Grande Murder Case.

CANNOT BE ABOVE MANSLAUGHTER

Loughrey Throws New Light on the Keating

Claim for $19,000. YESTERDAY IN THE COUNTY COURTS

The Le Grande murder case went to the jury last evening shortly after 5 o'clock. A considerable amount of testimony was produced by the Commonwealth to show that the theory that Le Grande died from typhoid fever was improbable.

Dr. McCann and Dr. Gentry were the most important witnesses called for this purpose. They testified that certain organs of the body reported by the physicians holding the autopsy to be in a healthy condition could not possibly have been so if death resulted from typhoid fever. No New Facts Brought Out.

Edward Le Grande, brother of the deceased, was recalled for cross-examination. Armand Deliss, another defendant, was also put on the stand, but both witnesses testifled to practically the same story as the pre-

E. E. Fulmer addressed the jury first for the defense. He was followed by J. R. Mc-Quaide, who paid his respects to that hack-neved "reasonable doubt" which crops out every murder case. District Attorney trieigh addressed the jury for the Commonwealth. Judge Porter in his charge to the jury said that when a blow is inflicted on a man in ill health if death results from the blow, it is an unlawful homicide. A man may be afflicted by a fatal disease and if death results from a blow sooner than it would have otherwise done, the person inflicting the blow is accountable.

Not Above Voluntary Manslaughter. He defined the several degrees of murder and gave as his opinion that the verdict in the present case could not be above volun-tary manslaughter. The case then went to the jury and court adjourned until 9:30 this Charles Cain pleaded guilty in Criminal Court yesterday to the larceny of a gold and a silver watch and an overcost, all valued at 805, from the residence of W. Joyce, 24 Old avenue, and was sentenced to the work-

Charles Reed and Andy Johnston were nequitted of the charge of robbing Howard Morrow in a lumber yard off Robinson street, Allegheny, November II, on cath of Superintendent Muth.

John Boyland was tried for perjury, but the jury disagreed. Some time ago Boyland was on a Southside car, and he alleged that George Smith stoles a dismond win from Magnie Kelly was tried for misappropriating partnership funds. The defendant and larg fludson started a hoarding house in the McJounid oil field some time ago and te suit grew out of a dispute over funds, the lary rendered a verdict of not guilty, to defendant to not costs. in a scaled verdict.

He Declares the Plaintiff Still Ower Loughrey & Frew $50,000.

Attorneys J. S. and E. G. Ferguson and Duff & Harrison yesterday filed the answer of Joseph Loughrey, surviving partner of the firm of Loughrey & Frew, to the suit rought against him by Anthony F. Keating. The sair was brought by Keating to recover $19,057 52 alleged to have been loaned by him o the firm during the five years preceding October, 1883. In his answer Mr. Loughrey donies owing Kenting anything, and asserts October, 1883. In his answer Mr. Loughrey donies owing Keating anything, and asserts that Keating owes the firm at least $39,000. He says that it is not true that the plaintiff loaned and advanced to Loughrey & Frew during the time stated certain sums, nor is it true that any part of the amount claimed is due the plaintiff. He says there is no account upon the books of Loughrey & Frew by which it would seem the firm was indebted to Keating in the sum claimed by him, but during the period covered by the account the books of the firm were kept by Jacob A. Keating, a brother of the plaintiff, and the account as kept by him did not come to the knowledge of defendants or any of them until the said Jacob A. Keating was discharged. Loughrey also states that when the account was discovered Keating says the firm was not indebted to blim. He further says A. F. Keating borrowed money from the firm continuously. Continuing, Mr. Loughrey says: "In the account as kept by said Jacob A. Keating were made to him, the said plaintiff, for many of the sums of money loaned him by said firm of Loughrey & Frew. Said delendants books as kept by said Jacob A. Keating were improperly kept and are in a state of confusion. Affant, however, holds in his possession Loughrey & Frew Schecks and other vonchers for money paid to and on account of said phaintiff amounting to $1.50,000. In order to determine the true state of the account between plaintiff and delendant it will be necessary for the plaintiff to produce his bank and check books and checks in the trief of this case, and affant now demands the production thereof at trut time."

He further says he will prove Keating is indebted to the firm for $50,000 and that the audits on the books are really for money loaned to Keating or paid on his paper.
