DEATH SENTENCE AND DIVERSION.

Big Records.

NEWS OF SATURDAY ON JUSTICE HILL

Rib-tickling mirth and somber solemnity chased each other in the Quarter Sessions Court yesterday and the distance between the moods was like that between the sublime and the ridiculous-a single step. The wild, weird wailing of Mrs. Fitzsimmons as she pronounced her invocation for her husband and the solemn hush that fell over the audience when the death pensity was pronounced on Patrick Fitzpatrick were discordantly jarred by the spontaneous fun generated by the strange jusxtaposition of circumstances developed in the hearing of surety and esertion cases. The effect of the first may be imagined, but to be appreciated it should have been heard.

In the cases of Greenwald vs Greenwald and Mary Carney vs Samuel Carney compromises in the nature of a kiss and a makeupwere announced.

There was nothing in the case of Virginia Dryhetto, who, by the way, is not Virginia Dryhetto, as given on the trial list, but Virginia Degettyhogold, as near as could be I med. The prosecutor was assessed with the costs. It seemed that Virginia, etc., ad lost caste with some of his countrymen by having lived a time in Prussia. DETERMINED TO ACT IN TIME.

The case of Mary H. Jones vs. W. H. Jones was unique. They are not Welsh, but are as dark as Erebus and both young and have a baby 16 months old. It appeared to go to Boston and look up some business there, and meantime he proposed to send her to Washington, D. C., where they mul he had re-erected a domestic altar in he Hub. Mrs. Johnston admitted that she had only acted on suspicion, but seemed to hink her husband should be judged as an attended absconder in order that he be made sure of. A diversion was made by a woman and a haby. She was a witness in a case, and having occasion to leave the room temporarily, left the infant in charge of another woman in a waiting room. When the mother came back she could neither find the room nor the baby. She acted about as irrationally as the average woman does under such circumstances, and at one time it seemed as though the court might find it necessary to suspend business and help hunt that baby. It was finally found.

Still Another Phase of the Thornton-Hannigan Murder Turns Up.

HAINS' FATHER TRANSFERRED

From Washington to Portland, and the Family to Be Scattered.

SOCIAL OSTRACISM DOES ITS WORK

FROM A STAFF CORRESPONDENT. WASHINGTON, Oct. 24.—The social devastation caused by the murder, some months ago, of Ned Hannigan by Thornton Hains, at Fortress Monroe, is not yet all evident on the surface, but another phase of it became public to-day, in an order of the Hains, father of Thornton Hains, from Colonel Hains has been engaged for long years in superintending the great improve-ment of the Potomae flats, and his name is almost inseparable from that work. A petition of citizens to the President to revoke his order is in circulation, but it will not probably have the desired effect. It is said on the one hand that Colonel Hains asked to be transferred, but on the other, and by those who ought to know, that he desires to remain here. It was a matter of some doubt, after the trial, as to what attitude the army society of Washington would adopt toward the family. Some of the officers merely held aloof, while others continvicinity.

"All might have gone well," said one who is well informed on the subject, "had it not been for the position taken by Mrs. Hains. She insisted on tollowing the acquittal of her son with an effort to accomplish his complete re-establishment in society, and she gradually alienated all of the sympathetic ladies who called on her to share their appreciation of the state of things."

A short time ago a letter was received by their appreciation of the state of things."

A short time ago a letter was received by the Secretary of War from Thornton Hains, insolent and threatening in its character. He demanded that the Secretary take proper steps to put an end to the persecution of his family on his account, and he added if nothing were done officially he would take the matter into his own hands and put an end to it himself. The Secretary, it is said, laid this communication before the President, at once urging that steps be taken to prevent any trouble being made by young Hains. Mr. Drummond, the chief of the secret service of the Treasury, was of the secret service of the Treasury, was summoned and he was instructed to have the young man carefully watched. Accordingly, an agent of that bureau was stationed near the house, and Thornton Hains was diligently shadowed.

THE COLONEL CALLS THE BOY CRAZY, Soon after the talk at the White House the Secretary of War summoned Colonel Haines to him and showed him his son's letter. The officer was shooked and grieved when he realized his son's folly. He assured the Secretary that the letter had been written without his knowledge, and added that he had been forced to the melancholy conclusion that his con was income. conclusion that his son was insane. Young Hains, it is understood, had gone to South America. His brother, Lieutenant John P. Hains, Third artillery, has at his own request been transferred from the Washington barracks to Ft. McHenry, Baltimore, and thus in a short time the entire family will have removed from Washington.

The Gasification of Tar.

The absolute conversion of tar into gas can now be effected without leaving any residue in a retort. The process consists in injecting a spray of tar by means of a Korting's jet supplied with superheated steam into a redhot retort half filled with coke. The gas has a high candle power and does not need the use of expensive enriching material.
