AND THE END IS NOT YET IN SIGHT

CORK, Oct. 27 .- William O'Brien and John Dillon arrived here to-day. The two distinguished Members of Parliament were and a large number of others. A large number of people lined the route followed by the procession which followed Messrs. O'Brien and Dillon from the railroad station. The procession was headed by a brass band and was escorted by a strong detachment of police.

A large body guard from Maurice Healy's parter of the city, all armed with stout blackthorns, then surrounded the vehicle, in which the two orators drove, which, in the midst of a terrific yell, began its progress toward the assembly rooms. The Healyites, with sticks waving in the air, and uttering cheers for O'Brien and Dillon marched in a compact mass in the roadway. On the sidewalks, and side by side with their opponents, half walked, half trotted a perspiring throng of Parnellites, while between the two bodies of marchers were the police, warding off occasional vicious thrusts of the blackthorns and preserving the peace.

An Assortment of Epithets. As the procession passed through the strects there was considerable hissing, and several stones crashed through a large portrait of William O'Brien, which was carried in the parade. When the procession reached the assembly rooms and the two leaders at-tempted to address the vast crowd their voices were at once drowned in yells and cries of "Murderers," "Traitors," "Cowards." Finally the Parnellites gathered themselves together for a rush and were sweeping down upon the Healyites when the mounted police charged them and drove Upon arriving at the assembly room Messrs. Diflon and O'Brien were given an enthusiastic reception, during which several warmly applauded speeches were made.

While the speech-making was in progress a body of Parnellites attacked the bandsmen of the McCarthyites, and tried to de-mellah their instruments, now a favorite receeding upon the part of the contending actions. A warm free fight followed, but it was only of short duration, as the police charged in upon the combatants, and soon put an end to the hostilities.

Dillon Protests Against Violence. Messrs. Dillon and O'Brien, after the reception at the assembly rooms was ended, escorted by a number of friends, attended the Cork County Convention, where Mr. Dillon acted as presiding officer. During the course of an address made to the county delegates, Mr. Dillon complained of what he termed the "organized violence" of the Parnellites, and made other allusions to the litical situation which were loudly ap-

Mr. O'Brieu said in his address that he was willing to give fair play to his opponents, but added he would not yield to "brickbats and dynamite bombs"—a remark which was received with loud applause. Continuing, Mr. O'Brien said that they (the Parnellites) might blow up the office of the newspaper representing the views of the McCarthyites, "but," he exclaimed, "they cannot destroy the spirit which animates that party." [Tremendous applause, cannot desiroy the spirit which animates that party." [Tremendous applause, mingled with some hooting.]

At another part of the discourse Mr. O Brien, amid cheers, called upon John E. Redmond, the Parnellite candidate for Cork city and the new leader of the Parnellite party, to repudiate all responsibility for violence in connection with the dynamite incident last right in Dublin. incident last night in Dublin.

Another Fight in the Streets.

After the Cork county convention had After the Cork county convention had adjourned, there was a serious fight in the streets of this city between the McCarthy-ites and the Parnellites. As soon as the convention had closed its proceedings Messrs, Dillon and O'Brien passed throughthe city, still accompanied by the procession which met them at the railroad station. Suddenly the McCarthyites were attacked by a large mob of Parnellites, and both sides fought desperately with sticks, clubs, shovels and picks. A detachment of mounted police was sent for and they spurred their horses in between the two lines of the combatants, striking right and left with he flat of their sabers amid two crossing showers of stones and bricks. A large number of wounded were stretched bleeding and grouning in the streets before the troopers restored order. The neighboring hospital had to find accommodation for many wounded persons by the time hostilities were suspended.

There is great excitement everywhere in Cork this evening. The antagonistic groups, it is feared, will reassemble, and there is danger that the battle between them will be resumed.

More Fights to Follow. The feeling aroused throughout Ireland, and especially in this city, by recent political and factional savings and doings, is very bitter, and threatens to result in seconflicts between the McCarthyites and Parnellites. There were several affrays here last evening at the close of the various political meetings, and sticks and stones were freely used by both parties. The re-sult is that a number of members of the two opposing parties are being nursed in the hospitals and elsewhere for severe wounds incurred during the frays. A girl, who was an onlooker during one of these political scrimmages, was seriously wounded about the head and face by

The rev-creed gentleman also said that the women who were supporting him were 'limbs of the devil," and that the local workingmen's dub was "a synagogue of hell."

