THE MEN WHO PLAY,

The Harvard College's Final Selection of Players to Go Against Yale's Sturdy Fellows.

NIMICK SELLS OUT HIS STOCK.

Too Many Business Cares Prompt Him to Make This Move.

MARK BALDWIN SEALED AND-SIGNED.

A General Going Over of Facis and Fancies of In terest to the Courting World.

A Great Ground Gainer.

He is a powerful runner and, though not so good a ground gainer possibly the two regular half backs, he is doubtless superior to either of them in rush line blocking on the defensive. Should Captain Trafford be injured and forced to retire, either Corbett will drop back to Trafford's place and Fearing will be substituted, or, if Fearing is already in the game, Grar will take Trafford's place. In the very improbable case of more than two half-backs being disabled, White, the long-distance runner, will go in.

That is not Harvard's limit behind the line, for on a pinch Gage can be used at half back and Cobb at quarter. In case Dexter's twisted knee will not allow him to play, Vail will probably face Morrison, and next to Vail in the list of guards comes High ands. They are each six feet tall, and weigh 185 pounds apiece. Mason is a sort of a double-barroled substitute, as he will be used either at the tackle or end should the programment of the pays substackle is emergency arise. The next sub-tackle is Fitzhugh, who has played on the second 11 at right tackie. Collamore would come for end should Mason be drafted earlier in the game. Big Shean has pushed Bangs hard during the last week for the center position and would get a chance in the game at Springfield if enything should hap-pen to Bangs. Rantoul will be with the team a Springfield and can play either guard or tackle. The other men had been used from time to time in the second 11 cor-responds to the College side at Yale. They vill not all be taken to Springfield as

WHAT DOES THIS MEAN?

Secretary Scandrett Says Coughlin Has Not Signed and Palmer O'Nell Says He Has.

Secretary Scandrett, of the local club, stated emphatically yesterday that a player named Coughlin has not been signed by the local club. J. Palmer O'Neil, an ex-official of the local club, says he has. Who is tell-ing the truth? Since O'Neil has been re-pudiated by the local club because of his padiated by the focal club occasion of his unreliability and loquacity, he seems to be doing all he can to bring the club into dis-repute. Whether Coughlin has been signed or not, it might be better if Mr. O'Neil would be truthful to his old colleagues and not betray their secrets in the hope of get-ting a little notoriety that will gain him

The question of whether or not an un-known player named Coughlin has been signed by the local management, is not of so much importance as is the question of the private effort of the honored gentlemen of the club to secure a good team, being made prematurely public by anybody, who, through a spirit of revenge wants to ruin the entire business. A man may even go into obscurity honorably: It is safe to say that up to the present time the responsible officials of the club have not been apprised of the sign-ing of Coughlin. This being so, it may be well if Mr. O'Neil will allow these officials to look of the signal of the signal officials to look after their own business and if everybody does that there will be less chance of discord among the club members.

NIMICK SELLS HIS STOCK. He Is Tired of Baseball and Is Now Out of It.

W. A. Nimick, whose name has been asociated with the Pittsburg baseball club for many years, is now a "private." He yesterday sold out his stock to W. C. Temple, who is an enthusiast and supporter of the game.

Mr. Nimick's reasons for retiring are expressed in a word. He says: "I am tired of baseball as a business, but you will always find me occupying a chair in the grandstand when the game goes on."

The amount of stock he held in the club was about $13,000, per value, but the purwas about e13,000, par Value, but the par-chaser did not take it at initial quotations. What Mr. Temple gave, or his object in securing the stock, is neither here nor there. At the same time the transaction comes in the wake of other matters in the Pittsburg club deals, and it will not be a great sur-prise to sporting people if J. Palmer O'Neil and Mr. Nimick would join forces. By the way, Mr. O'Neil said he had a scheme for next year which would fill a park.

Pittsburg's Interest in Cricket.

Cricket will take a prominent part in our outdoor sports next season. In Bloomfield they are taking steps now to organize a club to take the field as soon as the season opens. The parties working toward this end are persons who have been raised to the game, and, as a result, they look for them to place a team on the field that will show to place a team on the field that will show to advantage the many good qualities of this game. If the interested ones go in for cricket this season as they have for football, it is thought there will be a team which will be able to distinguish themselves for championship honors.

CHINESE GETTING CAUTIOUS.

TRYING TO PREVENT THE NORTHERN UNREST SPREADING.

Important Proclamation Issued by the Deputy Mandarin-Reforms That He Expects to Make-New Orders to the Police and Constabulary.

NEW YORK, Nov. 18 .- [Special.]-A letter dated Amoy, October 6, has been received at the foreign mission rooms of the Reformed Church in America from Rev. P. W. Pitcher, missionary in Amoy, China. In it he writes:

The Deputy Mandarin has issued a procla mation in which he says "the provincial ex-aminations have just been held, and large numbers of scholars are returning to their mation in which he says "the provincial examinations have just been held, and large numbers of scholars are returning to their native places. Amoy is a seaport open to foreign trade, where persons from all parts of the world live together. It is very easy for bad characters to appear. The constables, builiffs and water police are commanded to give their assistance to the military forces in searching for and arresting suspicious characters. Keepers of monasteries, tempies, Buddhat or Taoist temples, both large and small, on the hills, innkeepers, opinum shop keepers and others in Amoy, must not give lodging to persons of whose proceedings there is any doubt, or to bad characters from other places, or to bands of street players. All finns, large or small, must keep books in which the name, surname and proper place of abode of every guest is to be clearly stated, and the number coming and going. The register for each day must on that day, after the sounding of the first watch be sent to my yamen, for me to strike out any objectionable names. Any one venturing to disregard this regulation or to treat it as of little importance will assuredly be at once arrested and severely punished. My orders being given must be obeyed on pain of incurring the terrors of the law."

