BRITISH ROTALTY IN GREAT DISPAYOR

[BY CABLE TO THE DISPATCH.]

LONDON, Oct. 10.-[Copprighted.]-The result of the Manchester election was unexpeciedly favorable to the Liberals, the Tory majority having been reduced almost to the vanishing point, but a most satisfactory point it is. As far as can be learned, the Liberal Unionists in Manchester have been converted to home rule, and if, as there is reason to believe, this conversion has been general in Lancashire, the Liberals will gain a dozen seats in that important county at the general election. The vacancy at Cambridge University, which had been kept open in case the Postmaster General should be defeated at Manchester, was filled up today in the usual way by a nonentity named Jebb, the only qualification for any warsity sent being bigoted Toryism.

CLAIMANTS FOR SMITH'S SEAT.

It is not probable that Lord Salisbury will be in any hurry to fill the dual post of First Lord of the Treasury and leader of the House of Commons, made vacant by the death of Mr. Smith. Rival claimants are already intriguing for promotion, and the selection will be a difficult and delicate matter. If party services count for anything, Mr. Smith's successor should be beyond doubt Mr. Balfour, but it is urged that he can't be spared from Ireland.

The objection comes strangely enough from the very men who for months past have been proclaiming from the housetops that Balfour has "pacified" Ireland and that the machinery of Irish government can now be trusted to run smoothly without the constant supervision of the chief engineer. But it will probably serve, and Balfour will have to wait until the Tories are in opposition, for his well earned pro-The Tories will be glad enough to have him for leader during the coming period of adversity, and he himself being vet young, as political life goes, is apparently content to wait.

having, according to his friends, made heavy sacrifices to join the Tory Cabinet, is new entitled to the reward of leading the united party in the House of Commons. As sacrifice consisted in the acceptance of the dignified post of Chancelor of the Exchequer, for which he had craved for years, and never could get from the Liberals, and Plenty of men in the Tory party would the altar of duty upon similar terms without posing afterwards as martyrs. But Goschen's sacrifices have to be taken into account, because it would be very awkward if wounded vanity should induce the Rt. Hon. Turneout to hand over the finances to novice on the eve of a general election. The best leader of the House of Commons would be Mr. Ritchie, but neither Balfour nor Goschen would serve under him. On the whole, it is probable that conflicting claims will be avoided by the appointment of Sir Michael Hicks Beach to the coveted

A PROPHET OF EVIL.

Despite manifold discouragements, a watning from the very latest prophet of evil is given in the biggest type and the less position in to-day's semi-official Standard. He dates his letter from Bombay, and the burden of his complaint is of course Russian aggression in Asia. He points out that the presence of Russians on the Pamir is tautamount to the annexation of 22,000 square miles of Chinese territory and 10,000 square miles of Afghan territory. More than this the Russians have within the last month had the stupendous audacity to order two British officers off ground belonging to ask for an explanation, assuming the facts are correct, but the prophet disdains the slow methods of diplomancy. "The time has come," he says, "long though it has been procrastinated, when the supremacy of England in Asia must be once and for all so firmly established that the tide which has flowed so steadily eastward throughout the last 50 years may not only be checked but sent sweeping back to the Caspian.

Oviously Russian aggression must be cheeked, and Lord Salisbury will doubtless

SOME RIG FIGHTING TALE. "We have in Lord Swlisbury a Foreign Minister imbued with the highest traits of the national character, bold, brave and just; we have a navy the envy of the world, we have in India an army vastly superior in numbers, quality and organization to any that Russia can bring against us, under the command of and enthusiastically devoted to one of the ablest generals of the day. We may never hit upon such a fortunate era again."

