OPINION ADVANCED BY CHIEF BROWN

If the eight Hebrew or Italian immi-Inssalia and were forwarded to Pittsburg as reported by a New York telegram Saturday night are at present in Pittsburg, their shall not be known. A DISPATCH reout without the elightest indication of suceess. Chief Brown will take the matter in hand to-day and through the police and health inspectors will locate the new arrivals if they are in the city.

Especiers visited several physicians who practice largely among the Italians and Hebrews of the city. They were all positive that no such persons had located in the olonies with which they were familiar. Dr. Nardyz, the Italian physician, thought more than probable that if the men came tids way they were located at one of the numerous camps within a radius of 50 miles

The Nationality Not Definitely Known. The search for them would probably be more successful if it were known whether the men headed for Pittsburg were Hebrews or Italians. The information concerning thom does not cover this point. The only immigrants who came in over the Pennsylvania Raiiroad yesterday were two Germans and two families of English people. They spent the day in the immigrant quarters on New Grant street. One family, that of David Harris, remained in the city over

Mrs. Harris had made the trip before, and was returning to her former home at Maynard, O. She said that on the way over sickness had been general among the Italhans, who formed the bulk of the steerage consengers, and on arrival at Quarantine at New York the health officials had taken off n few passengers and refused all the Russinus and Italians on board privilege to land. The vessel she came over on was the Wisconsin, which landed at New York Saturday morning. She did not believe that typhus was the disease which prevailed among the emigrants, though she heard much talk about it at New York Apparently No Recent Arrivals.

The crowded Italian houses on Liberty street, opposite Union station, were visited vesterday afternoon, but the proprietors of each declared that they had received no new arrivals. Frank Sevens, proprietor of No. 333 Liberty street, thought that none of the Italian Massalia passengers had reached this neighborhood unless they had located somewhere outside the city. The street and Seventh ward colonies

At the Bureau of Health no typhus cases were reported yesterday. Chief Brown, when asked last night it any steps were to be taken toward locating the Massalia pas-sengers supposed to be located here, replied that he had already issued orders to the Bureau of Health Inspectors to find the men if possible. Similar orders will be issued to the police force to-day.

Will Be Found if in the City "I rather suspect these men are Italians," said the chief, "and in that case it will be hard to locate them. There are several colonies of Italians in the East End as well as in the lower part of the city, and it will require careful watching to find them. If they were bound for any point within 50 miles of this city on leaving New York, they would say they were coming to Pitts-burg. If they are Hebrews it will be easier to find them here, because wherever they go they locate near the business part of a city. In any case we will find them if they are within the city limits. Our physicians will then examine them, and if they have any traces of typhus we will have them placed in the municipal hospital or pesthouse until it is considered safe to release them." I. E. Hirsch, the steamship agent, says he pussengers of the Massalia were all Italians. "There were no Russian Hebrews among them," he said, "because the Russian refugees do not come by the Marseilles line, to which the Massalia belongs. We have not heard of any new Russian arrivals, and think if any had come we would have known something about it.

NEARLY FROZEN TO DEATH.

She Is Now Suffering From Pneumonia

and Is Not Likely to Recover-Her Tale of Cruelty. A 9-year-old child named Emma Abbey was found under a porch nearly dead in Spring Garden borough yesterday morning. It was about 8 o'clock when the daughter of Burgess Mutsig, of the borough, while seated at a window, was startled by a pitiful moan coming apparently from under the house. She spoke to her mother of it, but while they listened for a repetition all was still. A few minutes later the daughter again heard it and notified her mother and the two began an investigation, thinking it was only a dog or a cat-that had crowded under the porch. The little daughter got down on her knees and peered in the lattice work beneath the porch, when she was horrified to find a little child curled up there and apparently

Mrs. Mutsig and her daughter tore away the porch steps and with some difficulty got the child out and into the house. She remained unconscious for an hour and a physician was sent for. On examination it was found her feet had been frozen, her hands grants who came ever on the typhus-stricken partly so and besides she had Massalla and were forwarded to Pittsburg contracted pneumonia from exposure. When she was finally revived she said her name was Emma Abbey, and that she had made her home with an oil driller named friends are taking good care their presence John Dean, who lived some distance up the shell not be known. A DISPATCH re-porter yesterday endeavored to find them, bad run away from him on last Wednesday and since that time has wandered about without food until Friday, when she crawled under the porch and had gone to sleep at once and did not waken until she found herself in Mrs. Mutsig's care.

