POOPYRIGHT, 1892, BY THE NEW YORK ASSOCIATED

BERLIN, Jan. 9.-The Reichstag next week will debate the bill for the repression of drunkenness. The Bundesrath has approved the measure as originated by Emperor William, only modifying the severity ing public housekeepers. The Ministers, it is known, consider the proposals with disfavor, and the members of the Bundesrath express doubt as to their practical value. However, the Emperor having set his heart upon trying the effect upon drinking of legislative restrictions of the penalties to be imposed upon offend-has obtained from them a hesitating assent. The fate of the measure in the Reichstag is doubtful. The Conservatives and National Liberals will support the bill, white the Freisinnigge and Socialist parties will oppose it, mainly because its provisions will invest the police authorities with exceptional powers of interference in the pri-

Tough Medicine for the Toper.

The clause of the measure which has caused the most widespread objection, empowers the officials to prosecute all persons denounced to them as habitual drunkards, and to cause them to be imprisoned until they shall have obtained a medical certificate stating that they have been cured of the liquor habit. Their property, also, may be seized and applied to the support of their families and of themselves during their im-

The bill fails so entirely to define what proof will be sufficient to warrant the arrest and sequestration of a person denounced as seing a habitual drunkard, as to enable malicious or prejudiced prosecutors free scope. The measure, if it becomes a law, will inevitably give rise to a host of malitinually busy themselves in laying traps for the keepers of places of public resort who stand in readiness to blast the reputation of Taking Temperance With a Wry Face. No enthusiasm is shown in support of the proposals. On the contrary, the prevailing opinion seems to be that they will never operate successfully in any large section of the Empire. When the bill was before the Bundesrath Chancellor Landmann, of Ba-varia, induced that body to discriminate between the various forms of drunkenness. It was found practically impossible, however, to classify drinkers of comparatively harmless beer and wine spart from the irunkards who are poisoning themselves with notate spirits. Prosecuting under the bill will follow when two witnesses of the offense shall denounce the culprit, and should the measure ever come into active operation in this city there will be a mighty swarm of con-

The Center party is divided upon the rity leaning toward the bill as moral legislation approved by the Vatican. The result depends upon the Centerists, and, therefore, the bill is likely to pass.

The discovery by Dr. Pfeifier, the son-inlaw of Prof. Koch, of the influenza bacillus, has caused considerable excitement in medical and scientific circles. The public ask of what practical use these revelations can be until a principal for the destruction of the bacilli shall havee been obtained? The disovery of bacilli brings no comfort to the

The Japanese physician, Dr. Kitisato, who is assisting Dr. Pfeiffer in his investirations, has, it was recently announced, discovered a cure for tetanus, but the remedy has not yet been tested.

The report of Dr. Pfeiffer, which was recently read at the Charity Hospital, details how the doctor traced the influenza bacillus and describes its special character as dis-tinct from that of other bacilli. The report concludes with the single recommendation, to prevent intection by removing and destroying the sputum of persons suffering from influenza, and by keeping surroundings clean and disinfected.

The Frinters' Strike Still On. The strike of the printers is still partly on in Berlin, Leipzie, Frankfort and Munich. The strike leaders state that 1,000 men are still out. The leaders claim that if assisted from abroad the men will be able to hold out until their movement is crowned with success. A number of master printers in this city have conceded the demands of the men, and 1,400 of the strikers have been enabled to return to work. The condition of the strikers in Berlin is hopeful, but the men in Munich, Leipzic and Stuttgart, where there is less prospect of an immediate re-turn to work, are suffering greatly.

Public meetings have been held in every rovincial center to express approval of the movement, but material support fails. If the men had not associated their cause with socialism, popular aid would have been more readily secured. As matters now stand, unless further foreign help is received the movement must collapse.

A Limit to Toleration of Talk.

