FLEEING TO SIBERIA.

Starving Families Tramp Thousands of Miles Through Snow

TO SUBSIST ON ARCTIC CHARITY.

Typhus and Scarlet Fever Claim Victims Left by Starvation.

RELIGIOUS CONSOLATION WITHHELD

LONDON, Jan. 26.—Advices received here from St. Petersburg show that thousands of peasants from the famine-stricken districts have started for Siberia in the hope that they will be able to effect some betterment in their condition in that part of the empire. On Saturday last it was announced that 1,400 of these emigrants, who had the city of Tobolsk as their objective point, had arrived at Tioomen, 120 miles southwest of Toboisk. These people had no money. Siekness was decimating their numbers, and, altogether, their condition was about as miserable and hopeless as could well be imagined.

The more kind-hearted among the inhabitants did all they could to alleviate the distress among the emigrants. Of course, these men, women and children could not pay for conveyance. They were too sick or exhausted to walk the 120 miles to Tobolsk, and being thus unable to go forward or to return, they were compelled to subsist entirely upon charity.

Doubling the Town's Population. Their number was constantly added to by fresh arrivals. Daily, hourly, there was a constant stream of these unfortunates pouring into the town, and every newcomer made the situation worse for those already in the town,

The condition of affairs at Tioomen is too terrible for language to describe, and no one can tell what the outcome will be. In the town, whose population is but 15,000, and its immediate vicinity, there are now 14,000 persons who are absolutely destitute and helpless, and whom it is impossible for the residents of the place to help. The scenes of misery and actual starvation are almost beyond the power of pen to portray.

Of shelter, it may be said that they have practically none, their only protection from the elements being shear constructed of light boards, which, though they may to a measure protect them from snow, do not in any way save them from the effects of the bitter cold Siberian winter. There is not a par-ticle of fire in the sheds, and the only warmth the sufferers have is their own bodies huddled in groups.

Pestilence Adds Other Terrors. In this dense mass of humanity typhus and scarlet fever is making sad ravages. Weakened by their long and painful journey, enforced abstinence from nourishing and by their utter hopelessness, they fall ready victims to the scource.

It is impossible to render medical aid to the sufferers. However willing they might be, the doctors in Tioomen are completely powerless to battle against the diseases that are carrying off the peasants in enormous numbers. To be attacked by either of the fevers is almost certain death. No care can be taken of the sick, no precautions to prevent the epidemic from spreading, and the people of Tioomen are fearful lest they, too, fall victims.

So numerous have the deaths became that there is no pretense of holding a funeral over the bodies. Neither are the last sacraments of the Church administered to the dying. So intensely cold is the weather that in a very short time after death the bodies of the victims are frozen stiff. The bodies are then thrown into earts and taken to the cometery, where they are uncore-moniously buried in a common pit, The Inhuman Greek Priests.

Amid all this misery the action of the priests of the Greek Church stands out in vivid contrast to the humanity which it is thought should be shown by those in their Ticomen, which is the oldest town in Siberia, has many churches and many priests, and here, if anywhere, it would be expected that compassion would be shown for the sick and dving; but the priests fatly refuse to officiate at the side of the dying or to perform any funeral rites unless they are paid. The priests give as an ex-cuse for their heartlessness that they are too busy to attend to the poor emigrants.

The Opera House Fire Cleans Out Many Firms at a Less of Half a Million.

COLUMBUS, Jan. 25.-A small blaze started about 7:40 o'clock in the large building at the corner of Rich and High streets, and before noon the entire block from Rich street to Walnut, and from High to Wall, had been gutted by the flames. At noon nothing but the bare walls of the out ding, occupying a full half block, were standing. It was impossible to get a complete list of the losses and insurance, especially the latter, as it is so extensively distributed through many agencies. A rough estimate places the total damage at about $500,000, with an insurance of $300,-000. All the people were taken from the building without injury, though there were some thrilling escapes, especially among the 205 employes of the Goodman shoe fac-

About 125 Sailers and Italians Helplessly fight on the Ge-an, With No Help in Fight-A Steamer, With Scows in Tow,

Helpless-Frantic Crews. NEW YORK, Jan. 26.-The towboat Webster and two seems belonging to the Department of Street Cleaning are drifting out to sea. The steamboat is beyond the control of her skipper and crew. She has not been seen since 9:30 o'clock this morning, when sine was sighted by the Rockaway Life-Saving Station. At that time she was signalling for a sistance. This much was known late this afternoon, but since then the lookouts on the Long Island Coast report that while the Webster was struggling in the teeth of a gaie her hawser broke and became tangled in and about her propeller. Thus she was at the mercy of a terrible sea and bobbing helplessly.