Burgess Mutsig at once seut word of it to Secretary Dorente, of the Anti-Cruelty Society, who had her removed to the Allegheny General Hospital. Her condition is really alarming and but little hope is entertained of her tife being saved. She has pneumonia in its worst form and besides is nearly starved, having partaken of no nourishment for probably three days. In any event the child's feet will have to be amoutated because of their frozen con-

What makes the case even sadder is that but little is at present known of the child or her parents. The whole village was agog over the matter, and the news finally reached the ears of Mr. Dean himself. Secretary Dorente hunted the latter up, and was surprised to recognize in him a man that had appealed to him several times for a child whom he desired to adopt. Mrs. Dean, his wife, had also made a similar request at the society's of-fice, and she, too, was recognized at their house. It appears that "Mickey" Dean, the former agent of the society, had also been asked by the couple to get them a little girl, and about a year and a half ago he got the child found vesterday and took her to them. But he failed to make a record of the matter at the office of the society and the necessary information as to the child's parents, friends or home was therefore not known to the society.

Some two months ago a complaint was made to the Secretary of the alleged cruelty practiced by Mr. Dean on his adopted daughter, but after an investigation showing there was no just ground for the charge the matter was dropped. But even then it was not known the child had been given to Dean by one of the society's agents. It was shown, however, that the girl was bad, told lies and was generally incorrigible and frequently ran away. When found yesterday she stubbornly refused to tell why she ran away, and Secretary Dorente intends to prosecute Mr. Dean for his apparent neglect of her, and hopes to unravel all the mystery connected with the child's actions in the past two years, as well as to find who her parents are.

THE ALLEGED ARMY DISMISSAL.

Soldier Comrades Strongly Deny the Insinuations of Cowardice.

WESTERN DEMOCRATS FOR CLEVELAND

Ex-Congressman E. P. Allen, of Ypsilanti, Mich., registered at the Monongahela House yesterday. He was one of the Republicans turned down in 1890 during the noise stirred up by the Democratic wail against the tariff. Mr. Allen stumped Ohio for McKinley last fall, and did some great work for the Major. He is in Pittsburg, he says, on private business. While coming through Ohio he stopped at Columbus to see the Governor. He found McKinley in good health.

After giving the Law and Order Society a rap or two for its bigotry, and remarking that the newspaper was one of the great agents of civilization, the conversation dritted to Dana's attack on Alger's military record. The ex-Congressman said:

"I can't see what Mr. Dana expects to was one of Michigan's brave men during the war, and at this late day no man can accuse him of cowardice. Those who served with Alger know that he did not shirk duty, and ne was not afraid of fire. Raking up old charges now will not affect his military standing with the soldiers, and it will certainly make him more popular than ever with the Michigan people.

In the Heat of the Campaign. "As I understand it Alger was not dismissed, but his dismissal was recommended by General Sheridan. It was ignored, for the General was honorably discharged. I can readily see how Sheridan in the heat of the Shenandoah Valley campaign and aboring under misapprehensions could have made such a recommendation. He must have forgotten it soon afterward, for He he never thought of it again, and it is well known that he and General Alger were the warmest friends.

"It is true that Custer and Alger had some differences, but I don't think they were enemies. Custer was another Michigan man who made a reputation for bravery and nobody has anything to say against him. I haven't seen General Alger for some time and not having been in the State for two weeks, I don't know what the people think about it, but I feel sure that such attacks will not hurt Alger in the least. ontrary it will stir up the wrath of the old soldiers who know him. "Will the Michigan delegation support Alger for President?" was asked.

