SPECIAL TELEGRAPHIC MATTER.
REPEAL OF THE DISPATCH.
WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 22. If the Hon. Roger Q. Mills desires to come to the Senate of the United States, it would be well for him to give broader latitude to the common sense that is supposed to be lurking somewhere in his brain, but which is just now in concealment.

It was supposed when Mr. Mills went to Texas home and became thoroughly rested after his depressing campaign, that he would return in a happy frame of mind and show his friends that he could rise superior to the assaults of outrageous fortune, and by hard work and wealth and labors of purpose maintain his position as one of the chief figures of the House and make his path to the Senate easy. It is now feared by his friends that his temper has been improved by the sort of bath of Gilboa found in Texas, and that it is his intention to be a marplot throughout this term of Congress.

SHOULD BE HEARD FROM SOON.
When his refusal to act as Chairman of the Committee on Inter-State and Foreign Commerce was announced, his friends accepted his act as another way of stating that he would simply do nothing, but sit sulkily throughout the term, distributing no mind except his own. It appears that this is not his plan. He has already informed his friends that it is his purpose to disturb the equality and the policy of the Crisp administration in the House to the extent of his ability.

Especially he will attack the conservative line of action marked out by Mr. Crisp and his friends in regard to tariff affairs. This involves no broader assault on the present tariff than attempt to make changes in spots which are admitted to be somewhat weak, and then only to an extent acceptable to a number of the Republicans of the House and Senate. In short, they would prefer to attempt change only where change seems to be possible, rather than to waste time on propositions against which would be arrayed the solid Republican forces, and which would be plainly understood to be mere benevolence for campaign use.

An Anti-McKinley Bill Coming.
Not so much for the purpose of attacking the tariff as to expose and expose the timid and conservative policy of Mr. Crisp and Mr. Springer. Mr. Mills proposes to introduce a bill which would completely revise the tariff act known as the McKinley law. Of course his bill will be referred to the Committee on Ways and Means, of which Mr. Springer is Chairman. Mr. Springer will be disposed to let it sleep in his committee, and this is where the fight will begin.

The feeling between the two gentlemen is anything but cordial. It will be remembered that the conductors of Mr. Mills' campaign for the Speakership boldly went into the Springer camp and stole from the great patron of the boutonniere girls two of his supporters from his own State. Mr. Springer has not forgotten Mr. Mills for this, and the manner in which he expressed himself in regard to Texas strategy has not tended to soothe the feelings of the much disgruntled statesman from Pennsylvania.

A Series of Battles in Sight.
The prospects are good for a series of pitched battles, more or less intellectual, between Mr. Springer and Mr. Mills, continuing throughout this session, which, if the war with Chile fails to materialize, will furnish something so near approaching an equivalent that they who are praying for a period of repose may be in a measure satisfied.

Mr. Springer's powers of invective are usually not quite equal to those of Mr. Mills. His bile flows less freely. His anger is slower in action and never grows quite as hot as that of Mr. Mills, but what he lacks in this respect will be supplied by the moral and parliamentary assistance of Speaker Crisp, who, from his point of vantage, will have it in his power to drive Mr. Mills to the verge of destroying himself with the very excess of his anger.

Mr. Crisp, by the way, means to introduce nearly five weeks since the beginning of his attack, and his physicians have not yet told him positively the time when he can resume his duties. The work of Congress has suffered unparalleled delay on account of his illness. The last week of the second month is here, and nothing of importance has been done by the House. Through the Senate is well up with its work, the prophets are predicting a session lasting until October.

Bears at Work on Chile.
There have been mysterious movements in regard to Chile, during the last two or three days, which have led to a decided bearish tendency in war hopes and feelings, culminating to-day in the most positive as-urance which has been given at any time hitherto, that the international brawl will be adjusted without resort to arms.

Several conferences between Minister Monte and Secretary Blaine have been held within the last 24 hours, and confidential messengers have been flying hither and yonder with the speed of Mercury, carrying communications of vital importance. One of these was sent to New York a day or two ago from the Chilean legation—it is supposed for the purpose of conferring with ex-Mayor Grace, who has been deep in the Chilean trouble from the beginning, and on the side of the now successful revolutionists. The failure of the President to send any communication to Congress this week was due to the change in the face of affairs, and it may yet occur that neither his message nor the Chilean correspondence will be made public.