The greater terror, however, was about the garbage seems which had been towed out into the ocean. On these scows it is stated there were at least 60 Italians. These helpless creatures were seen by the outlooks to be moving about frantically, erazed, no oubt, with fright and their impotence in their terrible situation,

H. S. Nichols, with two other scows anchored her tow and started to the assistance of the Webster. The Captain of the Nichols concluded, however, that with his own anchored scows in extreme danger, and the chances of reaching the Webster against him, to return. Meanwhile her own scows, also carrying 60 men, mostly Italians, broke loose and drifted out to sea. The Nichols succeeded in anchoring her seows and making port again, but the Webster and her crafts disappeared completely. The Nichols and Dosoris are now searching for the missing vessels. It is thought that at least 125 men, all told, are floating helpless on the open sea.

us the information; send to us that which has been communicated to you. Let us have it before our opinions crystallize into convictions; before we become biased by the reading of this correspondence in which are unkind and bitter ,things: before our tempers are aronsed by offensive utterances—utterances which may have been made before any conclusion is reached, give us all the facts so that we may keep our minds unbiased until we have all that is possible of truth and light to base our conclusions upon. If the gentleman from Georgia (Mr. Blount) thinks the resolution ought not to come up for immediate consideration I will come up for immediate consideration I will not oppose him, though I will most seriously think it is a mistake.

Committee Rights Upheld, Mr. Blount, of Georgia, Chairman of the Committee on Foreign Affairs, replying to Mr. Breckinridge, said:

Whether or not this House hereafter, in its wisdom and in view of the gravity of the situation, in the matter of our relations with Chile, sees fit to consider them in secret with Chile, sees fit to consider them in secret session, at least it seems to me that at his time, before that course shall have been considered at all, there ought not be thrust upon this House and the country, by any mode of procedure, a discussion on that situation. [Applause on the Republican side.] I remember, and it is familiar to you all, the course pursued in the War of 1812. A message was sent to the Conzress of the United States; the Senare and House went into secret session; the Committees on Foreign Affairs resolved upon secresy of procedure, and the report of the Committee on Foreign Affairs was made to this House, accompanied by a declaration of war and other Foreign Affairs was made to this House, accompanied by a declaration of war and other measures subsequently in relations to regulations of privateering; yet nothing was given to the public; the injunction of secresy was never removed until the Executive signature had been affixed to the bill declaring war. Is there anything in that procedure, directed by the eminent men of those times, to admonish us that either by indirection or by direction we shall deviate from that deliberate, calm course in which the safety of the country rests?

the country rests? Sir, there is a great responsibility upon this House at this time. I trust that this resolution will be referred to the Committee resolution will be referred to the Committee on Foreign Affairs, and that every matter touching this question will be so referred, because we have an illustration this very instant how unexpectedly to everybody the situation has been brought to the consideration of the House and the country.

All Information to Be Discussed. I presume and I trust that no gentleman mon the floor of this House will undertake o discuss the matter, pro and con. So far as any information is concerned in relation to dispatches received to-day or yesterday or to-morrow, I, for one, and speaking for the Committee on Foreign Affairs, assure the Committee on Foreign Affairs, assure the gentleman from Kontucky and this House that that committee will not be willing to report to this body without exhausting all the information to be had from the correspondence. [Applause on the Republican side.] And I beg this House to remember that the line of safety is the line of deliberation. You can treat this matter as well to merrow or next week, after deliberation, as you can in the passion provoked by instantaneous discussion. I beg that we shall be earnest, serious, calm, manly, in all this matter.

