A DEBATE ON SILVER.

Mr. St. John, of New York, Outlines His Proposed Financial Law

AT THE CONVENTION OF BANKERS.

He Is Opposed to the Monetary Policy of Senator Sherman.

THE PLAN CRITICISED BY MR. J. J. KNOX

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 12.-The American Bankers' Association resumed its session to-day, and the silver question had the right of way from the start. W. P. St. John of New York, read a paper on the solution of the silver question. In opening he paid his respects to John Jay Knox, because in an interview the latter said that the silver question was dead and that Cleveland would be the nominee of the Democratic party.

Mr. St. John argued that the results of the recent elections were encouraging to free silver, and he doubted if Mr. Knox, as a Republican, was in the confidence of the Democratic party as to its nominees. In his paper, Mr. St. John made the following

Cease buying silver bullion and restore the United States coinage system founded with the Mint in 1792, and only abrogated in 1873. That is, reopen the mints equally to unrestricted coinage for gold and silver.

Legal Tender Notes at Coin Value,

As the best method, allow owners of gold and silver to receive legal tender notes at their coin value, instead of coih at their option, the notes to be redeemed in either coin, at the Treasury's option, but the Secretary to redeem in bullion at not less than retary to redeem in bullion at not less than the coin value thereof on request of note-holders; a moderate coinage to be prescribed, all remainder to be coined or not at the Secretary's discretion; all the gold and silver bullion and coin resulting to be held as dollar for dollar metallic reserve for the notes outsfanding; all treasury notes of the act of 1890, and gold and silver certificates, when received, to be replaced by the proposed new notes secured as provided and redeemable as prescribed; the President of the United States to be required to proclaim our adoption of the European coinage ratio for pold and silver when Continental Europe reopens its mints to silver; our mints thereupon baying up our silver dollars then outstanding at a premium of 3 cents each, and replace them with silver dellars containing 360 grains pure silver.

By such provisions of our statutes, and without international entanglement, we assure Europe against a flight of our silver dollars for recoinage at their mints, and assure ourselves against such a contraction of our current money whenever Europe reopens her mints to silver.

The Benefits of the Speaker's Plan. As to likely achievements of the measure, if enacted entire, Mr. St. John discusses as

It would tend to unify the currency by providing a single automatic issue in lieu of any capricious issue of circulating notes. These notes will be redeemable in coin, our coin-reserve provided for them being at the face amount of the notes. The bi-metallic single standard dollar of the United States would for the present be coined of either $71.25 grains of pure silver or 23.22 grains of pure gold, each properly alloyed. The silver of the present be defined and replaced. pure gold, each properly alloyed. The silver dollar would be reduced and replaced by a dollar coin containing 360 grains of pure silver whenever the important nations of Continental Europe reopen their mints to silver, and the supplies of gold and silver available will always determine our volume of money.

Mr. St. John dismisses the alleged impending avalanche of Europe's silver with statistics of the financial condition of all the European nations in detail, showing their need of their present silver money in every case. His proposition contemplates the refusal of gold for the legal tender notes, and their redemption by silver only if ever the Secretary of the Treasury suspects a flood of foreign silver for our gold.

Opposed to Senator Sherman's Attitude. In opposition to Senator Sherman's pro-nounced attitude as to silver money Mr. St. John quoted England's present First Lord of the Treasury, supported by the eminent professors of political economy of Oxford, Cambridge, Edinburgh and Liege Universi-

Mr. St. John furnishes statistics of the production, consumption and coinage of silver, showing the present annual absorption exceeds the present annual absorption exceeds the present annual production, and the Treasury is unable to continue obtaining the amount now required by faw at the maximum price prescribed. Hence the act of 1890 will gradually but irregularly advance the price to one for 37114 grains. Therefore, free coinage, by fixing that as the minimum price at once and thereby establishing even exchange between the far East and Europe, will greatly enlarge China's and Europe, will greatly enlarge China's and India's absortion of silver annually. In consequence, free coinage will diminish the annual silver addition to our currency compared with that addition under our present law and necessitate a material increase in the world's production of silver to meet the demands of trade for money.

European Silver and Gold.

He urged that Europe's stock of silver is the equivalent at home of her gold. It could be recoined in India at a small premium in the exchange, but could only be recoined in the United States at a liberal be recoined in the United States at a liberal discount and at a resulting large contraction of Europe's currency. The Bank of France could trade off 20 per cent of her stock of silver at a premium in trade settlements with India this year. Her stock of silver, exactly like her stock of gold, has all been accumulated as a reserve against vast liabilities. Hence the Bank of France is not were concerned about the bullion. is not more concerned about the bullion value of he stock of silver than banks in the United States are concerned about the paper value of the legal tender notes.

