The Greatest Railroad Coup of the Age Engineered by Mr. McLeod.

In the Anthracite Carrying Trade by Securing Control of

ALL OTHER COMPETING LINES.

Details of a Deal That Represents Brains as Well as Capital.

PHILADELPHIA WILL BE A GAINER

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 10.—The arrangements that have for some time been in progress, designed to place the coal producing and carrying interests upon a more stable foundation, have been completed. The primary object in view has been to secure more economical management in the coal trade by avoiding expensive selling agencies and heavy commissions, so that while coal will not cost any more to the consumers the coal producers and carriers can get better results and secure profits by saving expenses.

The combination and complex agreements heretofore made have been generally found inadequate to accomplish the object sought, as the binding force was insufficient. There has now been carried into practical effect a plan, formed by President McLeod, which embraces the most extensive financial enterprise yet undertaken in his country, and which he thus briefly outlines:

The voting trust now holding the stock of the Philadelphia and Reading Railroad will shortly expire, and the control of the stock of that company has passed already into hands that are friendly to the present Reading management. The Reading Railroad has by lease acquired control of the Lehigh Valley Railroad, a corporation in the State of New Jersey. The Port Reading Railroad, which is under Reading management, has by lease acquired control of the Central Railroad of New Jersey.

What the Reading Will Control.

This is practically placing in the Reading Company's hands the control of the affairs of the Reading, Lehigh Valley and New Jersey Central Railroads, and also, through the latter, of the Lehigh and Susquehanna Railroad, and of the Lehigh Navigation Company.

Under the lease they will be paid a guaranteed dividend of 7 per annum upon the stock of the Central Railroad of New Jersey, and a guaranteed dividend upon the stock of the Lehigh Valley Railroad at gradually increasing rates—5 per cent per annum until May 31 next, then 6 per cent per annum for the half year until November 30, and afterward 7 per cent per annum. In each case it is provided that the surplus earnings of the respective companies, if any, beyond the above guaranteed rates of dividend, shall be divided between lessor and lessee until the lessor's share reaches the guaranteed rate of 10 per cent per annum.

The great advantages of the new arrangements are obvious. In addition to the splendid Reading Terminal, now constructing in Philadelphia, the Reading will acquire the magnificent terminals of the Lehigh Valley and New Jersey Central on New York harbor. Through the Lehigh Valley's new Western extension there will be provided a direct route to the lakes at Buffalo, with a spacious terminal there.

When it is further known that the control of the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad has passed into hands that are friendly to the Reading management the investing public will recognize that the new arrangements will tend to economy throughout the various railway systems concerned and will make more stable values for coal company securities without adding to the cost of coal to the consumer.

Millionaires in the Big Deal.

The financial arrangements herein outlined have the active support and co-operation of A. J. Drexel, P. Piermont Morgan and J. Lowber Welsh, and also J. Rogers Maxwell and George F. Tucker, of the New Jersey Central management. The latter gentlemen and their friends have become the largest stockholders of the Lackawanna stock.

The following statement was furnished the press this evening: "Through the greatest deal ever made in the history of railroads the Reading Railroad Company will pay a dividend on its stock this year. The Reading Railroad Company's net earnings will increase $4,250,000 during the next 12 months. The Reading Railroad Company now controls by lease for 999 years the Lehigh Valley and the Jersey Central Railroads, and on February 23 the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western will be controlled in the interest of the Reading. The Reading Railroad Company and its leased lines now represent six hundred millions of capital, and its earnings will amount to $80,000,000 per year. This is the greatest coup ever known in corporation finances, besides with the famous South Penn-Beech Creek-West Shore deal of 1885 pales to absolute insignificance." The statement as to the control of the Lehigh Valley and Jersey Central is made authoritatively at the general offices of the Reading Railroad.

President McLeod is to-day the king of railroad financiers. The days of Reading's financial difficulties are at an end, and to-day there is no stronger railroad corporation. It controls 72 per cent of the anthracite production, and hereafter it is absolute master of the situation. By this combination the net receipts for anthracite coal will be at least 25 cents per ton greater than during last year. The result of this stupendous deal is so far reaching as to be difficult of comprehension.

Terms of the Tripartite Agreement.

The terms of the lease with the Central Railroad of New Jersey provide for a guaranteed dividend of 7 per cent on the stock of that company, and in addition the Jersey Central is to receive one-half of its own net earnings in excess of the amount required for the 7 per cent dividend until the total dividend reaches 10 per cent per annum, the surplus over 10 per cent to revert to the Reading. The Jersey Central earned last year 10⅝ per cent, so that the Reading will get a part of it from its lease from the start.

