of the trouble are looked for.
Yesterday a well-attended mass meeting was held at Findleyville, which was addressed by President Costello. When he returned last night he was reticent about talking of miners' matters. In speaking of the meeting he said: "There were 500 miners in attendance. The men all seemed firm and promised a big turnout at to-day's convention."

As to the outcome of the convention, Mr. Costello had nothing to say, more than that the men were willing to keep up the fight and carry it on to the inevitable end. He also said that no operators had been asked to be admitted to the convention, and he did not think they would want to, as he thought they did not have any compromises

The McKeesport steel operators are now feeling confident that the strike is vertually over and they are getting their usual amount of coal on hand, and they are now going ahead as before the strike. At Scott liaven the miners in W. S. Scott's mines

CAPPET BEATERS ORGANIZE

A Free Fight Follows a Hill Meeting of Union No. 1

Carpet Beaters' Union No. 1 will be the name of a "hill" organization, provided the scheme of one of the depressed gentlemen of color is carried to a successful end. The man with the brilliant idea is George Washington Franklia Cornvallis. He was a slave before the oldest character in Uncle Tom's Cabin came into life and made himself famous in ante bel-lum days as a fighter for his master. He afterwards went through the war and claims the distinction of being the only biack man who ever called Stonewall Jackson a liar to his face. He still maintains the war-like spirit of younger days and thinks his glory will be complete if he can only form an organization of the mee in his own traff to know out the worth.

"We've been cutting prices too much in the past," he said, in forcible negro dialect, the bast," he said, in forcible negro dialect, to a dozen of his companions at an open raccing on Ruchs hill last night. "I am in tayor of organizing," he continued. "We ought toget twice as much for knocking. the dust out of carpet as we do. I am in favor of charging so much a vard and hiring a secretary who has got enough education to count the yards. On account of my old are and good learning I think I would be the proper person to select for secretary." A chorus of objections stopped the flow-ent that every one present wanted to be secretary. The free discussion that followed was given a great deal more freedom than the colored race itself. When last heard of the members of the union were pounding each other with as much force as they hammered carpet. Meantime Mr. Cornwallis is trying to get together a more peaceable crowd for his union.

THE NEW SCALE SIGNED.

Skilled Work Gets Big Money, While Other Departments Are Cut Down.

The Edgar Thomson Steel Works, of Braddock, presented the scale to the men and it was signed by nearly all the men. The scale will be used for the next three years. The skilled workmen in the finishing department were given a large increase of wages, while in the rolling and converting departments there was a corresponding decrease. The scale on the whole is con sidered satisfactory by the men. Next will come the adjustment of the wages of the blast furnacemen. It is not known when this scale will be presented, but it is thought reductions also will be the rule there. The firm has immense contracts on hand, and the usual shut down about Christmas will be very short this year.

One Boycott Settled.

The printers are now making a new move in their strike. Yesterday they started committees to canvass work for the union offices, and particularly to work against the non-union employers. They also claim to have won their boycott against the Repub-lican and Democratic tickets. They say that both parties have thrown away the first tickets, which were printed in non-union offices and have had them printed in union offices. At the headquarters of both parties the officials yesterday said the tickets had been printed in union offices.

Four years later he was elected to Congress by the Republicans. He was honored by successive re-elections, and served until 1865, resigning his seat to accept the position of Naval Officer in the Boston Castom House. Less than a year after President Johnson removed him and he returned to Congress for another term. Since that he had been Pension Agent, and later a practicing attorney. His term of service in the National House of Representatives was during the most troublesome time in the history of the country. Mr. Gooch was among the most active of the Republicans on the floor of the House and in the committee room, and made himself a power in the dark days of the Rebeillon by the patriotic services he rendered. He was Chairman on the part of the House during the four years of the favestimations of the Congressional Committee on the Conduct of the War. His conduct of the investigation of the Fort Pillow massacre was very able. During his term of service in Congress he was a keen debater.

Rolled Armor Pronounced Superior to Hammered Plates.

WHAT CARNEGIE'S WORKS CAN DO

The Recent Test at Indian Head Not Entirely Satisfactory.

WELL POSTED WITNESS ON THE STAND

A gentleman connected with one of the great industries of Western Pennsylvania and an expert on armor plate and kindred subjects, in an interview last evening spoke as follows:

"The account given in the papers of the armor plate test at Indian Head last Saturday appears on the face to have a strong coloring in favor of the Bethlehem Iron Company. This may be readily accounted for when it is known that prejudice exists in some quarters against rolled armor plates as compared to the hammered plate of such firms as the Schneider Bros., of Creusot, France, and latterly the Bethlehem Iron Company, of Bethlehem, Pa. It was fully proven by the test of Saturday last that the Pittsburg rolled plate is immensely superior to that of the forged or hammered plate of the Bethlehem Company.

