

AN OTHER GREAT DAY.

Excursions Attract Immense Crowds to the Exposition.

PROSPECT OF THE CLOSING WEEK.

The Big Show a Success Financially and Artistically.

SOME OF THE PROMINENT EXHIBITS.

Yesterday was one of the biggest days at the Exposition. It is estimated that not less than 20,000 persons passed into the buildings during the afternoon and evening, many of them being from the country. There were several railroad excursions, notably a large one over the Lake Erie and tributary lines. "People's day" always attracts the outside element, as well as that belonging to the city. The music is always of the "popular" order, and with the "Battle of Gettysburg" thrown in, it would be strange indeed if the entertainment were not such as to delight an American audience. There will be only one more week of the Exposition. Next Saturday night the last strains from the band will ring out for the season of 1891, and the great buildings will be dark until the fall of 1892. There will be a number of excursions for the last week. The Pennsylvania lines will give half-fare rates from Tuesday to the end of the week. It is the intention of the management to make the last few days the most brilliant of the season, and it is expected that many Pittsburghers who have been putting off their visit all the end of the time in which they can go, will hurry to get to the Exposition before it is too late. Taken as a whole, the Exposition of 1891 has been a flattering success, artistically and financially. The attractions have been the best that the management could secure, and the people have patronized their own show almost as liberally as they should. Especially is this true of residents of outside towns. If Pittsburghers will only take pattern by their cousins in the country, there will be a very profitable closing week.

BARNES SAFE AND LOCK CO.

384, 192, 127, 129 and 131 Third Avenue. The exhibit of this company has always been one of the standard attractions of the Pittsburgh Exposition. This year a prominent feature of theirs is a splendid safe especially made for the Alvin Theater, which will be rented to the theater next week. Mr. Davis selected the Barnes Safe and Lock Company's design after having visited several Eastern cities in the endeavor to secure the best burglar proof. He is more than pleased with his safe, which has been much admired. It is thoroughly fire and burglar proof, having double iron doors, with heavy cast-iron hinges, a pressure bar and iron linges, a bank burglar combination lock on the chest, and four tumblers combination lock on the fire proof work inside the door. The safe is beautifully ornamented with an all painting representing the well-known farm scene with Mr. Alvin Joslyn at the plough. The outer door is a life-sized half-figure portrait of Joslyn in his "Sunday go-to-meeting" clothes, precisely as many a one has seen him appear on the stage. The safe complete weighs 7,000 pounds. The bolt work, handle and hinges on this safe are finely nickel plated and the finish throughout is superb. The entire work was done by the Barnes Safe and Lock Company's own men in their own shops. The safe is so constructed that a finer safe has never been produced. The Barnes Safe and Lock Company, since its modest beginning in 1840, have won the superiority of its different classes of safes, and achieved for itself a national reputation.

VAULT DOORS. Vault doors are one of the specialties of this firm, and there is scarcely a building in Pittsburgh where vaults are used that has not been supplied by the Barnes people. It is interesting in this connection to mention that the recently completed postoffice building has been furnished by them with 48 iron-vault doors of the most modern and approved construction. It should further be stated that in 1882 Mr. Thomas Barnes, President of this company, constructed the vault for the old postoffice building, personally doing the work. The Barnes Safe and Lock Company holds a vast number of testimonials from business men in all parts of the United States, reciting the triumphs of these safes and vaults in withstanding the most terrific fires which have ever occurred. The medals received at various exhibitions attest the superiority of the Barnes safes overall competitors.

Balusters, Hand-Hallings and Newel-Posts. Messrs. Murphy and Diebold organized in 1875 a small factory for the purpose of manufacturing the above named articles; today they have the two largest planing mills in Pittsburgh, both thoroughly equipped with the latest wood-working machinery. The one in the East End is a large, three-story building, dimensions, 176x175 feet, with a warehouse attached of 41,199 feet of floor space. The center of the building is 100x130 feet, the warehouse 80x120 feet. In these two mills employment is furnished to 250 men, 70 of whom are stair builders. This firm makes a specialty of interior finishes in pine and hardwood. The handsome reception hall which they exhibit at the Exposition proves their proficiency in this style of work; this hall will be placed at the close of the Exposition in a private residence in the East End. The firm carries a large stock of flooring, ceiling, siding and moldings. In their sample rooms and warehouses there are large selections of pine and hard wood mantels, sashes, doors and blinds, so there can be no difficulty in furnishing anything in this line promptly. Murphy & Diebold carry an enormous amount of pine and hard wood lumber in stock, also pine and hemlock framing lumber, plain and ornamental cut shingles, lathing, pickets and rollings. The lumber is all dried by means of a large Boston "Flower" dry-kiln before it is used. Their shipping facilities are unsurpassed, and orders are executed with promptness and care.

DESKS AND ADJUSTABLE CHAIRS.

Stevens Chair Company, 5 Sixth Street. The display made by this house is one of the greatest interest visitors who are in search of the best business desks and the most convenient chairs ever seen. The Stevens desks are solid, handsome and in immense variety—high top, low top, flat top, open back top, all but the flat top and open back having the spring-topped roll counter. The adjustable folding chairs and the inviolate rolling chairs are unequalled for their elegance, simplicity and comfort. Visit No. 5 Sixth Street and see the fine stock.

