Rev. E. R. Donchoo Says Christians Will Ever Be Backsliders.

DOINGS OF A DAY AMONG THE CHURCHES

"Seeking the living among the dead" was the subject of Dr. Sutherland's sermon at the Second Presbyterian Church last night. His text was from Luke xxiv,5: "We are so shortsighted that we are apt to seek many of our blessings in wrong directions and wrong wavs. It is not among dead things that we ought to seek the living." He said: "Longfellow suggests that we Trust no future, howe'er pleasant; Let the dead past bury its dead. Act, act in the living present Heart within and God o'erhead.

"But the past is not all dead. It has a tremendous living, active power over us. We read of the 'pleasures of hope,' and they are not simply the dreams of fancy. They are real. But are there not also 'pleasures of memory' and sorrows of memory, too? We are acted upon-impelled or retarded, thrilled with joy and pleasure or moved to tears of sorrow and repeutance-according as the various phases of that same so-called 'dead past' move, as living forces across the horizon of the present. Some of the greatest products of the human mind owe their existence to the vivifying power of the long sepulchred yet living past. I do not agree with Longellow in calling the past dead. I do not think we make any mistake in going to the past for wisdom. The past is like the great mountain ranges full of refreshing springs that flow down to us in the valley of the present

"But directing our thoughts to the purely religious side of the subject, suppose we are looking for Christ, what possible mistakes may we make?

Make Sepulchers of Their Creeds

"Suppose we want him as a Savior, how may we miss finding him? This is a practimay we must about a think it possible that we cal question. I think it possible that we may hold a set of beliefs or a creed that is practically a tomb, i. e., a place with no living Christ. He says to himself: 'I believe all the orthodox ideas about God and man, and I think that for this reason I ought to go to beaven. I think I ought to be saved.' Now, I believe in creeds. I believe that the medern howl against creeds has no founda-tion in reason. But I do not believe that soundness in creed will be ever accepted by God for soundness in character. It is nee essary to put our ideas, opinions and views about God in proper form. I never could see why those who do the same thing with the facts of science and philosophy should think it a crime to do so with the facts of religion. If anywhere, there ought to be clear definition and clear statement of re-ligious truth. But some Christians make sepulchers for Christ out of their creeds.

Creeds With the Christ Left Out.

"They do not for them contain a living Christ. The Christ has gone out of them. In that case an angel might say to one: Why are you looking for a living Christ among dead beliefs?' Christ is not in the man's creed, and if there is no Christ there the creed is uscless. Another danger be-fore the unsaved is to think that the living Christ is to be found among the dead forms and ceremonies of religion. What we ought to seek in creeds and in worship is communion with a living Christ. "Forms and ceremonies, like creeds, if not used aright are just the things that will conceal rather than reveal Christ. If mere forms absorb the attention-if one finds his satisfaction in the way the thing is done and does not look beyond this to the thing to be sought, what he does will hide Christ. Whenever we exalt a creed or an end or an sought for itself, then we may be sure that there is no living Christ there. He will not remain in a tomb like this. God made the soul for Himself, and nothing but God can satisty it ultimately-beliefs do not, ceremonies do not

God Made the Soul and Naught Can Satisfy but His Eternal Grace. DR.SUTHERLAND'S BRIGHT SERMON you, as though it were written, addressed and mailed to you personally. "If you have not been converted, you need to learn your present condition in God's sight and from His word. You can-not save your soul from sin by any power, merit or reform of your own. Christ came into the world to seek and save sinners and God has revealed no other method of salvation than this. You are saved from sin tion than this. You are saved from sin and the punishment thereof by repenting, forsaking sin, coming to Christ and then with trust and love obeying Him. But repentance is not merely sorrow, it is sorrow plus reformation. You must faith-fully use the special helps that God has appointed to aid you in living a Christian life, study the Bible, not merely read it, and be conscientious in attending divine worship. Don't wait for deep feelings or wonderful experiences. They are not necessary tests of conversion. The saved

PAUL'S LIFE DISCUSSED.

Rev. George T. Purvis Preaches an Inter esting Sermon on the Apostle.

Rev. George T. Purvis preached to an unusually large Sunday evening congregation at the First Presbyterian Church last night on the life of the Apostle Paul.

"Paul's life was divided into two po tions," said he, "the lines between which were broad and deep, and during his entire life he was governed by ideas. Paul had a definite beliet which he ever endeavored to teach the world. His life is a practical lesson in the relation between life and creed. "In these matter of fact days belief is said to have little to do with a man's life. Heretofore it was not so. Belief was then more essential and life a secondary matter. Life is the end and creed the means of reaching it. There are a few who think not, but they are not in the realms of Christianity

Services at the County Jall.

The services at the jail yesterday were conducted by Chaplain Milligan, of the Riverside Penitentiary, assisted by the choir of the Second Presbyterian Church, Allegheny.

REV. C. H. WHITECAR, D. D., for 56 years a member of the New Jersey M. E. Annual Conference, writes: CAMDEN, N. J., Dec. 9, 1891.

Dr. D. Jayne & Son-Gentlemen: Having for many years used Dr. D. Jayne's Expec-torant in my family, as a relief and remedy for colds and coughs, I have privately recommended it to friends for its helpful and curative effects in bronchial affections, and pulmonary tendencies. To my family it remains an indispensable remedy, and with it we feel that we have at command a prompt, relieving and curative agent, to which we may resort in the suddenness and violence of attacks incident to atmospheric changes, or undue exposure. I, therefore, thus commend it for its great medicinal value. (Rev.) CHAS. H. WHITECAR. If you need the Expectorant, buy of your neighbor-druggist, whom you know.