The Composition Considered.

"To appreciate this fact it is only necessary to consider the composition of the three plates that were tested last Saturday. The Carnegies submitted one low carbon nickel steel plate whose surface was not treated by the Harvey process of surface carbonization, while the Bethlehem Company submitted two plates; one high carbon and one low carbon nickel steel treated by the Harvey process. A careful treated by the Harvey process. A careful analysis of the various shots fired, and their relative effects upon the three plates will convince any intelligent man that the low carbon nickel steel of the Carnegies was superior from every point of view. Take the first shot fired at the high carbon nickel steel plate of of the Bethlehem Company and the second shot fired at the low carbon nickel steel plate of the Carnegies carbon nickel steel plate of the Carnegies and we find that the effects produced were almost identical. This, in itself, was of vast importance when we remember that one was a high carbon and the other a low carbon plate; and if the tests were made for the purpose only of determining the quality of the material used in composition of the plates, the rolled armor of the Pittsburg concern would easily carry off the honors. But it is not generally understood that the test was made for the purpose of determining the difference between rolled and forged armor.

A Successful Demonstration.

A Successful Demonstration

A Successful Demonstration.

There is no question now that the firm of Carnegie, Phipps & Co. have demonstrated to the world that they can, successfully, make the armor required to sheathe our monitors and cruisers as well. But one thing is certain, and that is, that the Pittsburg firm has mighty obstacles to surmount and a mountain of prejudice to climb in this competition. There is a deep-rooted prejudice existing among the manufacturers of the East, and it is known that predictions were made that the method adopted by Carnegie, Phipps & Co. for turning out the armor for our navy would never prove sucarmor for our navy would never prove suc-

"In view of the results obtained at Indian Head by the competitive test of last Saturday, all doubts must of necessity be now dispelled, and I venture to predict that when the series of tests will have been concluded, Pittsburg steel will be on top.

Their Costly Plant. "Carnegie, Phipps & Co, have expended the enormous sum of $2,000,000 for the erection of a plant for the sole purpose of making armor for our navy, and every patriotic and public-spirited citizen in this great iron and steel center of the world will rejoice at its success. More than this, in the event of the United States going to war with any country—and there is a possibility of her doing so at the present time—the Carnegies would at once place their entire industrial establishments, having a total capacity of 10,000 tons finished output per day. "In the time of war the Bethlehem Iron

"In the time of war the Bethlehem Iron Company would be at a disadvantage. They would be unable to push any order they might receive, as the forging of armor under a steam hammer is of necessity very slow work and confiderable time is required to forge a single plate. Carnegie, Phipps & Co., on the other hand, with their immense canacity and their method of rolling could capacity and their method of rolling could easily turn out sufficient material to make easily turn out sufficient material to make and equip any ordinary gunboat or torpedo vessel required for quick utility. "At all events Pittsburg has nothing to fear from the competition of the Eastern firms, such as the Bethlehem Company, which is backed by the Creusot Works and other foreign capitalists with Sir George Whetmore at its head organized to rake in some of the shekels Uncle Sam is going to expend on his new naval fleet."

KAUFMANNS' GREAT NOVEMBER SALE!

November is the great overcoat month of the year. Many dealers, taking advantage of the brisk demand for overcoats during the next 30 days, put their prices up to high-water mark, and reduce them sometime in December or January, after nine-tenths of the people have supplied their wants. The diametrically opposite is the case in our store. We believe in selling onr goods the cheapest, not when the season is nearly over and the demand has died out, but RIGHT Now while the people are mostly in need of them. As far as the prices are con-cerned, then, you can rest assured on finding ours from one-quarter to one-third below all competition. On the point of economy you cannot, therefore, afford to buy your overcoat outside of Kaufmanns'. But if economy be not the only object—if the extent of the assortment, the quality of the goods, the beauty of the styles, etc., are to be taken into consideration by the buyer (and they certainly should be) then there is every reason in the world why the buyer should patronize Kaufmanns' store. For right here, at the acknowledged clothing headquarters, will be found the largest, finest and most fashionable variety of Men's Overcoats ever exhibited in Pittsburg. There is not a new style or popular shade or reliable material that is not shown here:

Meltons, Kerseys, Cheviots, Cassimeres. Homespuns, Beavers, Elysians, Chinchillas, Montagnacs.

The diversity of our prices of overcoats is fully as great as that of the styles. Our extremes are $5 and $30. At and between these two prices we show thousands of overcoats—every one fashionable, desirable, cheap.