A Peaceful Conclusion Expected.
It is believed that a satisfactory composition of the whole trouble will be reached within a few days, notwithstanding a report that Chile demands six weeks longer for investigation, and that the President firmly declares that reparation must be made out of pocket.

The Contest of Craig versus Stewart, of the Twenty-fourth Pennsylvania District, was before the Committee on Contested Elections of the House to-day, and the arguments of the lawyers on either side were heard for several hours. Mr. Stewart was represented by W. S. Gallier, of Uniontown, and his case was argued by his son, J. E. Craig, S. J. Brennan, of Pittsburgh, and W. J. McCarrell, of Harrisburg. The case of the contestant is based on a charge that about 100 votes were received by Stewart from persons who were not registered. Stewart claims to be able to show over 1,100 votes cast for Craig of which there was no evidence of registry. The contesting lawyers have asked that the votes were received by the election officers was prima facie evidence of registry, though the record of registry could not be shown.

Stewart's Principal Strong Point.
A strong point was made for Stewart in a remarkable statement, well sustained by proof, that W. J. Brennan, attorney for Craig, had in some of the election districts taken possession of the ballot boxes and broken them open, thereby committing a positive infraction of law, coolly informing Stewart after he got through that Stewart could then have the ballots to do with them as he pleased. Mr. Brennan had such great confidence in his teller that he never suspected anything had happened in his camp until the charges were preferred by Hahn and the fact known from the grand jury that the subject and evidence had been considered by that body.

A FINE CHURCH IN ASHES.
The Catholics of Conneville Lose Their Edifice and Contents, Involving a Loss of $100,000—Being on a Tall Cliff Firemen Fought at a Disadvantage.

CONNELLYVILLE, Jan. 22.—[Special.]—The Catholic church edifice here with all its contents was totally destroyed by fire at 1 o'clock this morning. The whole interior of the building was in flames, consequently none of the valuable paintings, records, furniture, etc., could be gotten out.

The fire companies of this place, assisted by the New Haven Company, fought manfully to save the costly edifice, but owing to the location of the building on a tall cliff, the place where the fire raged most fiercely could not be reached by the firemen. After finding it impossible to save the church, they turned their attention to other buildings in the vicinity, many of which caught fire from the flying embers.

The fire originated in the sacristy over the church, which it spread because of an overheated and ignited the woodwork. On Thursday evening a fire was discovered in the same place, but was extinguished before it could do any damage. The church, including contents, was valued at nearly $100,000, on which there was only $25,000 insurance. The church was built in 1886, and the building was the finest church edifice in this county, alone cost $50,000.

FIRST RAIN IN FOUR YEARS.
The Protracted Drought in Durango Is Finally Broken.

DURANGO, MEX., Jan. 22.—[Special.]—A steady rain has been falling here for two days, and there are no indications for an early cessation of the downpour. This is the first drop of rain that has fallen here in four years. The drought in this part of the State is broken, but there will be no decrease in the suffering among the people for several months, as crops will not be harvested until next August.

So far 25,000 bushels of corn have been purchased by the State Government, and distributed among the half-famished wards of the city. It is estimated that 10,000 bushels of grain will have to be purchased to carry the starving people through the next six months. All of this corn will be purchased in the United States.

A PLUM FOR PENNSYLVANIA.
Generally Thought That Bradley's Successor Will Be Keating Man.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 22.—[Special.]—Already there is talk of the probable successor of Justice Bradley on the Supreme Court bench. President Harrison has had unusual opportunities for appointing Supreme Court Justices and legal officers generally—a greater number probably than any of his predecessors. It is accepted for sure that the appointment will go to some one within the circuit now represented by Justice Bradley, which comprises Pennsylvania, Delaware and New Jersey. It is thought that Pennsylvania will probably get the place. In this connection Chief Justice Paxton or Judge Mitchell, of the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania, are prominently mentioned.

If this selection should be made from New Jersey the appointment will probably go to Judge Green, District Judge of New Jersey, whom Mr. Harrison would have appointed to the Circuit Bench had he not decided to appoint a Democrat from that circuit.