This proclamation of the Deputy Mandarin was followed by two others of a similar nature, one by the Admiral of the port and the other by the High Mandarin. This will give some idea what precautions the Chinese officials are taking to forestall the present agitation in the north, which is threatening to extend through the provinces of the south. Grave fears have been entertained at Foo Chow. Rumors were afloat that the arsenal at that place was to be taken by the malcontents and afterward they were to march upon Amoy.

It is quite evident that the Ka-Lo-Hoe (the secret society) has been making efforts to create a disturbance here at this port. However, it has come to nothing, and we believe it will not succeed, simply because of the prompt and united act

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 18 .- [Special.]-The steamship Stillwater, from Central American ports, briugs news confirming the report of the drowning of General E. General Kraft was returning from one of his mining properties in the interior, and attempted to ford on muleback the Camalatte river. The General was swept from his mule and drowned, and at last accounts his body had not been recovered.

received on account of the wires not working, but it is believed by the Signal Service people that a snow storm is camping out some place along the Atlantic coast and that it will visit Pittsburg some time between now and Thanksgiving.

Gas was still more conspicuous on account of its absence yesterday than the day before. Complainants filed into the gas companies offices with their stories of woe, as familiar to the clerk in charge as his daily prayers. The clerk, in turn, with old time assurance, gave out the information that a new field was being opened, having force enough to run a rival with the region below.

There was considerable suffering among the poor yesterday and the day before. Numerous requests for aid were made on Chief Elliot, of Pittsburg, and Chief Grubbs, of Pittsburg. Very few have laid in supplies of coal, and when the cold spell caught them without money or fuel they besieged the tharity departments. Several schools closed on account of a shortage of gas, and many of the teachers expressed themselves in favor of a return to coal, even if it requires more work and makes more dirt.

There was one natural gas company yes-terday which was fully prepared for the "cold snap"—the Manufacturers. The Manufacturers was already well supplied, but in addition to its ordinary resources struck on Monday a great well on the Pollock farm. The private consumers and the glass houses on the Southside, which are supplied by this company, will be likely to experience no shortage whatever this year.

Increased Demands for Drugs. Increased Demands for Drugs.

The cold weather is booming the retail drug trade. The sudden change in temperature to produced assurerous coids and coughs. The demand for patent medicines and cough syrups is always better in winter than during the summer. Druggists reported that after the people get used to the cold the business is not so brisk. For some reason at the opening of winter there is always a good call for medicine. Coughs and slight throat troubles usually cure themselvs toward spring.

Since the cold snap started in the prescription clerks in the drug stores have been unusually busy. This doesn't mean that the death rate will be higher, but the slight winter ailments have come. Jewelers also state that the weather has a great deal to do with their business. This year the local jewelers are afraid that the Christmas trade

THE SILAS GRAY CASE.

Ex-Lieutenant Governor Latta Still Hard at Work on It.

THINKS THE PRISONER INNOCENT.

The Attorney's Untiring Efforts for an Unfortunate Client.

THE CONVICT COLLECTING EVIDENCE

Ex-Lieutenant Governor John Latta, of Westmoreland county, was in Pittsburg resterday continuing his effort to secure pardon for Silas Gray, now serving a life sentence in the penitentiary for the killing of an old woman in Westmoreland county some 12 years ago.

The case of the unfortunate Gray will not lown. While it is alleged that Gray was convicted on circumstantial evidence, and while the Pardon Board has on several occasions been furnished with substantial and convincing evidence that Gray was not guilty of the crime for which he is being ounished, Gray himself has never tired of his efforts in his own behalf, and what correspondence he has been allowed and whatever communication he has enjoyed with the outside world, has been in regard to securing his freedom.

Collecting the Testimony. He has assisted Governor Latta, his at torney, in collecting evidence, and Latta, onfident that his client is much abused and is positively innocent, has supplied the money required to collect the testimony and furnish it at the different occasions to the Board of Pardons, Mr. Latta is not rich, but he has given generously to the cause of Gray, with no hope of reward other than to secure what he firmly believes to be simple justice to a poor client.

"I am following up a new lead in the Gray case," Mr. Latta said. "I defended Gray against the charge of murder. I familiarized myself with his case and I said then, as I say now, he is an innocent man. I do not talk as a paid attorney, for Gray never had any money to employ counsel, either before or after his conviction. I carried the case through the courts to the finish, and while I was able to save his neck I was not able to save him from a life sentence in prison. I am looking after a man who is now running an elevator somewhere in Pittsburg. I do not have his name now, but I hope to be able to get it. He is said to have valuable information in the Gray case. After I find him I will aroun present the case to the Pardon Board. again present the case to the Pardon Board, and will probably for the last time ask that Gray be released." Knows All About It Himself.

Lieutenant Governor Latta was a member of the Board of Pardons from 1875 to 1878. He is familiar with the evidence re quired to secure a pardon, and he contends that the Pardon Board since his term have either been making a personal fight against him by refusing Gray's pardon or have been slow to extend justice to a prisoner. Governor Lotta has been a Democrat all his life. He has been in active politics almost since boyhood. When a young man he was chosen District Attorney of his county. In the early sixties he was elected to the State Senate, where he served two terms. In 1874 he was elected the first Lieutenet Goyerner under the Constitute. Lieutenant Governor under the Constitu-tion of 1873. In his extended career he has never been more faithful to a public trust than he has been to the interests of his convict client.
