A CRUISER LAUNCHED.

Baltimore Goes Wild Over the Christening of the Detroit by

THE CONTRACTOR'S LITTLE GIRL.

A Steel Vessel Which Is Among the Very Largest of Her Class.

HER ARMAMENT AND HER STEAM POWER

BALTIMORE, Oct. 28.—The United States steel cruiser No. 10 was launched from the ways of the Columbian Iron Works and Dry Dock Company this afternoon. In pursuance of the order of Hon. Benjamin Tracy, Secretary of the Navy, the boat was christened Detroit by her sponsor, Miss Florence N. Malster, the 4%-year-old which is building the cruiser.

The ceremony of putting the boat over-board was attended with success, the Detroit's birth being witnessed by 3,000 persons, including spectators on land and water. The shapeley steel hull of the cruiser occupied the undivided attention of thousands of eyes, which were riveted upon her deck from the dock and surround-

Fluttering aloft from temporary masts was a rainbow of colored bunting decorating the cruiser from stem to stern post. The ships in view afforded favorable points for getting a sight of the cruiser, and their decks were crowded with friends of the officers, while aloft the crews were perchance strong out along the harbor looking down from the

THE SHIP BEGINS TO MOVE. '

At 3:40 there was a tremendous roar of voices as the graceful hull began to move, slowly at first, and then more rapidly, until she floated in the waters of the Patapsco as gracefully as a swan. At the instant of her moving the might shout, "There she goes," was echoed from all parts of the water front. The spar deck of the craiser was alive with men and a few women.

The christening was done from a gaily decorated stand under the bow, and little Florence Malster, with her bottle of champagne, stood surrounded by her proud father and Mrs. Henrietta Hill, Mrs. Margaret Her and Mrs. Margaret Jones, of Philadelplain, Naval Constructor Varney, United States Navy, who has superintended the construction of the boat from the time her keel was laid, and Commander Yates, United

The uproar welcoming the new comer in the water was deafening. It seemed that every steam whistle in the vicinity was cocked and primed for the event, and when the signal was given by the expectant tugs they sounded forth in every conceivable note. Two tugs picked up the Detroit as she was still and hauled her alongside the fitting-out dock, and the ceremony of launching was over. The Detroit's sister, No. 9, will follow her in about a month, when it is expected she will be named the Mobile.

A DESCRIPTION OF THE CRAFT. Cruiser No. 10, as the Detroit has generally been designated, is one of triplets, two of which are being built at Baltimore and the third at Boston. They are known as the 2,000-ton cruisers, a size larger than the Yorktown class. They are also to be of much higher speed, as their machinery is to develop 5,400 horse power—2,000 more than was calculated for the Concord and Bennington, and which should drive them at the rate of 18 knots per hour. Their length is feet; beam, 37 feet; draught, 141/2 feet; rig, two-masted secooner, spreading 6,289 nare feet of canvas.

The normal coal supply for ordinary service is 200 tons, but the bunker arrangement is such that 435 tons can be carried, which will not only add greatly to her abilwhich will not only add greatly to her ability to keep out an enemy's projectiles, but will admit of her steaming almost 10,000 miles at a speed of 18 knots per hour. The armament is eight 4-inch and two 6-inch rapid fire breech loading rifles, the first of the type that have been designed. The larger caliber guns are roomted on central pivot carriages, one forward and the other aft; the realler guns are in snonsons, four on each smaller guns are in sponsons, four on each side. The secondary battery is composed of ten rapid-fire six-pounders and three-pound-ers and revolving cannon. Six torpedo ports are fitted, but the type of torpedo to be used has not yet been decided. The motive power is furnished by two triple expansion engines of the vertical inverted cylinder direet acting type, built to make 185 revolu-

Burglars at Midnight Rob an Express Car in the Messenger's Absence.

ATCHISON, KAN., Ott. 28.-The express car of a Central Branch Railway train was robbed at Leonora just after midnight this morning. George Garner, the express messenger, runes from Downes to Leonora. When the train arrived at Leonora at 12:25 this morning, Garner hurried out to help switch the train, leaving the conductor in the car. As the car passed the station the conductor alighted to transact some business there and the car was then left.

When the train was ready to proceed on its way, the express messenger discovered that the safe was missing. It was in its place all right when he left the car, he says, and the conductor says the same. It is supobbers entered it and threw out the safe, parried it to a wagon which they had in waiting and made off with it. The safe is supposed to have contained a large amount of money. No clew.

Another is famous because her father or husband is famous because her father or husband is rich, talented or in a high position. The success I speak of is not accidental, but is the reward of merit. It is more than re-ward; it is merit itself. A success that is worthy of the name may and must shine, and its light is the glitter of the diamond, and not the sheen of some glass imitation. It comes in its rich fullness to comparatively few, not because it is unattainable by many, but that they do not seek it, or seek it by misleading methods.

