Delicate and excit-ing as had been the struggle against death thus far, it was now that the real battle began. To add to the complications, it was gan. To add to the complications, it was soon discovered that not only had the neck been dislocated—or, as it is ordinarily called, "broken"—but some of the delicate pieces of bone forming the casing of the spinal cord had been crushed, and when one's fingers were applied to the back of the neck they could be felt and heard grat-ing segingt one another ife in a remote Chinese city.

Dr. Hays Thinks It Is a Warning.

Surgical Microcom, and an expert on all den-tal questions, viewed the death of Mr. Mohan as a warning against the use of such things as vitalized air. He said: "It is nothing but nitrous oxide gas, or laughing gas, that has been so universally condemned. It is called an anæsthetic, but in reality it does nothing but produce as-phyxia. It robs the blood of oxygen and the effect it produces is simply a step for the patter conduct of the business of the liouse. For years a crowing abuse has been the discreter of the body, and the decreasing somer of the Speaker to exercise that conteal which should attach to his high office. With the thermaing number of members, and the growing virulence of party feeling onsequent from the success of a long infarior martic against one long dominant, and the alternating noncer of these parties during the last eight years, the disorder of the House has been averavated until it is at last almost unlearable to members of calmnew and dignity.

The Greatest Obstacle in the Way. It has been recognized in the informal consultation of the Rules Committee that the chair, such substitute not to continu the great obstacle in the way of good order is the opportunity offered to members to conduct all their correspondence and premere bills and so forth at their desks on the floor of the House.

It furnished a profound study to Mr. Reed as to the reasons. for the columness and good order of the place, and he came to the conclusion that it was not so much because of the difference in temperatures of the persons present, as on account of the arrangement and discipline

Congress Like a Congret Garden.

In the American Congress members of the House have their desks in the chamber, master they do their private correspondone and prepare their public work. They hal they smoke there, hold social and mainess conversations with their fellowsin short, make the chamber a sort of freeand ency oncert garden, in which they may indulge in any personal entertainment, while others interested only in the hadness of the Government are prosecuting their labors.

In the House of Commons all of this extraneous matter is remanded to rooms provided for the retirement of members. No desirs, no correspondence, no social intercourse, no personal affairs are permitted to intrude. All attention is given to the burlness before the House. Persons who interfere with the highest decorum are in extremity named and may not appear again without permission from the Speaker. These things are well known and need not be described.

The Time to Make a Change.

All of the present Committee on Rules recognize the superior practice of the House of Commons and of other foreign parliahas come to take some step, to counteract llouse of Representatives.

Possibly no rule may be proposed at this ession for a change, but it is certain that a reform will be agitated at the instance of the committee. It is now difficult The space. wife and nurse. The Speaker's physician does not regard his condition as especially serious, although there are to-night symptoms of pneumonia that cause some alarm. A severe bronchial attack, accompanied by protracted spells of coughing, has been the most annoying feature of the Speaker's ill-ness hitherto. He will not be able, under any circumstances, to appear in the House on Tuesday.

The selection of a member to act as Speaker will have especial significance, as it will determine the much-discussed question of who is to be the Speaker's lieutenant as leader of the Democrats.

The Speaker to Appoint.

Under the rules the Speaker has the right to name a member to perform the duties of beyond an adjournment. It is provided however, that in case of his illness the Speaker may make such an appointment not exceeding ten days, with the approval of the House at the time, and in case he shall omit to make such an appointment

It is thought to and the sight by Speaker Crisp's friends that he will appoint Mr. McMillin, and thus designate him as the "leader of the House majority." Mr. Springer, of course, as Chairman of the Ways and Means Committee, stands in the way of receiving the additional honor, but the Crisp men say that it has already been determined that Mr. McMillin is the man.

What the House Might Do.

Some of the Speaker's admirers are in favor of having him leave the selection of the Speaker pro tem to the House, in which case it is probable that Mr. McMillin would be chosen, as the majority would support the nomination of the Speaker and his friends Mr. Mills went to the Capitol to-day, for