Even the Small Boys Fight.

FLOODS AND GALES CONTINUE.

Wreckage Floating Ashore in England and Spanish Villages Inundated.

LONDON, Oct. 27 .- Additional details of disasters from the terrific gales which have prevailed along the coasts recently, continue to be received. This morning the body of a sailor having a life belt around his chest and waist, floated ashore near Yarmouth in the midst of a quantity of wreckage. It is feared that this furnishes evidence that a large ship has been wrecked near that port. A Yarmouth fishing lugger, with her entire crew, foundered during the gates. Incoming steamers report having experienced fearful weather between Liverpool and the Island of Madeira. Their decks were continually swept by heavy seas, and a number of them were compelled to heave to until the weather improved. The floods are still doing much damage in various parts of the interior. Speeches in a Day.

(SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE DISPATCH.) SANDUSKY, Oct. 27 .- Major McKinley's meeting here this afternoon was a magnificent success, exceeding all expectations. Each train was crowded, and all had extra coaches. One delegation of over 300 came from Toledo. When Major McKinley arrived from Newark his train as met by nearly 1,000 men drawn up in line. So eager were people to shake hands with him that it was with the utmost difficulty that he reached the carriage. The journey to the hotel was an ovation. After dinner the distinguished standard bearer was driven at once to the Opera House, which was al-ready crowded, and hundreds had been turned away.

The audience was composed of farmers, working men, professional men and ladies. The speaker discussed the silver and the the speaker discussed the silver and the tariff questions, dodging no issue, but pushing everything fairly and candidly. He was in good voice, and the points he made in his speech were received with delight. Especial interest was manifested in his talk on silver, and when he declared he was not willing to chance free silver there was en-thusiastic applause. About the tariff he said, among other things, that if the older men who lived before the rebellion would tell the young men of the present time what they had gone through under a Democratic revenue tariff he would be elected by more than 50,000 majority.

He said that if any person in the andience had been hurt by the protective tariff he wanted him to speak right out and let it be known, and repeating the call he waited, but none had any complaint to make. He was loudly cheered when he said the tariff law has already had one birthday and is bound to stay long enough to have many more. Major McKinley spoke for nearly

This was one of the largest political meetings ever held in this city, and nearly 2,000 people failed to hear the distinguished speaker, through inability to get into the opera house. The Campbell meeting two weeks ago is dwarfed in comparison to this afternoon's demonstration. AFRAID OF PITTSBURG MONEY.

Ohio Democratic Managers Out in Another Batch of Financial Assertions.

COLUMBUS, Oct. 27.-[Special.]-The Democratic managers are endeavoring to make all the campaign material possible out of what they are pleased to style the "fat-frying" of the Pittsburg manufacturers. They have given out a second list of alleged contributions to the McKinley campaign fund. This money, it is asserted, was secured in Pittsburg by Mark Hanna, of Cleveland, last week. In this latest list the Spang interests are credited with a dona-tion of $3,500; Isabella Furnace Company, $2,500; Jones & Laughlins, $1,000; Carrie Furnace Company, $1,500; Singer Nimick & Co., $2,000, and the National Tube Works, $3,500.

Besides this, it is asserted that Carnegie has put up a total of $25,000, and that the interests have subscribed $10,000. Altogether the Democrats claim that a fund of $100,000 has been raised in Pittsburg for use on the floating vote of the Buckeye State, and they are endeavoring to make an issue out of the matter.

DANCING DENGUNCED

IN A SENSATIONAL SERMON BY A GEORGIA PREACHER.

He Declares There Is No Sin Greater-Only Pleasure of the Flesh in It-Attack on the Episcopal Church by the Methodist Divino.