At the conclusion of Mr. St. John's paper he was loudly applauded. John Jay Knox then took the floor, and begging the in-dulgence of the Chair, said that he fully agreed with Mr. St. John in some of his remarks. After citing certain facts and giv-ing figures, he said that some time ago the Mexican dollar was to be found in nearly every bank in this country, but to-day, where were these coins?

The Silver Situation in Mexico

They had been sent back to Mexico in payment of goods, being accepted at their face value less transportation to Mexico. Why was this? Because the Mexicans have the advantage of free coinage. We have a dollar which will not be accepted in Mexico for its face value, and yet this country has a credit which is unsurpassed by any country in the world.

Mr. St. John replied that it was a mistaken idea to compare the United States with Mexico, because all of the latter's products were beneath the soil, and though she needn't coin a cent, all her gold and silver would naturally go away from her, while in the United States all the products were above ground.

Mr. Johnson, of Birmingham, made a few remarks expressing his satisfaction in regard to Mr. St. John's stand in favor of a fair currency. He said that it was a race between white metal and the colored metal, and he did not want to see the colored metal. put ahead of the white metal. He announced himself in favor of reciprocity, and against artificial laws which admitted one product and excluded another.

ROUGH WORK OF A CLOUDBURST.

Western Washington Visited by the Wors Storm It Ever Had.

TACOMA, Nov. 12 .- [Special.]-There have never been worse storms in Western Washington than those that occurred Saturday and Sunday, between the Sound and the Cascades. The storm began Saturday afternoon and lasted until Sunday morning, and was of fearful destructive force. Gigantic firs that have withstood the storms of centuries without losing as much as a bough were uprooted by the hundreds on the mountain sides, huge boulders many tons in weight became de-tached and crashed down the precipitous sides of the canyons and gulches, and rain fell in torrents, swelling the rivulets and rooks and rivers to overflowing. The worst damage was done near Weston, where a cloudburst occurred. The cloudburst filled the gulches and ravines, and the resistless flow of water swept everything in its path. Between Weston and Tacoma the bridges crossing the small stream were almost totally washed away. The storm extended over a large area, going even across the range. Reports were received this morning that the telegraph wires between Portland and Wallula, on the Union Pacific, were down and traffic greatly delayed. were down and traffic greatly delayed. A landslide occurred at Orting, and the Stuck Valley is flooded.

DEATHS HERE AND ELSEWHERE.

R. M. King, the Adventist. R. M. King, the Seventh Day Adventist, who acquired inter-State fame through being arrested for ploughing on Sunday, died suddenly near Dyersburg, Tenn., Tuesday. It is a year and a half since King was arrested and fined for Sunday work. The trivial case has been in the State and Federal courts ever since and is now pending in the United States Supreme Court. The original United States Supreme Court. The original sentence was affirmed by the Supreme Court of Tennessee. Then the defense was undertaken by the National Secular Association, which employed Don M. Dickinson and cavried the case to the United States Circuit Court on a writ of habeas corpus, Judge Haumond, in an elaborate opinion, ruled that States had a right to make Sunday laws, and that the Federal Government had no right to review the State's decisions. The case was thereupon appealed to the Supreme Court of the United States, and it is not unlikely the Adventists will still push the case to a conclusion notwithstanding King's death.

Captain L. M. Lipp Kursky.

Captain L. M. Lipp Kursky died in Boston Sunday. He was born in Prague in 1840, was highly educated, served in the Lombardy war, and was breveted major on the field of Magenta by the Emperor. In 1861 he came to this country, and was taking a special course at Harvard when the war broke out. He enlisted, and after serving nine months was given a lieutenant's commission, and was later made captain. During his four years' services he paid his own expenses, alloting his pay to charitable institutions in Massachusetts. He was badly wounded in 1864, and since then, had undergone 14 surgical operations. His personal income failed him shortly after the war, and in 1867 he applied for a pension, but never heard from it. In January last he again applied, and a pension was granted. He had been of late foreign correspondent of the Boston Public Library. broke out. He enlisted, and after serving

The Christians-at-Work Adjourn. WASHINGTON, Nov. 12.-The final sessions of the convention of Christians-at-Work were held to-day. L. L. Gilson, of Hurley, Wis., described a typical lumber camp and the work that is being done in missions among them, and said that, despite the fact that it would be hard to imagine a tougher place or a harder lot of men, it was a most unusual thing for him to meet with a rebuff in his attempts to preach to them. A tentative vote of the delegates, which showed a strong majority of going to Atlanta at the next convention, was taken. SPECIAL bargains now offering in ladies' and children's winter underwear and hosiery. JOS. HOENE & CO.'S