For Alger After Blaine. "I don't know," Mr. Allen replied; "but suppose so. We were all for Blaine in suppose so. We were all for Blaine in Michigan, but he has declined to run. If we rally around Alger, it won't mean that we are against President Harrison. It is a little too early to make predictions about candidates, but the West will dictate the nominations in both parties. A great deal, in will admit, depends on the action of Pennsylvania and New York. These two States will pretty nearly fix the nomination for the Republicans.

"I think the outlook for a Republican victory never looked better, no matter who victory never looked better, no matter who is nominated. The American people are nuted for their common sense, and they know a good thing when they see it, though it may take them some time to discover it. Harrison has made an able President, and he has stamped himself on every act of the administration. He has been President in fact, and has not been dominated by his Cabinet. When he came dominated by his Cabinet. When he came into office he had, like Lincoln, the whole field of positions to refill. He has had an ments to make, and there is not an instance where he has not selected a good man. The chances are the President will be renominated, and McKinley will likely be the Western Democrats Still for Grover. "As for the Democrats, the West is for Cleveland. They have no reason to change. They put him up as their idol eight years ago. Cleveland holds the same views on the tariff and silver questions now that he did then. The only man in the party who would be a good substitute is Carlisle. He advocates the same ideas on the national issues. I hope for the good of the Republican party that Hill will be nominated. He couldn't carry Indiana, and he will discover that Tammany Hall doesn't have much influence outside of New York City. The Democrats at large are afraid of men like Hill and Gorman. They distrust Hill's methods and the allies he would gather around him. Mr. Allen said that unless the Michigan law was declared unconstitutional the Republicans would lose 5 electoral votes in is State. He says the Democratic majority in Congress doesn't represent the sentiment of the people. In his district in 1890 the rote was over 5,000 less than it had been in 1888, and on making an examination he found that fully 80 per cent of them were Republicans who had stayed at home on election day.

Over $500,000 Being Expended by the Carhon Iron Company-New Electrical Processes to Be Used-A Capacity of 5,000

Tons of Plate a Month. The Carbon Iron Company, at Thirty-second and Smallman streets, is just commencing to make some extensive improvements in its works which will cause the outlay of $500,000. General Manager H. W. Lash last night explained the nature of the improvements as follows: "The money will be spent in the way of additions to the open hearth mill and putting in a large boiler plate plant. Heretofore we have been hampered in the manufacture of steel, as we had to send it to Cleveland to be rolled. The contract for the entire work has been placed with the Pittsburg Iron and Steel Engineering Company. The greater part of the machinery will be manufactured in Pittsburg. All the contracts for the electrical apparatus make by his attacks on the General. He have not been placed. The work will be completed by August 1.

"The new plant will have a capacity of 5,000 tons of finished plate per month. The plate will be in the form of boiler, ship and light armor plates, such as is now used in the construction of cruisers. We are adopting the new plan of using electricity for the handling of much of our machinery. The shear department will be equipped with an immense hydraulic crane, which is something entirely new in its line. From the fact that we intend to do so much with electricity, we will have the most modern plant in existence. "We are now furnishing 60 per cent of all the armor plate used in shipbuilding at the present time. We have the contracts for one battle ship and two cruisers, one of the cruisers being the famous Number Thirteen. After we are fully equipped, we expect to get the Government contracts in even larger slices than at present."

Arrangements for the Celebration of the Annual Feast.

A MYSTERIOUS MANSION BUILT, Which It Is Charged Was Intended for the

Followers of Teed. POSSIBLE CONTEST ON NEW MEMBERS

The eighty-seventh annual feast of the Harmonite Society in commemoration of the day that the faithful followers of Father Rapp surrendered their property to comownership, will take place to-day. For 87 years this feast day has been one of love, good fellowship and renewed expressions of confidence in the society and its peculiar religion. It has been the custom to receive bread from the accepted leader of the sect and by so doing give a pledge of obedience for another year. Yesterday it was rumored that Father Henrici. would not be able to be present and that Trustee Duss would give out the bread. The report deepened the gloom of the older members, who look with suspicion on their young leader and are waiting the election of members with the greatest fear.