"There are thousands of women endowed with gifts and surrounded by advantages that ought to make their lives grandly successful, and yet they are to an extent failures.

"Success for women is of different kinds. The field has been greatly enlarged, and women are embracing every opportunity. But their efforts are experimental, too. If women choose business either as employer or as employe, let them pursue their work with judgment, skill and success. If they are to become teachers, let them be perfect teachers. If they wish to be journalists or authors, there is before them a "Success for women is of different kinds. nalists or authors, there is before them a world of hard study. A successful woman combines generalization and detail. Women are apt to be great in detail, and not as great in deep and broadly laid plans. Let them look backward and forward and on all sides. Women, too, must be able to hold what has once been attained. Many are crowded and crowd themselves into positions they cannot hold."

Kentucky's New Constitution Knocked Out. LOUISVILLE, Oct. 28 .- Judge Montfort, of the Franklin Circuit Court, to-day rendered a decision in the suit brought by ex-Commissioner of Internal Revenue Walter Evans to enjoin the printing of the new constitution. Evans claims that the revision of the constitution by the convention after the vote by the people was improper and rendered the new instrument void. Judge Montfort says the only way the revised constitution can be set aside is by another convention elected by the people. The case will go to the Court of Appeals.

Early last spring the steam heating apparatus got out of order and was allowed to remain in that condition, notwithstanding the fact that the matter was laid before the Board of Trustees several times. Yesterday the matter was reported to Humane Agent Campbell, who made an investigation. After a searching examination of the nine patients and nurses he discovered that there had been scarcely any heat in the institution since the cold weather set in, and that the patients were suffering from the

Michael McNulty, who has been a patient in the hospital several months, is now lying at the point of death with pneumonia which the physicians say was caused by there being no fire in the building. Campbell says he could prosecute the Board of Trustees for cruelty, but he had decided not to push the matter himself. He will, however, report to Governor Pattison, who he considers the proper person to act in the matter, inasmuch as the hospital is a State

A POWDER MILL BLOWN UP.

Two Lives Lost, and a Shock Like an Earthquake Felt for Miles. YOUNGSTOWN, Oct. 28 .- [Special.]-The glazing mill of the Ohio Powder Company, five miles from here, blew up at 8 o'clock this morning, instantly killing Benjamin Kirange and Joseph Maags, the only employes in the building at the time. Inspector Robert Dainty visited the glaze mills ten minutes before the explosion, and found Kirange and Maags properly attending to their duties. None of the machinery was in operation at the time, and the cause of the explosion is therefore unknown. Kirsnge was blown 500 feet and his dismembered trunk struck against a tree and fell to the ground, leaving shreds of flesh hanging to the branches. Search was made for his head, which had been blown off at the shoulders, but up to this evening it had not been found.

Mags was hurled 400 feet in another direction, and the blackened, burned remains were found denuded of clothing. The glaze mill is located in a thick forest. and the surrounding trees were cut down, torn and twisted as if struck by a cyclone. At the time the mill contained 520 kegs of powder, and the force hurled pieces of the powder, and the force hurled pieces of the machinery two miles away. Farmer Altagerber, living two miles from the mill, heard the explosion, and as he went to open a door it was crashed in by a heavy piece of timber from the wreck. Considerable damage was done here by broken glass and chimneys. Near Leadville shaft, seven miles from the explosion, considerable glass was broken. In the city all rushed into the streets fearing an earthquake had occurred. streets fearing an earthquake had occurred. The loss of machinery, building and powder is placed at $80,000. Orders were issued this afternoon to rebuild the mill. The company had the remains of the two employes cared for, and will pay the funeral expenses.

Murderer Mariatt Sentenced.

Youngstown, Oct. 28.—[Special.]—Ira Marlatt, convicted of murder in the second degree for the killing of Barak Ashton, was to-day sentenced to be imprisoned for life in the penitentiary by Judge Johnson. Marlatt demanded his counsel to file a motion for a new trial, which they refused to do, believing that if granted he would be convicted of murder in the first degree and executed. When Marlatt was asked by the Court if he had anything to say before receiving sentence, he launched out in invec-tive against his counsel and the jury, charged witnesses with perjury, asserting that he was insane, and that it was wrong to imprison such a man for life. He spoke for nearly three hours, detailing the crime and claiming that he had sufficient provo-cation. It is believed that he will attempt suicide, as he asserts that he would rather be hanged than enter the penitentiary.