The Lehigh Valley is guaranteed a dividend at the rate of 5 per cent per annum until May 31, 1892, from that date until December 1 at the rate of 6 per cent, and after the last named date the guaranteed dividend is 7 per cent. In addition to the guaranteed dividend, and after the latter is paid, the Lehigh Valley stock is to receive one-half of the net earnings of that road until the total dividend shall equal about 10 per cent per annum, after which the surplus goes to the Reading in the same manner.

Has Confidence in the Lehigh.

Aside from other considerations, to be mentioned later and which will affect the earnings of these two companies equally, President McLeod is confident that the Lehigh Valley, after May 1, when its new line to Buffalo will be completed, is certain on its own merits, to earn more than the full amount of the guarantee wholly regardless of any benefits which its revenue may derive from the new relations between the three companies.

It should be remembered that the Lehigh Valley is now paying the Erie 1,250,000 annually for trackage, a sum equivalent to 3 per cent on its capital stock, and that the Lehigh Valley makes a net gain of this amount, which, added to the 5 per cent the company is now paying, will provide for the 7 per cent guarantee and leave a surplus of 1 per cent. In addition to this the Buffalo and lake traffic of all these lines will be thrown over the Lehigh Valley. It will be seen that President McLeod has made an uncommonly good bargain.

To Cut Down the Expenses.

But the most important point is yet to be stated. It is Mr. McLeod's conviction, as it has been that of well-informed and conservative capitalists for many years past, that the existing methods of the present corporation are useless and expensive. An agreement has been reached that will completely revolutionize the old system and result in savings to the companies interested in the mining of coal. The plan is to consolidate offices and reduce the number of officers and employes thus engaged at present. The joint business of marketing the product of these companies will practically be controlled by President McLeod's corporation, and will be so conducted as to not only secure economy, but to prevent senseless and unnecessary forms of competition. It is Mr. McLeod's theory that the industries of Pennsylvania are now paying fair and reasonable prices for their fuel, but that the rates now prevailing at New York, Boston, Chicago, in Canada and other distant points should be so equalized that they will bear a proper and just relation to the location of these markets with regard to the service of supply. This will give the industries of Pennsylvania their proper advantage over those of distant points which have their own advantages of location and which now operate against Pennsylvania, because in addition to such advantages of location they have those of equal prices for fuel also. This is a wrong which will be righted. It is estimated that these changes, taken together, will yield a new increase of at least 25 cents per ton on all coal handled by the consolidated Reading Railroad and without costing the consumers one penny more than at present, except at such places as the product of their mines is now sold at actual loss.

Reading Is a Great Corporation.

As the tonnage of the three companies, exclusive of the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western aggregated about $24,000,000 annually, the single item means a net gain of $6,000,000. The Reading's present tonnage of ten millions will give it an increase of $2,500,000. Under the terms of the leases and contracts the increased profit from this source of the other companies will be devided equally between the respective earning companies and the Reading, giving the latter additional profit of $1,750,000. So from this source alone the Reading's net revenue will be increased by the sum of four and one quarter millions annually. This means a dividend on Reading stock this year.

Nor is this the end of President McLeod's great achievement. The absorption of the Lehigh Valley and New Jersey Central still left in the field one competitor of no inconsiderable importance, the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western. It can be confidently stated that the Lackawanna management will be so changed as to bring its policy into entire accord with that of the tripartite alliance, and will thereafter act in close harmony with the Reading. This coup of President McLeod's makes the Reading as strong a corporation as there is in the world.

Gross Receipts $80,000,000.

The gross receipts of the Philadelphia and Reading system will hereafter be $80,000,000 annually, and the number of its employes will approximate 100,000.

It is now plain what was in Mr. McLeod's mind when he acquired the Poughkeepsie bridge and the lines contributary thereto, which throws the Reading and its entire augmented system into the very heart of New England, giving it the only railroad from the Middle and Southern States to the East, enabling it to virtually control the coal traffic of that entire region. Mr. McLeod had the hearty support in this matter of Mr. A. J. Drexel and the banking house in which he is associated, Mr. John Lowber Welsh and others. Mr. George F. Baker, of the New Jersey Central, and others above mentioned, have secured the largest holding there is at present in the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad. The success of this combination, having at its back the strongest financial institutions in the country, is assured.