The test of the power of Teed, the Koreshan prophet, is the question at issue and on its decision hinges the future of Harmony. The candidates for admission as members are Samuel Seiber and wife, H. D. Silverfriend and wife, Mr. Turner and wife, and Mrs. Kress and son. Mr. Seiber has been a constable for the Economites and will not be opposed. The others are supposed to be members of Dr. Teed's peculiar faith and will be fought as bitterly as would Teed himself. The election will be by the Council of Nine, a two-thirds vote being necessary for approval.

The Most Objectionable Applicant. The applicant most undesirable to the older and more conservative members of the society is Silverfriend. They look upon him as an intruder, whose only aim is money. Silverfriend, it is claimed, has shown a cool deliberation both dangerous and obnoxious. His first effort to establish himself in the good graces of the members was to run s The Pittsburg Socialists Organize and Get Down to Work.

day a report was circulated to the effect that the brilliant aurora borealis of Saturday night was the eye of Teed, the modern God, watching the action of the Econo mites, willing to approve if the Koreshan faith should be accepted, but ready for an outbreak of fearful wrath if the society per-sisted in its refusal to receive Teed and his sisted in its refusal to receive Teed and his gospel. Superstition, as a child of isolation, has always had a lodging place among these strange people who are in the world, but no of the world, and when the story of Teed's appearance as an aurora was told and retold in whispered conversation among the members of the creed there were few who bers of the creed there were a few who almost believed, a few who hesitated in ex-pressing an opinion and others who openly

There was scarcely an individual in the the night previous. It was a strange, a beautiful sight in Pittsburg, and still more strange and beautiful from the little plateau just above the Ohio; reaching back plateau just above the Ohio; reaching back to receding hills on the north and extending lengthwise as far as the eye can see. In daytime nothing can be heard but a passing rain or puffing steamboat. At night the ilence is oppressive.

A Sensation in the Valley. the first to discover the aurora. He told i passerby, the passerby told a neighbor, and in a few minutes every resident, old and young, was looking at the strange pheand young, was looking at the strange phenomenon that puzzles more scientific minds and is looked upon by far more people than they as something connected with divinity. The darting flashes of light, springing from a semi-circle and forming what seemed like a segment of a crown of brilliancy recalled the light of the Son of Man to the ultra religious minds of the Harmonites and prepared their thoughts for the reception as truth that in the aurora there was something divine.

Teed claims to be the second Christ. Today his doctrine will be indirectly passed upon by the counsel of Economites. The star of Bethlehem guided the wise men once before and was it not possible that the Northern Lights had appeared at Teed's command to indicate something, and was not that something that Silverfriend should be elected, was the argument of some of Teed's followers. Little else was talked of

during the day, but there was enough nine-teenth century good sense to prevent a general acceptance of the theory.

That Teed is making every possible effort to gain a foothold in the Economite Society has been made evident by a letter sent by him to one of the Councilmen in which he makes the claim that he was given a promise that some of the members of the Koreshan Society would be given employment by the Economite Society. The letter was answered bluntly and to the point. It indicated that Koreshans would be unceremoniously kicked out and that Teed's wiser course would be to keep them housed in his

Chicago home.

A secret hitherto untold at Economy is the general belief that a large house just below the town, which was built last summer at the suggestion of Trustee Duss, was in-tended as a home for Teed. It is a mansion in design and finish. The new house is three stories in height, contains 28 rooms, and is adorned with a cupola. Its arrangement inside is modern and convenient. Its Construction a Secret.