Herr Bebel, the Socialist leader, in an address to a conference of workmen at Mul-house, at which 1,000 persons were present, proceeded to attack the capitalists and the urgeois in his usual vein. He was permitted to proceed until he began to comment on the annexation of Al-sace-Lorraine, when the police, who were present in considerable force, compelled him to desist and broke up the meeting amid cheers for Herr Bebel.

THE FAMOUS FRENCH AUTHOR'S AT-TEMPT AT SUICIDE,

A Cannes Reporter's Vivid Description of the Affair-The Novelist May Yet Recover-His Rapid Rise and as Speedy Fall-A Story With a Moral. THY CABLE TO THE DISPATCH.

LONDON, Jan. 9.—There seems to be little doubt that Guy de Maupassant is hopelessly insane, although Dr. Blanche, the noted specialist in lunacy, in whose private asylum the demented novelist is, says there is a possibility of his ultimate recovery. De Manpassant, who only yesterday became calm after his attempt to commit suicide at Cannes, on the previous Saturday, has long indulged himself in morphine and hashish eating, and recently has taken to the con-sumption of darge quantities of ether. Aside from the terrible effects of these drugs on the brain there is a hereditary influence to be taken into account, his father having died in an insane asylum, and his mother, who still lives, not being in her

It was found necessary to bring de Mauassant in a straight waistcoat from Cannes to Paris, and upon his being set free from it, in Dr. Blanche's hospital, he made a violent assault upon the attendants, and it required seven men to restrain him. Yesterday, however, he became calm and was induced to est.

The Author's Attempted Suicide. A Cannes newspaper gives the following particulars of the suicidal attempt:

At 10 o'clock on Saturday evening he sat down at his desk, intending to resume the writing of his new novel. "L' Angelus," which he had discontinued for some days. But all efforts to concentrate his thoughts proved unavdilling, and in an hour or so he sprang up from his chair in violent excitement, brought his fist heavily down on his writing table, and exclaimed, "Another man overboard! Nothing left now but to die." He fetched a razor from his dressing room and gashed his throat. The noise made by his body falling brought his valet and the sailing master of his yacht. Incipient paralysis and that peculiar mania described as "la folie des grandeurs" are the chief symptoms of his disease, which leave but small hope of recovery. Up to the day on which he attempted his life he wrote rational letters to friends in Paris, but complained therein of intolerable pains. It is affirmed that having possibly a presentiment of his coming affliction the novelist a short time ago summoned a solicitor from Paris and made his will.

Work on His Literary Testament.

Work on His Literary Testament. De Maupassant told his friends that "L'Angelus" was the finest thing he had ever attempted, and was to be his literary testament. "My other works may disap-pear." he said, "but this, please God, will not." De Maupassant was also preparing a volume of studies on Flaubert Tfourguenieff and Dostoievsky. For two or three months before his attempt at suicide he had been at Cannes under the supervision of devoted relatives and friends, but he has not been able to breathe freely or to sleep, and has passed most of his nights on his yacht on the Mediterranean.

It is only within a little more than a year that the novelist, at the beginning of this period young, famous and rich, has been transformed from a gay bon vivant into a misanthrope, and finally into a homicidal

YOUNG IRVING'S SHOT.

NO KEY YET DISCOVERED TO THE SINGULAR MYSTERY.

A Fellow Actor Tells How the Acciden Must Have Occurred-The Young Man Very Absent-Minded-Evidences of th British Love for His Father.

PBY CABLE TO THE DISPATCH.1 LONDON, Jan. 9.-Nothing can better in dicate the hold Henry Irving has upon the affections of the English people than the sympathetic interest that is taken in consideration of young Lawrence Irving, who accidentally shot himself in Belfast, Wednesday. Since the news of the affair has been published in the papers the great actor has received so many hundred mes sages of condolence and sympathy concern ing the accident to his son that he has been unable to answer them personally, and has been compelled to express his thanks in a note in to-day's Times. Young Irving is doing as well as could be expected under the circumstances, and if no expected under the circumstances, and if no further complications arise from the wound he will undoubtedly recover. He is being nursed by his mother, and has the best medical attendance possible to procure. Lawrence Irving has been playing leading parts in the provinces with Benson's company under the name of "Mr. Lawrence."

