TWO LARGE MASS MEETINGS HELD. The Miners' Association Will Begin Paying Benefits Friday.

MEN THREATEN TO COME OUT IN OHIO. The striking miners at West Newton are now growing desperate, and a great deal of trouble is anticipated before the strike is declared off.

The first trouble occurred yesterday morning at the company's houses at the mine No. 2, when a striker's better half accused a Hungarian woman of being a scab's wife, and as her husband was a miner in No. 2. The women soon came to blows, and in a few minutes over 20 women were engaged in battle with stones, clubs and fists, but nine officials intervened before any damage was done beyond a score of black eyes and several dresses being torn off the enraged women.

THE ACTION ENDORSED. At both places, after the situation had been fully discussed, a vote was taken, and the action taken in Monday's convention was endorsed.

TIED OF HIS LIFE. Actor Denison Cuts His Throat With a Razor in His Bathroom.

ONE OF THE KENDALS' COMPANY. Who Had Given Full Satisfaction in All the Roles He Assumed.

THE LATE ROMANCE OF HIS EXISTENCE. (SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE DISPATCH.)

NEW YORK, October 27.—Alexander M. Denison, as he was known on the stage, the leading old man of the English company that supports the Kendals at the Star Theater, committed suicide this morning in a bath room of the Hotel Arno, on Twenty-third street and Broadway, where he had been living.

His act was the result of morbid depression, accompanying an illness that had forced his retirement from his stage work since October 17. On that day he played at the matinee, taking the part of "Doubtful" in "Still Waters Run Deep."

Mr. Denison notified his condition, and Dr. Joseph E. Winter was called to attend him. The doctor found his temperature 102, and put him to bed. For three or four days he was very ill with a malarial fever. After that his bodily condition improved, but he was morbid. Mrs. Kendal took him for a drive in the park on Sunday, and on Monday Mrs. Kendal walked with him.

"Tell me," Mr. Kendal said, "what is your trouble. Do you need money, or what is it?" It was nothing, Denison assured him, except that he felt all run down and depressed. "I'm in the dumps," he said to Mrs. Marsh, the proprietress of the Arno, when he left her Monday night to go to his room.

FOUND DEAD IN A BATHROOM. That was the last seen of him in life. Frank Reich, the porter, went to Denison's room, as usual, at 5:30 o'clock this morning and made a fire. The bed had been slept in, but Denison was not in the room.

At 6 o'clock Reich went up again to take Denison's order for the light breakfast that he usually ate in his room while he read. Denison was an early riser and read early and late. He was still absent, and Mrs. Marsh was notified, and she and Reich found him in the bathroom, with the door fastened. He had fallen into a crouching position, his legs bent under him as he sank down, his head on the floor and his hands caught between his knees and his body. He was dead. In one hand he still grasped the razor, with which he had cut a gash about two inches deep across his throat.

ROMANCE OF THE ACTOR'S LIFE. Mr. Denison was engaged to marry Miss Hudspeth, of Richard Mansfield's company, and formerly with the Kendals.

Mr. Denison was engaged to marry Miss Hudspeth, of Richard Mansfield's company, and formerly with the Kendals. Miss Hudspeth had been seen in small parts, but she was to have taken a leading part in "The Parisian Romance." Rehearsals were called this morning at the Lyceum Theater. While Miss Hudspeth was on the stage there came word that some one wished to see her at the stage door.

"Mr. Denison is dead," said the caller. Miss Hudspeth became hysterical. Miss Beatrice Cameron tried to soothe her, but she fainted, and was taken to her home. Denison's real name Mr. Kendal believed to be Dixon. His father, who was a big ship builder in Glasgow, is dead, but his mother is living in Deal, England. He has two brothers and one sister. One brother is an actor, who is playing in London. He has not been notified of Denison's death.

The first that Mr. Kendal knew of Denison's life is that about 20 years ago he was playing with Mr. and Mrs. Bancroft. He had been with the Kendals, off and on, for 10 years, and four years ago became a regular member of the company. He played Parsloe Parsloe in "The Squaire," Lord Daunt in "The Queen's Shilling," Lord Gillingham in "The Weaker Sex," and other parts.