A FORMER EXPERIENCE

With a Sudden Increase in the Valuations as Returned by the Assessors—Ex-Commissioner Beckert Has Decided Opinions Upon the Subject.

Ex-County Commissioner Beckert was probably attracted to the Commissioners' office on Tuesday by the fight waged against the increase of assessments. Mr. Beckert knows all about it as he went out of office in 1879 in the fight, being the first to depart from the practice of the fathers, and the first martyr to his convictions. Mr. Beckert jumped the county assessment from $42,000,000 to $340,000,000 and reduced the millage thereby from 14 mills to 1½ mills.

Mr. Beckett agrees with the present Commissioners that the only way to overcome the irreguiarities of assessors is to get pretty nearly to the actual value of every piece of ground in the county. Under the old arrangement, he says, it was nothing uncommon to find one property holder assessed $10,000 higher than another on property of no greater value than that of his neighbor. With the millage at 14, the one paid $140 more county tax than his neighbor whose property was of the same value. When the change was made the man who had escaped was taxed for county purposes but little more than previously, while the over taxed man who had been assessed by an assessor who tried to do his duty as sworn to do, was relieved by a heavy burden. Mr. Beckert states that the assessment ought to be really double what it is at present, and saying nothing of taxing oil rock thinks that it is nothing less than a farce to tax coal as low in some instances as $25 an acre, when the owners would not take $300 an acre for it.

The pressure on Mr. Beckert became so heavy that he was forced to lock himself in a room and station a guard at the door with orders to admit but one appealer at a time. As soon as he was heard he was dismissed and another admitted. Mr. Mercer states that the inequalites in coal assessment are almost as great as ever. There are instances of one assessor in one township placing it at $75 an acre, while in another the same vein equally eligibly located is not assessed at all, both surface and coal being putat $75 an acre.

FIGHTING FOR A GOAT.

Charges and Counter Charges Over the Possession of an Animal.

Ellen Keefe had a hearing before Alderman Foley yesterday on a charge of perjury preferred by James Halligan. The trouble originated over a goat, both parties claiming it. Finally Halligan took the goat away from Mrs. Keefe. Mrs. Keefe appeared before Alderman Richardson and swore out a warrant against Halligan, charging him with larceny. Halligan had a hearing on February 5, and was held in $300 bail for a trial at court. He furnished bail, and then appeared before Alderman Foley and swore out a warrant against Mrs. Keefe for perjury, alleging that she perjured herself in swearing that the goat was her property. Mrs. Keefe had a hearing yesterday, and in default of $500 bail, was remanded to jail to await a trial at court.

The goat was present at both hearings and figured quite prominently, much to the merriment of all present.

Interesting to Local Shippers.

Most of the local freight agents are now in Chicago attending a meeting of the Central Traffic Association. It is expected that the recommendations of the Pittsburg committee about the bottle and skelp iron classifications will be reconsidered. The bottle men are very anxious to know if their product will be returned to the third class.

WITH MILITARY POMP

And All Possible Honors From Citizens Adjutant General

M'CLELLAND IS LAID TO REST.

An Immense Assemblage Witnesses the Final Ceremonies.

IMPRESSIVE RELIGIOUS SERVICES

The remains of the late Adjutant General William McClelland, the fearless, frank and faithful soldier, were buried yesterday with military pomp and display. The funeral procession was the largest ever seen in Pittsburg, and an assemblage of probably 25,000 people crowded through the streets to witness the burial march.

The body of the dead General was taken from Samson's undertaking rooms to the Third Presbyterian Church just across the street at 10 o'clock yesterday morning. Company C, Eighteenth Regiment, Captain W. H. Davis, acted as escort. The casket was placed in front of the altar where a guard of honor from the Veterans' Associations and the Eighteenth Regiment assumed charge of it. The church was empty when the remains were carried in. Following the corpse came floral tributes from soldiers and citizens. They were arranged about the casket and altar with military precision. The dead body was dressed in full uniform. On the left breast was arranged badges and medals of merit won while in active service.

The National Colors Conspicuous.

Around the simple black casket were thrown, with easy grace, the national colors. The dead soldier's chapau and sword lie on the coffin. At its head and foot a private soldier stood with arms at "parade rest." The guard of honor, bearing military emblems on their lapels, stood back of the two soldiers. The light in the church was subdued. The lamps burned dull and dim. A friendly ray of sunshine streamed through one of the Cathedral glass windows and threw a mellow colored rainbow over the military emblems on the altar.

