THE BALLOT ILLEGAL.

Allegheny's Indebtedness Not Voted on According to Law.

A PROTEST CAN BE SUSTAINED.

The Tickets Were Wonderfully and Mysteriously Made.

THE LAW GOVERNING SUCH CASES

Suspicion, doubt and visions of political trickery flitted through the minds of many Allegheny voters at the election on Tuesday. But without reason, however The prime cause of this feeling was due to the voting on the "bonded indebtedness" issue.

Tickets for all the offices from State down to county were as plentiful as snow flakes in Siberia. The one absorbing topic to the Northside citizen, however, was "Will the bonded indebtedness be increased?" In the contest the nays had it by an overwhelming

In the first place it is alleged the majority of voters misunderstood the ticket as framed by the election officers, and many did not vote for or against the bond issue

There were four separate tickets as fol-

"Street improvements, $500,000;" "Water extension, $200,000;" "Public lighting, $100,000;" "Opening a street in flooded dis-

Style of Opposition Ticket.

On the outside of each ticket for and against was the sentence or caption, "Increase the debt." On the inside of the same slip of paper was "No increase of debs." and signifying below what it referred to whether water, lights, streets, etc., with the amount of bonds intended to be issued. That was the style of the tickets which were against the increase.

On the other hand, the ones intended to be voted for the indebtedness were thus printed: The back contained the same caption, "Increase the debt," as appeared on the others, while the inside had the words, "Debt may be increased" with the same purposes stated as above.

The outside and inside type were both in pica caps, and on a whole was very mislead-ing to the average voter. Not only to the common everyday uneducated voter, but to men of known brain power and keen percep-tion. Clerk of Councils Dilworth framed the ticket, and he was very bitter and ironi-cal in his reference to "those smart people who think they know it all," and he got down the law on the question, which he quoted for the benefit of THE DISPATCH porter and the public.

The Law on the Subject

It is act 212, passed Jane 9, 1891, and en-titled "An act to regulate the increasing of indebtedness of a municipality." The clause which bears upon the subject at issue specifies the following: "Such election shall be held at the place, time and under the same regulations as provided by law for the holding of municipal elections, and it shall be the duties of the inspectors and judges of such elections to receive tickets, either written or printed, from electors qualified under the Constitution of this State to vote in such district, tickets to be labeled on the outside, "Increase the debt," and containing on the inside, "No increase of debt," or "Debt may be increased; also briefly the purpose and amount of increase; also hriefly the purpose and amount of increase, and to deposit said tickets in a box pro-vided for that purpose."

"Such election shall be held at the place,

"Such election shall be held at the place, time and under the same regulations as provided by law for the holding of municipal elections," the law says, and according to this the voting for and against the indebtedness was illegal, as the contest on Tuesday was not a municipal election.

Notwithstanding the overwhelming majority by which the increase was defeated, if those who yated for it care to protect if those who voted for it care to protest, they can easily do so, and be upheld in the move by the statutes.

The next municipal election will be held on the second Tuesday of November, when the matter should, to satisfy the law, have been voted upon.

It Is Clearly Illegal. William B. Rodgers, ex-City Attorney of Allegheny, and one of the authorities on municipal matters, is THE DISPATCH'S legal informant on the point. He, like a hundred others, failed to understand the ticket at first, but when the law was read to him he said the act was new and he was not familiar with it. After hearing it he read it over again it. After hearing it, he read it over again carefully, and then said: "It was illegal anyway, aside from the badly arranged and misleading features of the ticket. It is specifically stated in the act that the voting specincarly stated in the act that the voting shall take place at the time of the munici-pal election. I think that is plain enough, Tuesday's election was a State and county affair, and should have been confined to those offices and issues."

Mr. Rogers says he was confused when he looked at the ticket for and against bonds. He said, however, that in the Fifth ward the caption of the tickets had been torn off. Senator James S. Rutan also can be quoted about as the former gentleman. Anquoted about as the former gentleman. Another potent feature which the Senator raises is that there is no reason why one man could not vote, if he chose, four votes for one issue, for instance, if he lived in a neighborhood where it would beneficial to him to have street improvements, what is to prevent him from voting four times on that one matter. The ticket is very inconsistent and conflicting, and should be modified or changed so as to make it more comprehensive.

A number of other attorneys who live in Allegheny said practically the same thing.