Mr. Herbert was recognized for five minutes in opposition to the adoption of Mr. Breckenridge's resolution. He said: We are in the midst of a very grave crisis. We are in the midst of a very grave crisis. No one can say with absolute certainty that the situation is less grave to-day than it was yesterday. No one can say with absolute certainty that the dispatch which appeared this morning as an Associated Press dispatch from Santiago is true. There are circumstances connected with that dispatch or at least there are features on the face of the which in my coining, render it very or at least there are features on the face of it—which, in my opinion, render it very doubtful whether the dispatch is true. Suppose that the dispatch is untrue and that we pass now the resolution of the gentleman from Kentucky, what will be its meaning? I don't say that the gentleman himself intends to cast any such imputation, but in my opinion the country will look at a resolution like that as imputing to the Chief Executive, in a matter of such great concern as his message on yesterday, but faith to the country and bud faith to this House. Are we ready now to do that?

A Stand for the Committee.

An attempt to press this resolution to an mediate consideration also carries with it some imputation upon the Committee on Foreign Affairs, to which this whole matter were surprised to hear that he and Miss Harvey had been married, for Lyons had never denied that he left a wife in England.
It is likely that Miss Harvey's petition will be granted.

Foreign Analys, to which this whole instead in the competent to consider this whole question? I think we can trust that committee, and I think, too, if there be anything in this resolution, that it will keep for a few days. At a time when the issues of prace or war are trembling in the balance, let us be war are trembling in the balance, let us be deliberate. Let us not now engage in a discussion in which there will be on the part of certain gentlemen an attack upon the President, and upon the part of others a defense of the Chief Executive. Is this a time for the House to engage in a discussion on that line? Has the gentleman from Kentucky, or anybody else, any reason to give why a discussion of this kind, if proper at any time, ought to be precipitated now? I trust the House will not do it, but will let it go to the Committee on Foreign Affairs, which must, under the rules, make a report within 15 under the rules, make a report within 15

Mr. McCreary, of Kentucky, a member of the Foreign Affairs Committee, next spoke,

This House is confronted now with grave This House is confronted now with grave and important questions. The questions were of sufficient importance for the President to send to this House yesterday a message accompanied with documents and diplomatic correspondence. This morning the Committee on Foreign Affairs had a meeting. Therefore I have a right to assume that all proper dispatch has been made. I that all proper dispatch has been made. I respect my friend from Kentucky who has offered this resolution, but I see no reason now for unreasonable haste in the management of a question so important as this. If this resolution is referred to the Committee this resolution is referred to the Committee on Foreign Affairs I have reason to believe that it will receive immediate and prompt consideration. We have not in the last few weeks been acting in this House according to what we see in newspapers, but we have waited, sir, until the Executive sent to this House a statement of the situation in Chile, accommanied by correspondence.

A Time for Gravity and Calmness. Is there any reason why this House should undertake, when there is a Committee on Foreign Affairs appointed to look into these matters, to take charge of this matter and call for the additional correspondence? If there is other correspondence it will come in due time. But it seems to me that the in due time. But it seems to me that the situation demands that gravity, that calimness, that deliberation, that care which will show that we are not now acting as partisans, but acting as patriets. [Applause.] This resolution should be referred to the Committee on Foreign Affairs. An early report will be made. No one can be injured by delay. The country caunot be injured, and this important question will not be injured by a reasonable delay in order that a committee of this House shall consider it. [Applause.]

plause.] Mr. Blount moved the previous question on his motion to refer the resolution to the Committee on Foreign Affairs, but finally rielded five minutes to Mr. Breckinridge, the author of the resolution.

Merely a Move for More Light. Mr. Breekinridge was surprised that a esolution which sought for nothing but information should have met the opposition it had. The resolution did not touch the merits of any controversy between Chile and the United States. It did not criticise anybody, executive officer or Minister, or anybody, executive oncer or Minister, or anybody, executive of this transaction. It simply asked for light.

Mr. Burrows, of Michigan, inquired whether the gentleman thought that the President, when he received the dispatch, would decline to communicate it to Con-

"I think," replied Mr. Breckinridge, "that when the President of the United States receives this communication from the House he will not decline. [Applause on the Democratic side.] That is precisely the object of this resolution."

Continuing, Mr. Breckinridge said the gentlemen who had spoken had no sense of the gravity of the crisis now upon the country deeper than he had himself. It was because he feared that war might be forced when it was not necessary for the honor of the American Republic that he had offered the resolution.