AUGUSTA, GA., Oct. 27 .- [Special.]-Rev. W. W. Wadsworth, pastor of the fashionable Methodist Church here, has created a sensation by his denunciation of Augusta society. In his last sermon he declared that no sin was greater than the fashionable dances, because that was sure to lead to grosser sins. There was the pleasure of the flesh in it, he had no doubt, but it was an immoral pleasure. The dance was not fit for church people, but for what he cared, outsiders could dance and go to the de'il. The argument, he said, had been used that members of the Episcopal Church, and even the Episcopal Clergy, did not object to it.

'What is the Episcopal Church?" said he. "Why, there are not as many mem-bers of that church in the State of Georgia as there are Methodists in the city of At-lanta, and we all know what that church is. It is neutral in both politics and religion, although it might be said there are some few good people in it. We all know it as such an insignificant thing that it could not even an insignificant tining that it could not even get a college professor up here in Tennessee to accept the position as Bishop, when tendered on a silver waiter, and it is so small that even a man from the far West would not have it."

He declared the society women of Au-

In his sermon a week ago Mr. Wadsworth declared the Mayor an acknowledged patron of barrooms and a self-confessed gambler. TILDEN'S LAST ERROR.

His Will Finally Annulled by the Court of Appeals at Albany.

DECIDED IN FAVOR OF THE HEIRS.

Too Much Authority Delegated to Incorporated Trustees.

NOT REALLY THE TESTATOR'S WILL

ALBANY, Oct. 27 .- The Tilden will has een broken. The Court of Appeals to-day endered a decision in favor of the heirs in the case of George H. Tilden vs Andrew H. Green and others as executors, etc., appellants, and Laura B. Hazzard et al., respondents, affirming the judgment, with costs payable to all parties out of the estate. Samuel J. Tilden, Jr., was present when the decision was handed down, and was warmly congratulated by many present on the outcome of his fight.

Under the statute of distribution that egulates the inheritance of property, the issue of Mrs. Pelton and Henry A. Tilden, sister and brother of ex-Governor Tilden, come in for equal shares of the $8,000,000. Mrs. W. M. B. Hazzard is the only heir en Pelton's side, and thus is entitled to $4,000,-000. The other $4,000,000 are subject to the claims of the six children of Henry A. Tilden, namely, George H. Tilden, S. J. Tilden, Jr., Mrs. William B. Whittlesey, Mrs. Swan (a widow who lives in New Lebanon), Mrs. Willis S. Payne and Mrs. Schwartz, of New York City.

JUDGE BROWN'S DECISION. Judge Brown, in his opinion, says in sub-stance: "Unless within the rules which control courts in the construction of wills we can separate the provision in reference to the Tilden trust from the general direction as to the disposition of the testator's resid-uary estate, contained in the last clause of the thirty-fifth article, and find therein that a pre erential right to some or all of such estate is given to that institution when incorporated, and one which the Court, at the suit of said institution, could enforce within suit of said institution, could enforce within the two lives which limit the trust, we must, within the principle of similar cases, declare such provision of the will invalid."
According to the decision the corporation may be created in a form and manner satisfactory to the Trustees, but takes nothing nuless the executors, considering every cause and reason, deem it inexpedient to convey it to some or ail of the residuary estate.

In substance Mr. Tilden said to his executors: "I have determined to devote my esstate to charitable, educational and scientific purposes. I have formed no detailed plan. Now, that purpose can be executed, but under the law of New York it must be done through and by means of a corporation.

THE TILDEN TRUST INCORPORATION. "I request you to be caused to be incor-porated the Tilden Trust, and if you deem it expedient—that is, if you think it advisable and fit, the proper thing to do is, to convey to the institution all or such part of my residuary estate as you choose, and if you do not think that course advisable, then apdo not think that course advisable, then apply it to such charitable, educational and scientific purposes as in your judgment will most substantially benefit mankind."

Thus was left to the trustees the power to dispose of the estate within the limits defined and to select the objects that should be benefited, and it is impossible to read the thirty-fifth article and find therein any preferance in the way of a senerate rift in the thirty-fifth article and find therein any preference in the way of a seperate gift in power to the Tilden Trust, or to seperate that institution from testator's plan to devote his estate to charity. The trustees are free to select the Tilden Trust and cause it to be incorporated, or to choose any existing corporation as the instrument to carry out the testator's scheme.