WHY IT WAS DEFEATED. The Idea of Increasing Allegheny's Bonded Indebtedness Does Not Meet With Approval-Recent Disclosures in Municipal Affairs Help to Defeat the Measure

The people of Allegheny City do not seem to care to increase their bonded indebtedness for improvements, by the manner in which they snowed the matter under at the polls Tuesday. Many ideas were advanced as the reasons, as the returns came in Tues-day night. Yesterday C. W. Gerwig, a member of the Finance Committee of Allegheny Councils, expressed the following opinions as to the defeat of the measure. "It is the general disposition of the people of Allegheny to vote against an increase of dept. This fact has been learned by experience of former years. This disposition was helped along by the recent disclosure in the city affairs, so that the confidences of the people were shaken in the municipal powers of the city. Then there was not suffimeasure and the elections. The meetings held to explain the question to the public were failures. Many matters were dis-cussed that did not have any bearing on the issue and were misleading to the people. There was a great cry that the whole thing was the pet scheme of some Councilmen, who wanted to make a large stake. who wanted to make a large stake. That was nonsense. The ordinance was passed at the request of a number of the best citizens of the city who wanted improvements on the streets, water, light, etc. The Council considered the matter carefully and found the needed improvements in these directions could not be made with the present appropriations and thought it better to issue bonds and let posterity pay for it. If we had not done this an additional tax rate would have had to be levied and tax rate would have had to be levied and then the improvements could not have been made satisfactorily.

"The greatest surprise to the friends of the issue is the manner in which the citizens of the flooded district voted against the increase. It was thought to be the greatest benefit to them, for the streets are in bad shape, and one of the sewers, which is buried 30 feet under ground, is liable to cave in at any time, making a great expense to the city and property holders.

"Another matter that was fought hard was the extension of the water mains. I think this showed poor policy, as the amount of revenue received from water rents in a year or two would have paid the ost of extension. "The matter will now rest until next February, when the appropriation for im-provements is made, and if it is not large enough to carry the expenses along, a higher tax will be levied. This would seem to be more in accordance with the wishes of the public than to float bonds and let our posterity settle for them."

DEATHS HERE AND ELSEWHERE.

Captain Nathaniel Richards. Captain Nathaniel Richards, a famous whaling captain and the oldest native of New London, died at his home there Sunday, aged 93 years and 7 months, lie was born on the first day of the month and his death took place on Sunday, November 1. Early in life Captain Richards made many death took place on Sunday, November I. Early in life Captain Richards made many whaling voyages from New London and other ports. His last voyage was made on the ship North America, owned by Williams & Haven, of New London. After having made a fortune in whaling the Captain lost most of it in investments. The Captain had many thrilling adventures at sea. In 1821 he sailed in a Stonington brig to the South Shetlands and a few months later cruised off the coast of Chile for hair seal. The cruise was a very profitable one, but on the day when the North American was about to sail for home a band of Chilelean soldiers rushed upon one of the boat's crews just as it was about to leave shore for the brig, took the sailors prisoners, and compelled them to join the Chilean army. Captain Richards was a member of the crew that was taken. Chile was then in the midst of a rebellion, and the captain and his comrades were pressed into the Government service. For several weeks he had plenty of lively skirmishes with the insurgent troops, but one night he and his companions deserted from service, reached the coast, got away in a couple of whaleboats, and worked their way along the coast 300 miles to Valparaiso. In that harbor they got aboard the United States frigate Constellation, and a few weeks later were sent home.

Louis Lucien Bonaparte. Louis Lucien Bonaparte, a nephew of the first Napoleon, whose death at Rome was recorded in vesterday's DISPATCH, was the sec end son of Lucien, the brother of Napoleo I. His youth was less agitated than that of his brothers. Returning to France after the revolution of February, he was elected to the Legislative Assembly by the voters of Corsica, His election was annulled a year Corsica, His election was annulled a year later in 1849. He was, however, elected again by the Department of the Seinea few months later. After the coup d'etat in 1852 he was chosen as Senator and recelved the title of Prince. He was the scholar of the Bonaparte family. He was a distinguished philologist, published a Basque grammar, and in 1857 published the "Parable of the Sower," from St. Matthew in 62 European languages and dialects. He was also the author of important works upon chemistry published in the French and Italian lauguages.

Heri Jacquin, Merchant.

Henri Jacquin, a prosperous merchant of Paris, died at his home in that city Sunday of heart failure. He was 64 years old and was born in Troyes, France. At an early age he went to Paris, where he received his age ne went to Faris, where he received his education. He came to this country in 1859, married a daughter of Antonio Mataran, of this city, and in 1859 returned to Paris, where he became a partner in the confectionery house of Veuve Jacquin & Sons. He was a member of the firm at his death. While at college he was an intimate friend of the French commander, General Saussier.

Captain James Murphy.

Captain James Murphy, Deputy Collector of Internal Revenue, died at his home in New York, Monday. He was 58 years old and was born in Ireland. He came to this counwas born in Irelaud. He came to this country at the age of 17. He served in the regular army under General Harney, and was the only Irish officer in the Twentieth Massachusetts Infantry, the Harvard Regiment. He was commissioned Captain by Governor Andrews for bravery. He was a member of the Executive Committee of the Washington Republican club and conspicuous in all Irish patriotic movements.