EGAN NOT RECALLED.
A Wild Rumor Strikes Washington, but Secretary Tracy Strangles It.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—It was reported in Washington to-night that United States Government had recalled Minister Egan from Chile. The report gave very general circulation and created considerable excitement. It was learned, however, that the story was without foundation. Secretary Tracy was asked at a late hour as to the correctness of the report, and replied that it was entirely untrue.

CARELESSNESS COSTS FOUR LIVES.
A Frightful Collision Between a Special and a Passenger Train.

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M., Jan. 22.—Shortly after 12 o'clock this morning a special train coming east collided at Bluewater, a station on the Atlantic and Pacific Railroad, 107 miles west of Albuquerque, with four employees, Engineer Taylor and Fireman Will Beazley, of the passenger; Engineer Moore, of the special, and Extra Conductor Moran were killed. The fireman of the special had a leg cut off. No serious injuries to any passengers are reported.

Both engines are demolished. The special had a time order to make Bluewater at 12:30 A. M., where it was to meet the passenger. A special hearing officials of the railroad went to the scene of the accident this morning. It is believed to be a case of criminal carelessness.

CHICAGO GOOD FOR CLEVELAND,

As It Was There He Was Nominated in His Successful Year.

NOW BACKED AS HE NEVER WAS BEFORE

SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE DISPATCH.
PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 22.—Secretary of State William F. Harrity returned to the city from Washington this afternoon, especially well satisfied with the conclusions of the Democratic National Executive Committee, of which he is now a member and whose future business transactions he expects to take a prominent part.

"There was no question over my eligibility or right to represent Pennsylvania," said Mr. Harrity this evening. "The action of the State Central Committee determined all that in the credentials I presented as the duly elected and accredited successor to the vacancy created by the death of Mr. Scott, and the National Executive Committee members were prompt to recognize the work of the State committee. Why should not they? A Democratic body believes in the rule of the majority, and it is simply the doctrine of State rights over again, and in a rather material matter. I first met Senator Gorman four years ago at St. Louis, and he was very courteous in his meeting with me yesterday. He is one of the great Democratic leaders of the day."

The Committee for Cleveland.
Speaking about the Presidential sentiment in the National Committee Mr. Harrity said: "A large majority of the members probably four-fifths of the number, believe that Mr. Cleveland will be and is the national candidate this year, and that tariff reform is the issue. It is my duty to be quite in keeping with the majority of the reports that burden the wires out of Washington nowadays, but it is the truth, far as my personal observation and contact with the committee members enable me to form a correct judgment. The National Democratic Convention at Chicago next June means Cleveland for the Cleveland sentiment. There is nothing more certain respecting Pennsylvania for the Cleveland sentiment never had stronger hold on the masses than it has to-day. And the Pennsylvania Democracy are simply part of the great line now closing ranks once more for the cause of Cleveland. It is a great honor to be headed, and the response will show that the will of the people is the party's first law."

FOUND A FRIEND IN NEED.
An Anonymous Letter Settles the Ownership of Valuable Property.

NEWPORT, V. I., Jan. 22.—[Special.]—Several years ago a man of the name of Consolvo the homestead property in the heart of the city was sold under an order of the Court for a division.

Miss Virginia Consolvo insisted that she was being badly treated, but was forced to leave. Recently she received an anonymous letter, saying that she had a right to the half covering of an old trunk in the possession of her father, Mr. Consolvo, she would find his will. She did so. The will was there, and it leaves the property to her. The trunk was found in the possession of a man who kept him awake. The Keeper told him to go to bed. How long he stayed there is not known. He was awakened about his rounds, and about 1:35 he heard a strange noise emanating from the room in which Williams was confined. He went through the long passage to the door, when a guttural sound reached his ears, which sounded like one breathing heavily and trying to get breath. He immediately opened the door and turned up the light.

Leonard looked in the direction from whence the loud gasps came, and was startled to see Williams clutching at Brownella's throat. Williams was on his feet and wrapped tightly about the poor fellow's neck. Leonard threw the man from his victim and cut the bandage off at once from the now already unconscious man. Leonard notified the assistants and physicians, who responded promptly and resuscitated the unfortunate Brownella. During their excitement they did not think to look about the room. A four men saw pieces taken from their arms and applied to the wounds of their friend.