EGGLESTON IN IRELAND. nous Novellat Stops in Pittaburg Now Writing a Book on Eastern Life-His Experiences in Erin-Suspected by the Government Police.

Edward Eggleston, the novelist, and his new wife registered at the Anderson yesterday. The author of the "Hoosier Schoolmaster" and the "Faith Doctor" is now 54 years of age, but he doesn't look that old. His thick hair has turned to a steel gray, and his beard is of the same color. He has given up writing for this year, and has turned his attention for the present to lecturing to restore his nerves which were shattered from too close confinement to the desk and by domestic afflictions. Just now be is revolving a plot for a new novel, but he said it was too chaotic for him to talk much about it. "It takes me about a year," he continued, "to complete a novel, and I think the plot of the new one will be laid in New York, and devoted to certain phases of Eastern life. I have already written five novels about the West, and before I die I would like to produce something that would be considered semi-buffalonian at least. My next novel will deal with Eastern ideas are not those who feel the deepest, but those about philosophy and religion. The suc-cess of the 'Faith Doctor' has given me who believe and do what God commands."

great encouragement to continue in my new field."

hell." The doctor was on his way to Michigan to deliver a lecture, and he stopped over in Pittsburg to rest for the day, and show his wife the Court House, "that charming build-ing," as he called it, which is rapidly gain-ing a world-wide reputation for the style of its architecture Its architecture. Mr. Eggleston spent several months of last winter while he was ill in the famine-stricken districts of Ireland. He had letters of introduction to suspected priests, and through their aid got a good idea of the cabin life of these people. He is now lecturing on this subject. "I am a Home Ruler," he said, "or favor any experiment that will better the condition of Irish af-tairs. I am aware that home rule would cause a good many innocent people to suffer. Landlords would lose their holdings, but something must be done. Civilization in its march usually tramples on somebody. remember what my people in the South lost during the war, but the time had come for slavery to go. Surely it is sad to think that a fertile country like Ireland should lie undeveloped. Half its popula-tion has been driven out into other lands.

Its great water power is running away without turning a wheel. Why, in Gal way there is enough water power wasted to almost run the industries of a city like Pittsburg. If the Irish wish to build a bridge across a creek, the consent of Parliament must first be ob-tained. Would Allegheny county put up with such dictation from Washington?

Never. The people here are not built that way. When I was in Ireland there was a strong demand for the removal of the Nel-son monument in Dublin. It seriously interfered with the business of the eity and the running of street cars, but Parliament refused to allow it. "Politics is red hot in Southern Ireland. In the famine districts the people are too poor to take any interest. A good feeling exists between the police and the people in the west part, but they don't speak as they pass by in the South. I often found myself watched by the police when they discovered I was visiting supported priorit, "

I was visiting suspected priests." "COME to my arms," he said. "Can't," says she. "I've rheumatis." "Get Salva-tion Oil." MWFSu

Christian Is Impossible,

Rev. E. R. Donehoo, of the Eighth Pres byterian Church, took as his morning text: "The backslider in heart shall be filled with his own ways." He said backsliding was a prolific theme for discussion among the sects a few years ago. The Armenian the sects a few years ago. The Armeniau insisted that a man could fall from grace The 1892 styles are more beautiful than and recover himself time after time with the greatest facility. The Calvinist argued that it was impossible for a Christian to lapte into a sinful state. These opposing parties waged a severe controversy without any substantial results for either party. The Calvinist kent slipping aside and de ploring his painful departures from the noth of rectitude, while the Armenian path of rectange, while the Armenian persisted in warning one and all against the swiul paril of depart-ing from the living God. One vied with the other in portraying the great danger to mapprehended from allowing oneself to tom grace.

While the Presbyterian argued "Once in grace, always in grace," hi. life and examde argued a very different conclusion; and he Methodist brother, while maintaining the possibility of one's frequent fall and re covery, did not besitate to warn and entrest men not to presume to go into sin with any hope of coming safely out. Said a Calvinist to a distinguished American divine: "I hear that you are opt used to the perseverance of the saints." "You are mistaken," he replied, "it is the perseverance of sinners that I am opposed to," "Yes, but you teach I am opposed in." "Yes, but you teach that a child of God can fall very low and be "On, no; I teach that it is recuvered!" very daugerous to make such an experi-

"Argue as we please " continued the pasabout backsliding, Christians have and do hackslide and will continue to do so until the millenium. David and Peter were lacksliders and were both restored, but they are not the only examples. The pos-sibility of falling into sin is always present. as the Bible everywhere teaches. There is this peculiar characteristic about backsliders-they are generally very censorious in their judgments of other Christians. Nobody is so apt to find fault with their breth ren and pout at their sins as ones who themselves are sadly in need of reformation. The man with the beam in his eye is sure to detect and point out the mote in his brother's eye. The only hope for backslider is in a thorough reformation, and one of the first evidences of his reformation is his disposition to see the good in his fel-lowmen and be silent to their faults in religious walk and conversation."

HOW ONE CAN BE SAVED.

Dr. Stanton Says There Must Be Both Sorrow and Reformation.

Rev. W. A. Stanton, D. D., began a series of sermons at the Shady Avenue Baptist Church last night, addressed to the lukewarm class of Christians who, while professing belief, keep out of the Church. His address last night was "to those interested in religion, but ignorant of its reouirements and bewildered as to their duty," his text being taken from James i:5. "You feel an interest in religion; that is, you are interested in the salvation of your soul," the preacher said, "and in knowing your duty to God. Believing you to be sale-Chenille and $4 50 a pair.
