion seems to have been acquired by outdoor exercise, and he wore a broad-brimmed, black slouch hat. This hat was not arranged in the military style, but the whole crown stood up without a dent in it, giving the wearer the appearance of the practical Western miner that he is. In conversation Mr. Grant is extremely modest, but impresses one as being a solid, substantial young business man of the West who is taking pains to travel through this world on his own merits, and not on account of distinguished

WILL NEVER VOTE FOR BLAINE. "No, sir; Blaine will never receive a vote from me for any political office, after the way in which he and his friends attacked the personal honor of my father here in the Chicago convention," continued Mr. Grant in answer to further queries. "Blaine and his friends virtually charged my father with being a thief and scoundrel and being no better than a common pickpocket, and can it be expected that I could forget those malicious charges? There was no occasion for Blaine and his friends to enter into any such personalities. But under these circumstances you can easily see why a Grant naturally has an antagonism to Blaine. "Blaine seems to be talked of for the Presidental nomination everywhere, and if he wants the nomination there is no doubt he wants the nomination there is no doubt he can get it," continued Mr. Grant. "He can get a solid delegation from California to the National Convention. Everything is Blaine on the coast; they have nothing particularly against Harrison, but it is just simply everybody talks Blaine. If he be made the nonfinee of course I could not vote for him. If I were a politician I could vote for Blaine or anybody else on the ticket, but I am not a politician. But it doesn't make much difference with other people how I may vote, as I am not in politics—I am a plain, everyday miner, and have been for ten years."

M'KINLEY HAS PIRST CHOICE. And in a spirit of fun, Mr. Grant added:
"I guess I'll have to vote for the Alliance candidate for President, as I am too good a Republican to vote the Democratic ticket."
Mr. Grant said he regarded Major Mc-Mr. Grant said he regarded Major McKinley, of Ohio, as the greatest man in the nation to-day and thought his high tariff bill was just the thing the country needed.
He said he would rather see McKinley made the Presidental nominee than any other man in the party. Mr. Grant is accompanied by his wife, who is the daughter of ex-Senator Chaffee, of Colorado.
Their child and maid are also with them.
They left for the East last night. They will visit Mr. Grant's mother in New York until the 2d or 3d of Octover and then Jesse Grant and family, his mother and his brother,
