ITALIANS AT THE WORLD'S FAIR. Dr. Nardyz Anxious to Have His Country-

men Well Represented. Dr. Nardyz, the Italian physician in Pittsburg, thinks his countrymen should take more than usual interest in the Columbian Exposition on account of the fact that Christopher Columbus was himself an Italian. He says there has not yet been any organized movement in Pittsburg, but something may yet be done. In case concentrated action is not taken, he will make a personal exhibit of models in anatomy, which, he claims, will be as large and valuable as any other private collection in the country. He is now prepar-ing a model of a human heart, three feet high, with the other dimensions propor-tionate. It will be made of cork and fine elastics, and in such a way that it can be taken apari.

The other models the doctor will place on exhibition represent nearly all parts of the human body. He has several skeletons and hones enough to start a cemetery. The collection will be very interesting, and Dr. Nardyz is anxious that other Italians in the city will join him in showing that the Pittsburg representation from that country take an interest in American affairs.