Fighting a Railroad With a Hatchet. YOUNGSTOWN, Oct. 28 .- [Special.] - A lively fight occurred to-day between William Cullinan and employes of the Erie Railway in regard to a right of way in the western part of the city. The company claims title by purchase to the property, and erected a fence along the line. This was torn down by Cullinan, armed with an ax, who claims the property. Later Culli-nan secured a hatchet, and at last report was standing guard over the property, threatening to use it upon anyone who at-tempted to build a fence over the property.

NEW YORK, Oct. 28 .- Among the passeners on board the Majestic, which arrived here to-day, was Dr. Walter Kempster, special Immigrant Commissioner, who has made an exhaustive investigation of the Russian phase of the subject. Concerning his trip and its results, Dr. Kempster said he could say nothing until the official report was made.

"I will speak on one subject, however," said he. "It is with reference to the Germans who are being expelled from Russia in great numbers. This is being done in spite of the fact that there has been no akase issued ordering the expulsions of Germans. They are being forced out by a system which people in this country cannot understand A great many Germans live in the neighborhood of Odessa and Kief. They have lived there for the past 100 years. It is one of the best farming communities in Russin.

"Hitherto these small villages have been allowed to elect their own President. The petty affairs of the communities have been allowed to pass through the hands of these presidents without objection.

PETTY PERSECUTION BEGINS.

After the election an order was issued that hereafter all persons woman of intense and fervid passions, and so permitted Mme. Hauk to exhibit should, before proceeding to enter on their office, "Kiss the Russian Christ," All these Germans, being Roman Catholics, have naturally declined to do this, hence her dramatic power to the full. As a piece her dramatic power to the full. As a piece of acting alone Mme. Hauk's performance was superb, and to this her voice added another triumph. M. In the drinking song especially he earned an enthusiastic encore. they are being debarred from exercising their time-honored functions because they refuse to enter the Greek Church.

"Another illustration of persecution is this: These communities have always been permitted to build their own churches and repair them. About the time the first order was issued another came out which required the Germans to submit all plans of new buildings and repairs or alterations in add buildings and repairs or alterations in old first to the Holy Synod, which in these communities is represented by the priest of the Russian Greek Church, for approval. If it is the intention to build a synod. If it is the intention to build a church or anything costing $200 or $300 the Synod recommends that a building be creeted costing $2,000 or $3,000. If repairs to the extent of $100 are required the estimates are required to reach $1,000. This, of course, puts an effectual stop to anything like public improvement. Mascagni's opera was preceded by the first act of "Carmen," in which Mme. Hauk was of course delightful in her famous role. Mme. Louise Natali as famous role. Mme. Louise Natali as Michaela had a good opportunity to display the delicious qualities of her voice, and its power, especially in the duet with Don Jose, which was encored. In the latter role M. "Then here is another point. The Germans living in Russia have always taught their children in the Russian language, but their children in the Russian language, but a part of the curriculum has been devoted, an hour a day, to the German language. There are no public schools in Russia, I may mention, by the way. An order has now been issued that hereafter no Germans shall be taught in the schools. This is the method of persecution. It is the same method by which the persecution of the Hebrews commenced. It is nothing more than religious. menced. It is nothing more than religious persecution.

on Saturday alternoon last nights programme will be repeated, namely, the first act of "Carmen," and "Cavalleria Rusticana;" both with the same cast as last night, including Mme. Hauk, Mme. Natali and M. Montariol. To-night "Faust" will be given with Mme. Tavary, Del Puente, and M. Ricci (as Mephistopheles), who hasnot yet been heard, in the cast. persecution.

"The consequence H, the Germans who are living wretched! where are now selling out their small buildings at any price and leaving Russia by the hundreds. Many are going to the Argentine Republic while others are coming here. It is a most desirable class of immigration, these persecuted Germans. They are all brawny farmers, hard-fisted men. I saw a great many of them and stayed with them."

A NEW THEATER LOST.

By Way of a Change Manager Gus Hartz Will Buy, But Not Build-He Had an Option on Valuable Property Near the

Until Saturday last it was within the ounds of possibility that another new theater would be built in Pittsburg. On that day Manager Gus Hartz gave up an option he had beld upon a desirable site for a theater on Sixth street. The site was within a stone's throw of the Bijou and the Alvin theaters, and Mr. Hartz has had it for three years past, the price of the option being, it is said, $500. Mr. Hartz spent Saturday last in Pittsburg, and said to a representative of THE DISPATCH before he left town: "After a careful survey of the ground here I have come to the conclusion that Pittsburg has as many theaters as it wants or can support. Possibly there are too many now. Anyhow I do not think it worth while to carry out my original plan of building a first-class theater on the land which I had the privilege of buying at a reasonable figure. Mr. Davis has built a theater which New York might be proud to possess and there is no money new to possess, and there is no money now to be made in theater-building in Pittsburg. I should have liked to own a theater here, but I guess I'll have to wait a while."