GRIP AT THE CAMPS.
The Minnesota Mining and Lumbering Forces Crippled by the Scourge.

DULUTH, Jan. 22.—The grip is developing with remarkable severity in the mining and lumbering camps near Duluth. News has just been received from the Biwabic, Shaw, Canton and other mines on the West side of the State, that the grip is attacking all hands and in many cases is very serious. Three physicians left to-day for the mining locations.

At the lumber camps of the district, where 4,000 men are at work, there is a good deal of grip reported, and in several almost a complete cessation of work has been forced.

WHISKY TRUST REORGANIZATION.
A Basis of $25,000,000 Capitalization Now Under Consideration.

CHICAGO, Jan. 22.—[Special.]—The Times says a plan for the reorganization of the whisky trust is being considered by the directors of the trust.

It is proposed to unite the distillers not in the whisky trust on a basis of a capitalization of $25,000,000, and then to unite with that combination the 80 distilleries now controlled by the trust, making a joint stock company, partly American and partly English, with a capitalization of $75,000,000 or $100,000,000, and with an absolute monopoly of the manufacture of spirituous liquors.

CHICAGO, Jan. 22.—3:30 A. M.—"The theater train from Chicago, on Rock Island road, is in a ditch at Blue Island and is burning up." That was the message that reached the newspaper offices in Chicago this morning at 1:30 o'clock. "Theater train" leave Chicago on nearly all roads shortly before midnight with passengers for the suburbs and towns beyond for a long distance. Usually the coaches bear a heavy load of merry-makers homeward bound after an evening's enjoyment at the amusement places. If the rumor is true another railroad horror will be chronicled to-day.

GREASERS GO HOME

In Such Numbers as to Indicate That They Intend to Join Garza.

TOWNS ARE DEPOPULATED, And Migrating Mexicans Have but One Reply to Questions.

THEIR SOLE RETURN, QUIEN SABE?

Interesting Developments Expected Soon at San Antonio.

TWO OF THE REBEL LEADERS TO BE SHOT

SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE DISPATCH.
SAN ANTONIO, Tex., Jan. 22.—There is a large Mexican population in Southwest Texas, and the indications are that there are very few of them who are not in sympathy with Garza and his cause. In the Mexico quarter of this city scores of men have left their families and quietly departed for the border, where they will take a hand in the war when the ball is opened. The excitement has spread along the whole length of the Rio Grande border.

John H. Maunell, a prominent and wealthy stock man of Sonora, Tex., situated 300 miles west of this city, arrived here to-day. He states that the Garza revolution, despite the fact that the Government officials of Mexico would make it appear an insignificant affair, has taken definite organization. "This is evidenced," said he, "by the fact that almost every day bands of Mexicans, who, until recently, have been enjoying the peaceful pursuits of a pastoral life on the ranches about Sonora to the southward, when offered work even at increased wages, stoutly refuse. When asked as to their destination, the invariably reply given is 'Quien sabe?'"

"The little town of Sonora, but a little while ago quite a place of its kind, numbering several thousand white men, and good substantial houses, the houses of contented Mexicans, is now left but a name and a desolate memory of its former thrift and bustling activity. If you should ask any of the people about their future, few will stay about the former happy homes where their neighbors are gone their answer is the all-expressive 'Quien sabe?'"

If you recently learned from one in a position to know that the crusade has been going on quietly, and that its destination is the Mexican border, where they will recruit the Garza forces, you may organize in small detachments for a movement concentrating in a combined attack on some point in Mexico, probably Monterey or Saltillo, and the ultimate object of the revolution is to overthrow the present Government, and to reconstitute and remodel it on a true republican basis.

Suspicious Actions of the Mexicans.
"On Monday last some parties passed through Sonora, which had been out in the country for some time, and were prospecting for farms. They report having met several bands of armed Mexicans going toward the Rio Grande. These parties had not been in the country for some time, and were inquiring the reason of so many armed Mexicans going into the country. They thought their actions rather suspicious."

"It has been reported that Garza is a rallying point for the gathering, arming and equipping of these bands. The Mexicans in the vicinity of Sonora refuse to converse upon the subject of the war trouble, and do not explain the numerous suspicious circumstances of the past two weeks. The secret agents of Garza are effectually doing his work in that part of the country."