Just as the great oaken doors swung open to admit the humbled crowd assembled to attend the religious services the huge pipe organ rang out in sweet but doleful cadences some funeral hymn. The church was soon filled. Several of the front seats were reserved for the Governor, his Cabinet and staff, the Chamber of Commerce, the Press Club and various military organizations. A seat well back in the audience to the left on entering the church was heavily draped in mourning. A bar of flowers was placed across the entrance to the seat. It was General McClelland's pew.

Shortly before 11 o'clock Governor Pattison, his Secretary of State, Attorney General, Private Secretary and acting Adjutant General, entered the church. They were escorted to the seats reserved for them. Immediately following them came Major General Snowden, Brigadier Generals Wylie and Deckert with their staffs. Delegations from the Chamber of Commerce, Press Club, G. A. R., Loyal Legion and Union Veteran Legion followed and were seated back of the Governor's party.

A Most Impressive Occasion.

Every available seat in the church was occupied, and a quiet, deep and calm as a grave, spread over the audience. It was a solemn occasion solemnly observed. A quartet sang "Rock of Ages." Rev. E. P. Cowan, D. D., read the funeral service, after which Miss May Beesley sang "Angels Ever Bright an Faird."

Rev. Dr. Cowan then delivered an earnest address, in which he told in beautifully rounded periods the simple story of General McClelland's life.

Rev. Dr. Riddle, chaplain of Duquesne Post 259, G. A. R., of which General McClelland was a member, told the story of the dead man's military life. Rev. Dr. Stewart, pastor of the Harrisburg church attended by General McClelland, then delivered an earnest prayer and the services concluded with the benediction.

Governor Pattison and his party approached the casket and took the last look at their dead associate. They then left the church. The congregation then filed by the dead soldier. After the church was cleared the churchyard gates were opened and a constant stream of people marched down one aisle and up the other for two hours. A few minutes before 2 o'clock the churchyard gates were closed and those in the church were hurried by the coffin. It was then closed and arrangements for the funeral march were made. Before closing the coffin the badges and medals were taken from the remains at the request of his sister.

Movements of the Military.

From Fifth avenue and Grant street down Sixth avenue to Smithfield street the Eighteenth and Fourteenth Regiments and Battery B were drawn up in company front. When the casket was carried from the church to the street the Grand Army Band played a dirge and the military were ordered to "present arms." The casket was carried to Battery B's caisson and the military procession, to the music of "The Marseillaise," moved to the cemetery. The military led the way, followed by a funeral wagon bearing the floral tributes. Then followed the remains on the caisson with a riderless horse following. Honorary pall bearers from Pittsburg and Harrisburg and relatives and friends of the dead General followed, then came the Governor, his staff and cabinet, General McClelland's old Battery B of Lawrence county, other veterans and the staff officers of the National Guard.

It was nearly 5 o'clock when the funeral procession reached the cemetery. The Second Brigade Band played "Nearer My God to Thee." Following this the Eighteenth Regiment fired a salute of three volleys over the grave. Dr. Cowan then offered a brief prayer and Dr. Riddle pronounced the benediction. The services were very brief but impressive. S. G. Franklin, the brigade bugler, performed the final part of the ceremony by sounding "taps," which in military life means "lights out." The casket was then placed in the vault and the assembly dispersed.

It was nearly 7 o'clock when the military returned to the city.

CAN GIVE UP THEIR SEINES

Without Fear of Being Prosecuted by Fish Warden Hague.

Fish Warden Hague has received word of quite a number of people along the Ohio river who own seines and would like to turn them over to him, but are afraid. On account of the strict law they are nervous about having them in their possession, but fear to give them up to the Warden, thinking he would turn around and sue them. Concerning this the Warden said last night: "Those who turn their seines over to me and allow me to destroy them have nothing to fear. Such action is an evidence of a desire to observe the law, and that is all I want. I have no desire to persecute anybody, and will not sue those who give up seines. The people who persist in defying the law are the ones I am after."

James Stevenson, of Sewickley, was tried for misdemeanor yesterday, on information of Fish Warden Hague, for seining in the Ohio river. He was found guilty.

Thinks Women Teachers Are Best.

Charles Dally comes to the defense of the Moon township school authorities. He says the reason they have fallen behind in the matter of salaries is that they have had a building debt weighing them down. He also says that his experience as a director proves that women teachers as a class are superior to men, at least to the young men who have taught during the last 20 years. He says that not one man in a dozen enters the teaching business save as a stepping-stone to something else, and that very few ever become competent teachers, while many women embrace it as a life profession and are ambitious to excel.
