THE SPRING TRIP OF ANSON'S TEAM

It is the intention of the members of the Duquesne Kennel Club to have the best log show this year that has ever been held in Pittsburg. Last year's snow was a great one, but the club's ambition is to make the show of this year even greater. Already many meetings have been held by the committee having the matter in charge, and considerable work has been done. President Boggs is extremely enthusiastic over the prospect, and during a conversation vesterday, said: "You can put it down for certain that we will this year have better prizes, more dogs and everything on a grander scale than it has ever been The business men, we have reason to believe, will come forward with numerous valuable special prizes, and we intend to make a great feature of our specials. The sest St. Bernard dogs in the world will be sere, and we are also sure of the entries of here, and we are also sure of the entries of the best pointers and setters in America." The President continued: "I think we will offer extra inducements for the show-ing of local dogs. The fact is there are more good dogs of all classes in and about Plitsburg now than was ever known before. We want to get all of these dogs out. There are first-class breeds of fox terriers, There are first-class breeds of fox terriers, collics, Bengie hounds and pointers and setters about here. I may also add that we have some excellent specimens of bull terriers. Now there is no reason why all these dogs should not be put in the show for competitors. Our committee are resolved to try and get them all out this year and classes and prizes will be arranged with that object in view. In Messrs, Mortimer and Davidson and Miss Whitney we have secured three of the best judges in we have secured three of the best indges in the country, and there really is nothing that I know of to prevent the show from being a remarkable success. Without doubt the show will be second to none except probably that of New York." The committee of management will from CHICAGO'S best lawyers profess to interpret the recent ordinance there against racing as having the effect of also closing the well known Washington tracks. The club has resorted to the courts to ascertain its exact status in the matter, and its Vice President says that if the obnoxious ordinance is found to apply to his club the organization will sell the property and disband.

Two Centuries of Civilization Have Not Cleared Eastern Pennsylvania.

It is a source of constant wonder to visitors hereabouts that so many sorts of wild animals that are practically extinct in the older border States should abound as they do in this part of Pennsylvania, says a Reading (Pa.) special to the New York Times. This section has been pretty well settled for nearly two centuries, and yet all the wild animals which the early English and Swedish colonists found here are still represented to this day except the wolf. Bears and deer are frequently encountered in this and adjacent counties, and of catamounts, foxes, minks, otters, ground hogs, raccoons, skunks, opossums, and muskrats there is no scarcity, as annoyed farmers in

In their pursuit, however, they caused him to describe an extensive circle through the woods, and that brought him in less than ten minutes face to face with Wagner, who let go with both barrels and killed the beast in his tracks. He weighed 21 pounds, stood 18 inches high and was 4 feet 2 inches long.

Lyman Pushee, of Dennysville, had a unique experience in hunting deer last week. He was lying in wait for a deer when, almost without warning, three fine animals came into an opening a short distance from the place of his concealment; they were two does and a buck. Opening fire, one of the does fell, and the others ran away. Pushee, still remaining in hiding, was soon rewarded by the return of the buck to his dead mate. A shot, followed by others, failed to bring the noble fellow down, and again and again did he return, until eleven shots had been fired at him, when he fell, a victim to con-

Among the active stocks there was heavy buying in which London was something of a factor, while the demand from commission houses continued unabated, and outside houses concontinued unabated, and outside houses contributed their quota to make one of the most active Saturdays seen in a year's time.

The features of the dealings were the large trading and very substantial advances among the low-priced shares, the new Lead common scoring a gain of 7½ per cent, though the greater part of this was the simple process of "marking up." The Industrials were especially conspicuous in the upward movement, and as Lead took the lead among the unlisted shares so Chicago Gas led the listed stocks. Among the latter, the demand in Union Pacific, Wabash, New England and C. C., C. & St. L. was sufficient to raise those shares to the highest prices for some time.

The upward movement in the shares made stendy and rapid progress throughout the session. The market closed active and buoyant at the top prices of the day.