The prominence given to this inflamma tory appeal by a newspaper of repute like the Standard justifies the belief that the the Standard Justifies the belief that the writer is a persen of importance. Whoever he may be, he reflects very forcibly opinions known to be held by the chief military and civil officers who form the Viceroy's cabinet and influence his court. They are shared by an influential section of the "Governing classes" in this country and they will prevail should the general election send the Tories back to power. As this contingency Tories back to power. As this contingency is admittedly remote, the war party in India will have to ease their feelings, as heretofore, by writing letters to the newspapers. There is plenty of combustible material on the Indian frontiers, but the time has not yet come to fire it.

SURPRISED AT LABOUCHERE. Labouchere's article in the Forum on English royalty has attracted some attention here and has surprised many of his friends. He is generally supposed to be an acute observer, but the Forum article is not considered creditable to his power of observation. The idea that the march of British democracy will stop after the demo-lition of the House of Lords and the Establish Church, is scouted as absurd, and the suggestion that that there is no strong feeling in favor of a Republican form of govern-ment in this country, is entirely unwarranted was appointed in consequence of the loud popular outery provided by the report that the Government intended to ask the House of Commons "to make suitable provision" for Prince Albert Victor, the eldest son of the Prince of Wales. The very rumor of such an intention was immediately followed by a series of public meetings of protest, and the agitation quickly assumed such formidable proportions that Lord Salis-bury's Gover ment, in the plentitude of its power, had to vield.

Prince Albert Victor is now 27 years of age, but he is still without an allowance from the public treasury, and there are no signs of an intention on the part of the Government to provoke another cutbreak of popular rage by asking Parliament for money for any member of the royal family, nor must it be supposed that the feeling re-ferred to is confined to the working classes. It has gained ground in recent years in a remarkable manner among the middle classes, and manifests itself in a variety of ways. ROYALTY'S OCCUPATION GONE. The time was when public ceremonies such as the opening of new parks and public buildings, were performed by members of the royal family whenever their presence could be secured, but nowadays the work is more often done by local notabilities. Only last night, for instance, the corporation of Stockton on-Tees, after a lively debate, in the course of which many unkind remarks were made about the royal family, rejected far as the outside world is aware, Goschen's a motion requesting the Prince of Wales to open the new park.

It can't be denied that "God Save the Queen" is rarely played in public places without some demonstration of dissent, and Americans will remember the rough man-ner in which the Prince of Wales was handled over the Tranby Croft baccarat cheerfully have immolated themselves on the altar of duty upon similar terms withlican revolution in England, but, on the other hand, no serious student of British politics can fail to see that when the de-mocracy shall have become strong enough to sweep away the Established Church and the House of Lords the throne will soon

MATRIMONIAL MISEITS.

The McElfresh Case Bobs Up Once More-Three New Divorce Suits Filed-A Man Whose Wife is a Believer in Wholesale Matrimony.

A case which runs away back, that of Mrs. McElfresh against her husband, Dr. James McElfresh, one laid in both Washington and Allegheny counties, was taken out and dusted off in the Quarter Sessions Court before Judge McClung yesterday. James H. Smith supported the doctor, as usual, and Mr. Wise, of Wise and Minor, looked after Mrs. McElfresh's interests, and called nearly a dozen witnesses, nve of whom were women. Mrs. McElfresh was victed of complicity in the robberies com- also supported by the infantry of the disgruntled family.

No sooner had the order forward been given than a fire was opened almost simul taneously along the entire line, both lawyers and clients participating, Mr. Wise holding that the woman must be taken care of, and Mr. Smith offering to prove that the doctor had provided a house for his wife, according to Judge Sloagie's order, and that she had refused to go into it. To this Mrs. McElfresh responded that there was nothingin the house that belonged to the doctor, rather appearing to intimate that it was some sort of a job set up on her.

Mr. Wise next stated that the Doctor was living with another woman, and to this Mr.
Smith responded that Mrs. McElfresh was living with another man, and both sides expressed more or less ability to make their assertions good.

Finally Mr. Smith retired face to the fortaneously along the entire line, both law living with another man, and both sides expressed more or less ability to make their assertions good.