No More to Be Riddled.

"There are no more Mexicans working on all the ranches throughout the country who have heretofore made reliable herders, but the effect of the local agitation is so great that all appear uneasy, and do not explain the numerous suspicious circumstances of the past two weeks. If Garza should appear now in this country he would doubtless be warmly greeted by hundreds who would at once cheerfully enroll in his cause. Little is said, but it is thought that much remains unexplained which may yet surprise the most wary."

General David S. Stanley issued an order to-day for Captain John G. Bourke, in command at Ft. Ringgold, and Major Louis T. Morris, in command at Ft. McIntosh, to report at military departments headquarters at San Antonio. This order was issued at the fort here, and some interesting developments are expected.

Sentenced to Be Shot.
A special from Dennis, N. M., says here to-day that the Messillo Valley, which will endeavor to secure the removal of Remigio Sals, the leader of the revolution in Aragon, and two lieutenants who were arrested there by the United States authorities. There is no extradition treaty between Mexico and the United States, and the insurgents cannot be taken to Mexico by force. Two of the leaders under arrest in Aragon have been sentenced to be shot. The execution will take place in a few days. Over 400 sympathizers of the revolution have been arrested here. They have all crossed into the United States and are seeking refuge along the border.

There is no possible doubt that Garza has been seized for non-payment of duties. All bear the names of well-known artists. The question now to be determined is whether the paintings are original. Among those who have examined the collection is a number of skeptics who are supposed to be unbelievers, though doubtless expect either Springer or Gros to agree with them.

THE CHINESE TROUBLES.
A RETURNED MISSIONARY TELLS OF THE RECENT RIOTS.

He Says the Riots on Catholics Were Due to the Latter Winning an Important Law Suit From Them—How the Rebellion Was Finally Quashed.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 22.—[Special.]—One of the clearest statements of the troubles in China near the Great Wall, which has been suppressed with great slaughter, is given by Rev. J. H. Pyke, a missionary of the Methodist Episcopal Church, one of the ministers of the Rio de Janeiro from China, who has been stationed at Tzun Hui, a town about 100 miles from Peking and situated about 80 miles from the Great Wall. He was released from quarantine yesterday.

Rev. Pyke lives in Tzun Hui for six years, but he left there November 25 last, by advice of the Governor. Otherwise he might have been killed. He says the country around Tzun Hui is very wild, and the attendants of the other districts being nothing more than a body of thieves who make periodic raids on smaller towns for booty, carrying on their depredations in a large band, so well mounted and equipped that the local authorities are unable to hold them in check.

Becoming more bold recently they determined to visit and if possible, carry out the present dynasty. With this view in view about 20,000 of them mobilized, inscribed the motto "Down With the Tartar Dynasty" on their banners, marched on the town of Chao Yang and destroyed four Roman Catholic stations, massacred seven priests and several hundred native Catholics, and were not subdued until the Imperial Government sent 1,000 regular troops against them.

A battle was fought between the regulars and insurgents, in which over 1,000 rebels were killed. Several regulars were captured and the rebels scattered all over the country, thereby practically quashing the rebellion.

Mr. Pyke attributes the killing and raiding of Catholics especially to the fact that they had won a law suit involving considerable property against a certain Chinese company, which so increased the latter that they were able to pay upon any insurrection to wipe their enemies out.

The members of Mr. Pyke's own mission were remarkably well treated during the years of his sojourn there, and on the departure of himself, wife and family the Chinese officials presented him with a proper escort and all the necessary facilities for his journey. Mr. Pyke has received telegraphic dispatches sent to foreign papers convey the idea that the troubles in the Flowery Kingdom are due to the jealousy of missionaries, such is not the case. He says the riots were a purely national uprising.

He Insists Upon Wharrey Nellie McHenry, Whether or No.

NEW YORK, Jan. 22.—[Special.]—An enthusiastic crank interrupted the performance of "A Night at the Circus" at the Bedford Avenue Theater, in Williamsburg, to-night by loudly proclaiming his love for Nellie McHenry. He was in a front seat and he was well known to the audience. He was in a front seat and he was well known to the audience. He was in a front seat and he was well known to the audience.

Then he made his way in past the door man at the stage entrance by representing himself as one of the company. He said, for years, and intended to marry her.