Mr. Hartz did not explain what he meant by waiting a while, but a well-informed theatrical man said yesterday: "I expect Mr. Hartz will have a theater in Pittsburg before very long, but he will not have to build it. He is very anxious to get a foothold here, and understands the situation in Pittsburg thoroughly. He gave up his option on the Sixth street property because he could not think of excelling the Alvin Theater, and secondly because he is looking out for another theatrical property in Pitts-

"Which theater is for sale?" "That would be telling a good deal more than is advisable," was the non-committal reply, "but I can say that theatrical matters are rapidly nearing a climax in Pitts-burg, and one of the theaters is about to change hands or I am very much mistaken."

Gus Hartz is a manager of enterprise and ability. He manages the Euclid avenue Opera House in Cleveland, and the Youngstown Opera House. Last season he managed Richard Mansfield, a terrific undertakaged Richard Mansheid, a terrific undertaking, and he has had a good deal of experience in other theatrical ventures. His name has been mentioned often before in connection with projected theaters in this city. Mr. Hartz has no connection with the alleged syndicate which contemplates erecting a theater on the site of the old postoffice on Fifth avenue.

Charged With Receiving Stolen Goods Alf. Hardy was committed to jail by Alderman McMasters yesterday on a charge of false pretense made by A. C. Ruby. The allegation is that Hardy was one of two persons who sold a stolen horse to Ruby for $10 and represented that it was their own. The horse in question was stolen from Charles Schaff, of McKee's Rocks. Schaff has made an information against Ruby before 'Squire Miles Bryan, accusing Ruby of receiving stolen goods, he, it is alleged, having bought the horse. James Perkins, who is also said to know something about the horse-stealing, is in jail under a charge of assisting in stealing the animal.

The Cashier Knew Her Signature

August Danner, an Allegheny physician of 242 Federal street, is under bonds to answer an information before Alderman Me-Masters, accusing him of forgery. The in-formation was made by Emma A. Shepard, of Ridgewood avenue. She alleges that Dan-ner forged her name to a check of $2,000 issued to her by E. W. Schmit, Cashier of the First National Bank, of Allegheny. The check was issued on May 21 last, and it is said was presented by Danner at the bank with the forged endorsement for the purpose of ob-taining the money. The eashier was familiar with the true signature, and Danner did not get the money.

ages, now so familiar to the pub-Mic, and packed them with the best and purest drinking teas we could buy in China. These package teas met with great opposition from the trade, and we were laughed at, We lost money. Then we decided to explain the goodness of the tea to the public by advertising it in our city, where we had been known so long. The public tried them on the faith of our word, and HE-No TEA became a great local success.

Its fame and trade then extended to other cities.

As soon as the tea-men discovered our success, they who had ridiculed us the most, began to imitate HE-No TEA.

They were blind, they thought the package sold the tea, and they put inferior teas in packages so like He-No, that an old lady without her specs could not tell one from the other, thus casting discredit on all package teas. Many grocers gave them up, and spoke against HE-No to their customers.

Still HE-No kept steadily on, fighting misrepresentations, till by its own goodness it won phenomenal success in St. Louis, New Orleans, and other cities remote from its starting point, Baltimore.

At every Exposition, where it was shown, it received the highest awards. Experience teaches that when the people once find out for themselves the qualities of HE-No, its permanent success is assured.

AFRAID OF CONSUMPTION.

His Catarrh Reached His Lungs.

Mr. Andrew I. Montgomery lives at 132 Washington street, this city, and is employed

Ethe printing establishment of H. L. McGaw & Son, proprietors and publishers of the West End Record. Hear what he says of the Catarrh and Dyspepsia Institute, its physicians and mode of treatment. "I think I had in grippe last winter, although my catarrhal troubles dated back to about two years ago. My head had a stuffed-up feeling in the morning, my right ear often pained me, had pain in my sides, could not sleep well and felt tired and languid. The tough mucua that dropped into my throat was difficult to raise. My appetite failed, had belching of gas after eating, and my stomach was so weak I had to be careful of my diet. The disease finally reached my lungs so that I often felt soreness in my chest. Not being able to find relief and gradually getting worse, I became atraid I would run into consumption unless I soon obtained help."

"Reading of so many cures made by the physicians of the Catarrh and Dyspepsia Institute, and that they were catarrh specialists, I consulted them. They made no big promises, but referred me to others who had been cured of conditions worse than mine. This gave me some hope, and finding their terms reasonable and within my reach, I took a course of treatment and became cured."

"I now feel well and strong as every. I have since induced several of my friends to go to these specialists, for I feel very grateful for what they have done for me. I shall always recommend these physicians as worthy the name of specialists and shall be giad to further describe my case to anyone who may call at my home.
