FACTORS FORCED OUT

George I. Whitney Calls Attention to the Fall of the Middleman.

THE RESULT OF COMBINATIONS. Changes of a Score of Years in the Business of Pittsburg.

CONSUMERS GET SOME OF THE BENEFIT The effect that business combinations had in depriving lawyers of work was described recently in THE DISPATCH, and it is now found that the factor, or middle man is also seriously affected. He is of less conseuence year by year, and where ten made a iving 40 or even 20 years ago as distributors there is now scarce room for the energy of one. The matter was discussed in a Fourth avenue broker's office, and George I. Whitney gave some data which shows that many people must soon invent some new form of Among instances cited was that of a man who once sold the product of 30 small furnaces which found a market in this city. These furnaces all combined produced about the output of one of the mammoth concerns of the present day. The Pittsburg factor took their product, that is he guaranteed the sale of it, and advanced money and goods according to the furnace proprietor's needs. If one of these small furnaces turned out $10,000 worth of metal in a month the proprietor probably needed $7,000 of that mount in goods, which he sold to his operatives. The factor was a man of means, or credit, and in the then state of trade and manufactures was a necessity, and he was well paid for his work. The writer cannot ecollect the extra commission paid to the firm that sold for 30 furnaces, but it amounted in round numbers to $300,000 a The benefits of the system were mutual. These little furnaces were scattered about wherever limestone, ore and fuel could be gotten in proximity, and many beautiful slopes along the Allegheny Mountain chain were denuded of their timber and left howling wastes of scrub second-growth under which rattlesnakes hiss and vermin of all kind flourish, subsisting on the game and keeping it scarce. Some of these furnaces were supplied with coal, but not many of them. The Era of Combination. When the era of combination arrived and a pair of big monster furnaces would put out as much pig in a day as all the 30 small ones noted combined, the latter could no longer compete, and in a short time the combinations found that they could sell their own stock and guarantee payment themselves much cheaper than the commission man had been doing it for his customers and he became a superfluity. Middle-aged people can recollect when the wholesale drygoods business was a big one in this city. These jobbers distributed the goods for the factories just as the com-mission pig iron broker did furnace products. In process of time the factory inter-ests became so large that their owners communed thus one to another: "Why should we pay these jobbers 5 to 20 per cent to sell our goods?" Soon they hunted out the cross-roads dealer who with the blacksmith and postmaster gave tone to the township, and supplied him direct. They could easily seduce his allegiance from the jobber by dividing the profits of the latter with hm until the jobber was forced out of makes his iron. A few jobbers can ver subsist n the drygoods line, because they have immense capital and deal in expensive goods, which being luxuries, goods, which being luxuries, making of which cannot so filly be controlled by trusts as can the manufacture of necessaries. In turn these naire drygoods jobbers freeze out small jobbers in notions, for, as stated by Joseph Horne years ago during the depres-sion preceding 1879, hard times are benefidealers in notions and fine

It takes so much money to keep up a stock that in times of slow sales small capitalists cannot keep up their exhibit. The trust has done its perfect work in the extinguishment, not only of middlemen, but of small capitalists as well. It is not necessary to recount what the Standard Oil Commany has done further than to remark combination and the extinguishmeet of competition it can make $2 a barrel ofit out of crude petroleum, and yet furish illumination cheaper than ever was magined even in dreams. Until recently white lead was mr le at many mints in the United States, and a St. Louis unnufacturer, through an agency, would call part of his product in Pittsburg, and a ourg manufacturer would sell a part of is in St. Louis, some buyers in each city ng a quarrel with, or a prejudice against the home manufacturer. of midulemen, the competition cut sharply Under the present trust's arrangement this carriage is saved and the middleman's occupation is gone. Each manufacturer is supplied with the labels of the rest, and if a St. Louis buyer sends to this city to a man-ufacturer for white lead all he has to do is as that of Pittsburg and delivered, and, as gnorance is bliss, the St. Louis buyer is happy, thinking he has cut the nose off a man he does not like. The manufacturers divide the profit saved from carriage and