THE WILL'S FATAL DEFECT. Again, no event is named upon the hap-pening of which any estate is limited to the Tilden Trust. The authority to endow the Tilden Trust, if that should be deemed expedient by the trustees, was not a separate power distinct from the purpose to devote ate to chari the estate to charitable uses, but was inci-dental to the testator's scheme and involved therein. While we may admit the testator expressed a preference for a corporation that should bear his name, he conferred no right upon that institution. The person who should be benefited by the will, and the par-ticular institution that should administer the fund, was left to the selection of the trustees.

We are of opinion, therefore, that the 35th article of the will does not confer separate power upon the trustees, and that an ulterior provision cannot be eliminated from the will without destroying the scheme that the testator designed for the disposal of his estate. As the selection of the trust was delegated absolutely to the trustees there is no person or corporation who could demand any part of the estate or maintain an action to compel the trustees to execute the power to compel the trustees to execute the power in their favor. This is the fatal defect in the will. The will of the trustees is made controlling, and not the will of the testator. Such an authority is in contravention of the statutes of wills.

Simon, of Berlin, the seller. The library contains 280,000 volumes and 120,000 dissertations in all languages. Among these are 200 manuscripts from the eighth to the nineteenth century, 16,000 volumes of paleography, 25,000 journals of academies and periodicals, 65,000 volumes Greek and Roman archeology, 65,000 Greek and Roman classics, 2,400 Greek and Latin suthors of modern times, 2,000 books on Greek and Roman phitology and grammar, 2,000 volumes of general linguistics, 3,000 volumes of modern linguistics, 2,500 volumes history, 1,000 volumes of illustrated works of art, 5,000 volumes of physics, astronomy and mathematics, and 5,000 vol-tronomy and mathematics, and 5,000 volumes of natural history.

President Harper obtained an option on the library when in Berlin until November 1 and at a meeting of the Board of Trustees this afternoon, Major H. A. Rust, Martin A. Ryerson, Charles L. Hutchinson and H. H. Kohlsaat subscribed enough money to purchase the library, and Prof. Harper cabled the owners in Berlin that he would take the library. The price paid is not take the library. The price paid is not made public. The catalogue price is between $600,000 and $700,000, and the estimated book seller's price, $300,000.

A Four-Musted Vessel Founders in Plain Sight With All on Board.

BOSTON, Oct. 27.-[Special.] - Captain Chute, of the British schooner Seraphim, which arrived at this port to-day from Bear River, N. S., reports that on Saturday, when his vessel was 35 miles south of Matiwhen his vessel was 35 miles south of Matinicus, he saw a four-masted schooner founder with all hands. The Seraphim had been in company with the ill-fated vessel all that day. She first sighted her at daylight, the four-master being about a half mile distant from the Seraphim. At 3 P. M. the four-master stood to the eastward, apparently making good weather, notwithstanding the violent gale and high sea. The Seraphim soon after stood off in the same direcaphim soon after stood off in the same direc-

At 4 o'clock a passenger on the Seraphim noticed that the four-master was flying signals of distress. Captain Chute made all possible haste to reach her. In the effort the deck load shifted, starting some of the stanchions, which compelled him to leave the Seraphim for her own safety. After a short delay in securing the deck load from doing further damage the Seraphim was again headed toward the distress signals. Before she had gone far the four-master was seen to take a sudden lurch to starboard, and gradually disappeared, going down bow first. On reaching the point where the vessel was seen to founder, not a sign of her was visible, nor was there any wreekage of any description to be seen in the vicinity.

THE regular winter drill of the Third Dis trict was started yesterday in the old Mammoth Skating Rink. Captain Stewart is in charge of the men, and will go through a thorough inspection as to drill and uni-

Profanity Will Be Less, Now.

An idea as old as the hills is gaining recognition now, after having failed per-sistently in the past—the "coat shirt." This is a garment which in most respects does not differ from the ordinary dress shirt. It has no claim to novelty in appearshirt. It has no claim to novelty in appearance when it is worn. The advantage is the putting on. The garment does not go over the head, but is adjusted in the same way as an ordinary coat. It is closed behind, and entirely open in front. It is being put upon the market this year, and its future looks brighter than ever before. In swelldom it is not unknown already, but it has never gained wide popularity.
