Speculation May Revive.

In a published communication Augustus W. Peters, Chairman of the Petroleum Ex-change of New York, says: There is a speculative commodity that at times jumps up and down with a speed which delights traders and increases business. This is petroleum oil, in which I see indications of a return to its old-time activity. If this be the case it will afford a needed opportunity for money-making far superior to that of-fered in stocks or the cereals. Not many years ago oil was the favorite speculative medium of this country. The fortunes of the Rockefellers, Bost-wicks, Paynes and other noted millionaires were made in oil An advance or a decline of from 15 to 20 cents a day was an ordinary occurrence, and the transactions were enormous. The result was that brokers became rich on commissions; their customers had a chance to make money daily instead of once or twice a year, and everybody was prosperous. Oil fluctuated between $1 20 and 48 cents per barrel, and a dozen oil exchanges were in successful or-eration throughout the country. The dullness in oil has now continued for three years, and it is time to look for a revival such as will astonish those who are accustomed only to the slow functions of tacks the slow fluctuations of stocks.

An upward reaction of important dimen sions seems to be near at hand. General business, especially in the finan-cial center, will be immeasurably increased by a revival of oil-speculation.