Not a Cotton Mill Left It is so in almost all departments. There ot a single cotton mill left in Pittsburg, sile at one time the manufacture of cotton oth was a considerable industry here. Inraw cotton being shipped a thousand miles to be spun and woven, the mills are being removed to the vicinity of the cotton plantations and only the manu-factured product pays cost of carriage. The same holds in the clothing and sho

Large manufacturers get a profit out of clothing made on a large scale and sold at 30 per cent less than a tailor could sell it and live, and the large companies have artists that can fit anything in anthropological shape. Shoes are now turned out of large factories at a cost for the same quality of 50 per cent of what a shormaker working by hand could produce them, and made in such lapes, lengths and widths as to accommolate all except those who have corns on out of the way places on their feet. The consemence is that, were it not that there footgear made to order, though they pay five prices for it, all shoemakers would be riven to other employment or starve. As it is, you can count on your fingers and toes all that are left in this city. Some are making a living by cobbling, but even that branch of the art is being rapidly monopo-lized by a division of the labor that enables See Our New $5 Tan Mackintoshe For ladies or misses; finer ones to finest

At a meeting of the Executive Board of the Knights of Labor last night District Master Workman Dempsey was instructed to call on Superintendent Burns and try to amicably arrange matters. If he is unsuc-cessful a strike seems to be inevitable. A gentleman ni speaking of the situation said: "The matter has come to the point where it will have to be settled one way or the other soon. The committee appointed by the Second Avenue Assembly of the Knights of Labor waited on Superintendent Burns yesterday afternoon, but that gentleman refused a conference. To-night the assembly will hold a meeting and dis-cuss the situation. It is hard to say what they will do.

"It is evident that the company are against the union men. This morning the man who was discharged to-night was called into the office and questioned as to whether he was a member of the Knights of Labor. I also noticed to-day that every car on the road was being manned by new men, and that they were all non-unionists."

An Accident to Ida Mulle. In the fourth act of "Sinbad," at the Duquesne Theater, on Monday night, the audience noticed tears glistening in the eves of Ida Mulle, the pretty little favorite who plays Ninnetta. The audience was unconscious of the little woman's sufferings, conscious of the little woman's suncrings, however. At the end of the third act, after the curtain fell, the little actress fell into one of the numerous traps in the production of the spectacle. In falling she cut two ugly gashes in her limb, but notwithstanding her injuries she at-tempted to work to the finish of the per-formance. After the fourth act she was taken to her hotel, where her wounds were dressed, and where she is still confined to

The Scale Tabled Till May. The plasters held a meeting last night to onsider the making out of their scale for 1892. It was decided to lay the matter over until next May. The annual elections were held also. Nearly an entire new set of officers were elected. The probability of the scale being arranged brought out a big crowd, and the election was exciting. Industrial Notes Tur charter of the Brown Iron and Steel

The Occupants of One of the Severely Injured. Yesterday afternoon as Mary Baskin and a 15-year-old boy named Amos Trimble were driving down Smallman street, a buggy driven by two young men collided with their wagon, upsetting it. Mrs. Baskin was thrown out on her head and shoulders, and sustained severe scalp wounds, while the boy's arm was broken.

The men in the buggy drove off, and have not been apprehended. The lady and boy were removed to their home on Stanton ave The Feast of Dedication Observed. Chanukah, the Feast of Dedication, was duly observed at the Gusky Orphanage yesterday. Notwithstanding the extremely bad weather it was well attended, and those present were well repaid. There are at present 14 little ones in the home, and nearly every one of them took part in the exercises, which were most interesting. The recitations and speeches by the children were all well rendered, and they certainly looked a very happy family. Addresses were made by Rev. E. R. Donohoo, Rev. F. to send to a manufacturer in St. Louis the order and the St. Louis product is labeled L. Salinger and others, at the close of which refreshments were served to all who desired Hunting a Government Building Site. The Allegheny Councils committee ap pointed to look after securing a site for a Government building met last night. Colonel Stone told what the Government wanted and said Haymarket Square could not be used. He recommended that a site be selected and a long option taken on it so

Congress would have time to act. The mat-ter was left to a sub-committee of which John Oliver will be the Chairman. Rod and Gun Club Officers.
