

the embrace of the opposition to his chief... He was the only one of such consummate ability as Wade, of Ohio, and Henry Winter Davis, of Maryland, that diminished Lincoln of the necessity of putting himself in the strongest possible attitude for the then admittedly doubtful battle of '64.

He Relied on War Democrats. Lincoln, as was his usual custom, consulted with all the same within his reach and developed his plan from time to time with extreme caution. In the early part of the year he reached the conclusion that it would be eminently wise to nominate a conspicuous Republican as Vice President along with himself for President.

Lincoln's first selection for Vice President was General Butler. I believe he consulted with any of his friends. As early as March, 1864, he sent for General Cameron, to whom he proposed the nomination of Butler, and that Butler was his first declaration of his purpose to anyone on the subject.

General Butler Declined Peremptorily. Butler was at that time a strong man in the State. He had not achieved great military success, but his administration in New Orleans had made him universally popular throughout the North, in which the vindictive vituperation of the Southern press against him was an important factor.

Another evidence of his extreme caution in politics is given by the fact that while he carefully concealed from both Cameron and his friends the fact that he was acting in confidence in the same movement, he surprised me a few weeks before the convention by sending for me and requesting me to accompany him to a meeting at a large hall.

Lincoln realized the fact that the chances were greatly against his re-election unless he should be saved by the success of the Union Army. There was no period from January, 1864, until the 31st of September of the same year, when McClellan would not have been defeated by Sherman.

Lincoln was full of doubt. Democratic sentiment had drifted to McClellan, and when Lincoln was elected, he was elected by a narrow margin. He was elected by a narrow margin. He was elected by a narrow margin.

When Congress met again after the election it was November, and when Lincoln was elected, he was elected by a narrow margin. He was elected by a narrow margin. He was elected by a narrow margin.

before the Southern people I believe they would accept it, and I have faith that the Northern people, however startled at first, would soon appreciate the wisdom of such a settlement of the war. One hundred days of war would cost us $400,000,000 I would propose to give for emancipation and a restored Republic, not to speak of the priceless sacrifice of life and the additional sacrifice of property, but to do this I offer no money, but I would defeat me inevitably, and probably defeat emancipation."

Another Feature of the Synagogue Fight in the Courts. The old adage that "when want looks in at the door love flies out at the window" was again proven to be at least partially true yesterday in the Quarter Sessions Court.

His Honor Talks on Intemperance. The old adage that "when want looks in at the door love flies out at the window" was again proven to be at least partially true yesterday in the Quarter Sessions Court.

His Reasons for Wanting Johnson. There was not a trace of bitterness, prejudice or even unfriendliness toward Lincoln in all that Lincoln said about the Vice Presidency, and he was careful to say that he did not desire the nomination of Johnson for the office.

they have given all who desire an opportunity of availing themselves of it. Three years of successful practice in Pittsburgh has demonstrated the superior merit of the work of these specialists. It is their plan to carry on their work during the winter months, and to give extensive attention to the treatment of the various ailments of the throat, nose and ears.

A FREQUENT DIFFICULTY. Which Every Skillful and Successful Specialist Has to Confront With. "About two years ago," said a patient who has been treated by the specialists of Dr. Copeland and his associates last August, "I took treatment of these physicians, and was treated for two months by the same skillful, painstaking and thorough work in the office and the same frankness and reliable truthfulness in printed utterances."

He Grew Weak, Nervous, Had a Dull Feeling in Head, Waked Tired in Morning, Became Constipated, Felt Miserable, Old. "Mr. T. P. F. of Columbia, Pa. Street, Allegheny, makes the following statement in regard to his trouble which had annoyed him for five years."

He Was Taking Consumption. "I had gained and lost weight, but received no relief, further than that he was unable to meet the demands of Mrs. Nelson for the conduct and prosecution of the war, and when she told him that she was going to leave him, he was so overcome by grief that he had to be carried to his room."

From a Prominent Attorney. DR. COPLAND, PA., November 15, 1891. DEAR SIR: My father died from catarrhal complications. My father died from catarrhal complications. My father died from catarrhal complications.

His Confidence Rewarded. "I had been treated by several physicians, but I had no relief from any of them. I had no relief from any of them. I had no relief from any of them."