Just how the accident occurred is not known for though the nation; is conscious, how the accident occurred is not known, for though the patient is conscious most of the time, he is still too weak to talk. He had left a fellow actor who lodged in the same house with him in Belfast only five minutes before, and had gone up stairs to his own apartment to study his part in "The Specter Bride," which the company was soon to produce. When his companion was soon to produce. When his companion heard the pistol shot and rushed up stairs, he found young Irving writhing in agony on the bed. On the table was a copy of "The Specter Bride," open, and it is presumed that he was studying it.

His habit, it appears, has been to read a passage and then walk up and down while passage and then walk up and down while committing it to memory, and it is con-cluded, he being very absent-minded, that while so engaged he unthinkingly picked up a revolver from a shelf near his bed, and while carelessly and abstractedly toying with it, it went off.

The bullet entered the chest, near the center of the right breast, and, without perforating the lung, lodged in the muscles of the back, whence it has not yet been considered safe to attempt to remove it. Cook, the Tramp Globe Trotter, Free. DETROIT, Jan. 9 .- Charles Jubienville lay dead to-day in a lodging house, and the conventional pennies were placed upon his eyes to keep them shut. The Coroner came, looked at the corpse, asked some questions, and walked away. In the room were a number of frequenters of the place, and among them one known as "Scotty." The dead body seemed to have a fascination for "Scotty." He lingered when the others finally took their departure. One of the crowd glanced back as he went, and was stricken with horror to see "Scotty" take the pennies from the eyes of the cadaver and hurriedly thrust them into his pocket. "You sneaked the coppers," yelled the terrified fellow. Scotty turned pale and trembled, but made no denial. He then thrust the coins into the hands of his accuser and the latter started back aghast. "Don't touch me with the things," he cried. "Keep away." The coppers fell upon the floor and rolled away. The crowd fled, as if to touch them was contagion. The unhappy cause of all the commotion picked up the pennies sgain and slunk away to a sink, where he carefully washed them, muttering that he would give them to his friend's children. Then he and his ill-gotten pennies were kicked out of the house.

DETROIT, Jan. 9 .- J. H. Eakins, a self-

Eakins' case is a very remarkable He was born in 1807 at Port Burwell, Ont., and was the son of a Methodist minis-When only 25 years of age he became quite prominent in Canadian politics, and for several years was an intimate friend of the late Sir John MacDonald. He made the late Sir John MacDonald. He made over $75,000 is sinking an oil well at Petrolia, Ont., in 1868, and lost all the money in oil speculation. He then came to Detroit, and for some time was highly successful as an oil broker and dealer in tar, etc. He accumulated a fortune of over $400,000, which he lost during the panic of 1873. At one time he was considered worth $1,000,000. For several years he was an ardent Greenbacker, and ran for Congress in 1884.

Until 1888 Eaking was a pronounced infidel, and was constantly at swords' points with local clergymen. Three years ago be became converted at an Evangelistic meeting, conducted by H. O. Wills, and soon after announced himself as an Evangelist, leaving his business to take care of itself. Gradually his mind became entirely wrapped up in religion, and showed signs of failing. Within the past three months he has had religious mania in its worst form, but because of his former position nothing was done toward placing him in an asylum until he began to grow dangerous. Testimony in court showed that his late scheme was to organize a God's Soul Saving Company, with $5,000,000 capital and 50,000 shares. He said he would furnish the capi-Company, with $5,000,000 capital and 50,000 shares. He said he would furnish the capital, but insisted upon every one's taking stock. He claimed that unless Detroit would indorse his plans he would blow the whole city up with dynamite, while he would be safe in a balloon furnished by God. He recently sent for an undertaker, and when the latter arrived asked him to bury old J. H. Eakins, as a new J. H. Eakins had been born. To-day he attempted to conduct a prayer meeting