Finally Mr. Smith retired, face to the foe, with his client, to the order of Judge Siagle made some months ago, and behind this breastwork they stood defiantly and in security for the time being. Judge McClung finally decided that he would not entertain the case, but allow it to be finished by Judge Siagle.

Three new divorce suits were entered yesterday. Attorney Joseph Briel filed the suit of Henry Nuhn against Georgia Nuhn. They were married May 10, 1888, and separated December 3, 1890. Nuhn alleges that his wife deceived him, and that when sne married him she already had two husbands living, from whom she had never been divorced. One was Robert Murray and the other Henry Ide, both living in this county. When he learned this he left her and she is now living as the wife of A. Lindblatt.

Attorney Kirker entered the suit of Sophia M. Kummer, by her next friend, A. Boltz, against Christian Kummer. They were married July 19, 1886, and separated October 2, 1891. She alleges that he hit her over the head with a torch, knocking her insensible, and otherwise abused her. They live at Tarentum.

AN UNSURPASSED RECORD.

How the Big Work of the Criminal Court Is Being Pushed.

A comparative statement of the work in the Criminal Court for the first five weeks of the September term of 1890 and the first five weeks of the present term, up to yesterday, has been prepared, and shows the immense amount of work being transacted in the court. During the first five weeks of the term in 1690 there were 201 cases disposed of, while in the past five weeks there were 326, an increase of 125 cases. The average number of cases a day in 1890 was 675, and this term it is 11. In the past five weeks there were six homicide cases tried, and three will be tried this week, while there were only ten homicide cases tried in the whole Septem besterm of 1890. There are still about 15 homicide cases to be tried this term of

The grand jury for the present term of court had 831 bills laid before it. There were 578 true bills returned. Added to this there were 12 cases left over from previous terms, making a total of 590 cases to be disposed of. Of these, in five weeks 91 have been tried and convicted; 66 pleaded guilty; 18 pleaded no defense; nolle prosses on payment of costs were allowed in 21 cases; 36 were found not guilty; 22 were found not guilty, and the costs, or a portion of them, placed on the defendants; in 8 cases the costs were placed on the prosecutors; 2 were found not guilty by reason of insanity and sent to Dixmont, and 29 desertion and 25 surety of the peace cases were heard. There are remaining 264 cases to be disposed of. Of the six murder cases tried, District Attorney Burleigh has secured convictions in all but one case. Catharine Bulkover was acquitted of the charge of murdering her illegitimate child. There was one conviction of murder in the first degree, four of murder in the second degree and one of accessory after the fact.

This record has never been surpassed, and the court and District Attorney Burleigh are well pleased with it. costs were allowed in 21 cases; 36 were found

THE M'DONALD OIL FIRE

Small Loss, Although a Serious Conflag tion Was at One Time Feared.

There was a report current in Pittsburg yesterday morning to the effect that the oil town of McDonald was burning. It was occasioned by the burning of a small pool of oil in Robb's Run, which passes through the business portion of McDonald. The fire was in a very dangerous locality, and for a short time it was feared that a disastrous conflagration might ensue. No buildings were burned and none were damaged. The quantity of oil consumed would not exceed eight or ten barrels. This shows that the danger of a fire in the bor-ough is greater now than it has ever been before, owing to the increase in the quantity of escaping oil which is running through the

All his life he has had to fight for his ideas, and the stories of his personal encounters read like a romance. It was during the latter part of my visit at "White Hall" this week while we were sitting one evening before the coals of his library fire, that I drew General Clay on to talk of some of these fights, and I could almost see the combats in the coals as in cool but graphic language he brought them back from the

He was older than I was and a great deal stronger, and I was accustomed to tease him and play tricks upon him, until one day we were out trimming some trees in the or-chard. The trees were rather high and my brother had made a little ladder to enable him to get up into them. He took one row of trees and I took another, and I would put away his ladder and take it over to my row, so that he had to jump down and get it when he wanted to go to a new tree.