Stoves, Ranges and Furnaces.

Mr. J. C. Bartlett, of 203 Wood Street, possesses a wonderful number of these imperative necessities for the fine space. There are "Cinderellas" in all forms of stoves and ranges, and a larger number of all three, stoves, ranges and furnaces, bearing the name "Bartlett" in their design. This immense array to understand that it is to Mr. J. C. Bartlett that you must apply for the best, the cheapest and most available manufactures in these lines.

A Handsome Dinner Table.

Arranged with an exquisite gold border Haviland dinner service has been added to the already superb exhibit in fine space. There are "Cinderellas" in all forms of stoves and ranges, and a larger number of all three, stoves, ranges and furnaces, bearing the name "Bartlett" in their design. This immense array to understand that it is to Mr. J. C. Bartlett that you must apply for the best, the cheapest and most available manufactures in these lines.

being received by this firm at 935 Penn avenue, and they only give you hints of the unlimited amount of lovely things which they keep in stock in fine china for dinner, tea and toilet ware, rich, heavy cut glass tableware, art pottery, etc., general household china, and banquet, library, piano and vase lamps. Truly a magnificent stock which invites one's most careful and appreciative inspection.

HOUSE BELLS AND BATTERIES

By the Electrical Supply and Construction Company, 547 Liberty Street. The growth in the application of electricity to matters pertaining to household comforts and convenience has been rapid and sweeping, but too little comprehended by the masses. They enjoy the benefits of these electrical contrivances without stopping to consider how they have been derived. Take, for instance, the change in the matter of house lighting; not so many years ago candles were used then on through the different styles of lamps, gas to the triumph of civilization—the electricity of today. An exhibit like this of the above named company enables one to discover very readily why he has arrived at this condition of affairs. Notice all these devices which are imperative in successful house lighting. You begin with the wiring, the cut-outs and fuse-blocks, the switches, the table-board, to which every circuit runs, and by which anything wrong in the house will be demonstrated by the fuse of that particular circuit burning out, without disturbing any of the others. Then comes the cording to which the lights or lamps are attached, then are added the sockets into which the lamps are fitted, and these are the things which a person makes a specialty of the large number of new and attractive designs for electroliers, combination fixtures, brackets and portables.

BELLS.

These are an important adjunct to our comfort, including the push button door bell, the interior general electric bell, which class belongs the dining room signal bell, and the house annunciator or indicator.

BATTERIES.

There are many styles of these batteries which are applicable to this house lighting and electric bell work, but preference seems to give the palm to the self-sealing, quick-acting, Disque Le-Clanche Battery. A careful inspection of this exhibit proves that this company has every appliance and the art to make the appliances. Visitors to the Exposition are invited to call at the store, 947 Liberty Street, to receive further information on the subjects of electrical house lighting, bells, and general wiring.

THE VERY ELEGANT EXHIBIT.

Of Hopper Bros. & Co., 307 Wood Street. The impression prevails that nothing has been omitted, or could be added, to assist in making this display more brilliant and comprehensive; this is only justice to the firm who show these handsome styles of furniture. It is pleasant to note that the thoughtful and effort which have been put forth by the Messrs. Hopper & Co. have met the view of the people and been truly appreciated. From whatever standpoint you take the furniture and general stock of this firm you are bound to find novelties, solid and reliable goods, and that they have the power of meeting the fancies and tastes of the people. Indeed, it may be said that they possess the faculty of anticipating the fashions in furniture. They understand their business, they are progressive, and they are anxious to be instructed with the charge of fitting up a house that will be comfortable and look well. You can have your choice as to buying for cash or upon the installment plan; you can make your selections from four floors filled with household goods; you can have your purchases delivered at the time specified; you can be certain of most courteous treatment, and you can be sure that you will be more than satisfied with your bargains when you get them home, and you will determine to deal, in the future as in the present, with Hopper Bros. & Co., 307 Wood Street.

The Oil Well Supply Company's Exhibit in the annex has been, assuredly, a drawing card of the Exposition of 1891. It is interesting to see which department of this enormous display has proved the most popular, but observation has led to the conclusion that, of the thousands who have visited the annex, each one seems to have found something interesting to examine and talk about to their friends. A large number have found it difficult to leave the engaging models located at the entrance, while others, being anxious to see the actual tools and engines used in boring, drilling and pumping, have displayed great zeal in acquiring knowledge of the manifold uses of the devices which are arranged in such profusion on all sides. Who can say how far reaching has been the influence of this instructive and inimitable collection of mechanical powers and appliances, and how many people have left the Exposition this year with an exhaustive comprehension of the ways and means involved in the prosecution of this industry?

The B. L. H. Dabbs' Exhibit.

A remarkable point about this display in Art Gallery is that it puts you into the brightest spirits, regardless of temperature, and the more you look the better you are pleased. The verdict of Pittsburghers and visitors is "that there is one man in this city who can take likenesses, and that his name is B. L. H. Dabbs." There is no discounting. The fact that Baker has carried the town by storm at the Exposition with his celebrated popcorn, delicious, refreshing lemonade and abnormally good candies, caramels and taffies. People seem to esteem it a privilege to hands to eat.