Mr. Blount, of Georgia, thought there

Mr. Blount, of Georgia, thought there was no way for the House to guard against itself except by referring the resolution to the Committee on Foreign Affairs. The power lay in Congress—not in the President—to say whether or not war should be declared. The Executive could not compel this body to do anything but what it willed, and therefore he trusted that the House would proceed with deliberation and courage from the beginning to the and of this

On motion of Mr. Blount the resolution was then referred to the Committee on Foreign Affairs without objection.

YOUNG ON DENNY LYONS CASE

The extraordinary result or at least the unexpected ending of the bowling contest of the three teams at Bellefield Monday evening has interested hundreds of patrons of the alleys. One of the public left his views in the way of a letter at this office last evening. The letter said:

"The Hostetter Cup for bowlers has proven such a source of interest and compe tition that it would seem advisable to offer a cup or trophy of worth to the best baseball team in Allegheny county. The cap or trophy must be won by the same club or team three years in succession. "In mentioning this I want to say that the same notion applies to football teams. If anybody is willing to help in the guarantee of a trophy let him send his name and address to the sporting editor of THE DISPATCH. I will support either."

WILL SUSTAIN LYONS.

That's What the League Will Do if Denny Signs With New York.

Washington, Jan. 26.—[Special.]—President Young was interviewed to-night concerning Pittsburg's further efforts to secure the ser vices of third baseman Denny Lyons for the coming season. Mr. Young was shown the statement from Pittsburg published this morning. He said he received a communication from Manager Powers, of the New York club, saying Lyons wanted to know what he should do about signing. Mr. Young in reply said Lyons was regularly assigned to play in New York, and it is his duty to sign with that club, unless the latter consents to his transfer to Pittsburg. As Lyons is said to have received $5.0 att-vance money from Pittsburg, Mr. Young directs that the money shall be refunded at

In reply to a question Mr. Young says there is nothing in the rules of the new League to prevent the New York and Pitis-burg clubs from reaching an amicable arres-ment with regard to Lyons. The assignment with regard to Lyons. The assignment of players was made with a view to equalizing, as far as possible, the playing strength of the various clubs, and it was impossible to satisfy everybody. If the New York club feels that it can get along without the services of Lyons, and wants to waive claim to him in favor of Pitsburg, there would be no objection to such an arrangement. It seems, however, that Lyons prefers to play in New York, and Manager Powers is disposed to retain him, and there is but one thing for Lyons to do, and that is for him to play in New York, where he was assigned by the authorized committee. assigned by the authorized committee.

Manager Powers, in a letter to Mr. Young from Cincinnati, intimates that Lyons wants to play in New York, but desires advice from the President of the League as to how to act. Mr. Young replied the League would sustain him if he put his name to a New York contract.

HAVE YOU THE GRIPPE?

Many People Have It and Do Not Know It. How to Becognize the Symptoms and How to Treat Them.

Hundreds of people have the Grippe who do not know it. Not necessarily the final stages, but the first stages. They feel pains n the head, and g bad taste in the mouth, get tired and despondent, have chilly sensaflong limbs and muscles ache. In some cases these things are overlooked. In most cases perhaps they are considered simply a slight cold. In nearly every case they indicate the coming of Grippe.

There is but one thing to do when these symptoms appear, and that is to take prompt dety held a meeting yesterday afternoon.

J. D. Bernd was elected a member of the at just the right time will accomplish very and vigorous measures, to fortify nature to repel the enemy. A little well directed effort much more than labored efforts afterwards. There is but one thing to be done, and that is to use a pure stimulant, something that, will promptly arrest, and in no way injuresomething endorsed by scientists, recom-mended by physicians, and popular because so efficient—Duffy's Pure Mait Whiskey. Two so efficient—Duffy's Pure Mait Whiskey. Two years ago, and last year when the Grippe was raging, this was the standard remedy used, and recommended by the profession. It did more to prevent the Grippe than all other known or recommended remedies. It preserved many people in health who would otherwise have been grievously sick, perhaps even worse. It is as efficient to day as ever. It should be borne in mind that other so called whiskies may not be so efficient, and if any dealer asserts that such whiskies are the same, distrust him at once. There is but one medicinal whiskey, and that is but one medicinal whiskey, and that is Duff's Pure Malt. ja2i-wid