No one but Duss knows why it was built. and many openly assert that it was intended for a home for Teed when, as the second Christ, he should be admitted into the fold his wife were among the passengers on the Pennsylvania road for New York last evenof the Economites. The feeling is intense against Duss, but there is no move to force him from the throne. His youthful activity is a safeguard for him, but at the same time is looked upon as an intrusion by the older persons, who usually believe a man a youth until he has rounded the half century. They dislike to take instrucview with holy horror any diversion from the old-time religious faith. Duss is nothing if not modern, however, and a week ago last Sunday he even carried his progressive last Sunday he even carried his progressive ideas into an alleged improvement of the Lord's Prayer. He was leading the congregation, and either purposely or by mistake demonstrated an editorial instinct by running the blue pencil through "deliver us from evil." The boiling down process wasn't a success, however, and has been the subject of continual discussion since then.

The exercises to-day will commence with a sermon by Father Henrici. At 12:30 the feast will be served in the town hall. It will not be a banquet as prepared by French will not be a banquet as prepared by French chefs, but as a meal of the most tempting and wholesome kind it will excel a more modern menu as much as good country but-ter goes ahead of oleomargarine. The women at Economy are noted for their good cooking, and that, with an abundant supply of home-made wine, is the only hope to pre-vent an outbreak of the hard feeling be-tween the Dussites and the anti-Dussites.

Only a Few Prisoners Sent to the Workuse by the Magistrates—The Twelfth Ward Has the Largest Number-Mostly Drunks and Disorderlies.

Police hearings yesterday morning were light and the magistrates got through with their work much earlier than usual. There were only three cases at the Central police station when Judge Gripp opened his regular Sunday service. George Egler had been arrested at a Fifth avenue butcher shop while stealing a piece of meat. He confessed to having stolen about 70 pounds of ham also, and was fined $5 and costs, which he readily paid and departed. Joseph Griner drove his wife out of the house on Webster avenue, which he confessed to and promised to do better in the fessed to, and promised to do better in the future. He left $10 as an earnest of his intention. The balance of the prisoners were charged with minor offenses, and were either discharged or lightly fined. None went to the workhouse.

Magistrate McKenna disposed of 23 cases at the Twelfth ward station. William Ferry was given 30 days to the workhouse for vagrancy. John Maher, arrested on Penn, near Twelfth street, Saturday night on a charge of disorderly conduct, got 30 days. William Evans, a "vag," was given 30 days to Claremont. Steven Bussick and Jacob Gantasa went into a restaurant on Twelfth street Saturday night, and after eating a good meal refused to pay for it. They were fined $10 and costs each. James Gallagher, who has been frequenting the company of partly in-toxicated men in hopes of getting drinks, got 30 days to the workhouse. John Tobin, arrested at Union station Saturday evening as a suspicious person, was fined $5 and costs. John Donteg was arrested on Penn avenue for fighting. He was fined $10 and costs. Dick Butler, another disorderly person, was given 30 days to Claremont. J. C. Nelson went into Wilson's restaurant, on the Diamond, and raised a disturbance. He was fined $5 and costs. Magistrate Leslie disposed of three cases at the Seventeenth ward station. Maso Sheridan was arrested in a saloon on Butler street for acting disorderly. He resisted arrest and called on his friends to help him. and a rough and tumble fight ensued. The officer held on to his prisoner, however, and landed him at the police station. He was fined $25 and costs. George Jones and James Walsh, drunks, were sent to jail for five days to sober up.

Magistrate Succop had ten cases at the Twenty-eighth ward station. Owen Golden and Frank Railly made things unpleasant for Officer Lackner Saturday night, by fighting him after being placed under ar-rest. They were each sent to the work-house for 30 days. M. Flinn and John Melauophy were arrested for fighting. The men had a battle royal, and when the officer found them were both covered with blood. $25 and cost each were the fines imposed.

Magistrate Hyndman disposed of three ommon cases at the Nineteenth ward station and one at the Fourteenth ward station. At the Nineteenth Jerry Collins was sent 30 bays to the workhouse for abusing his family at Homewood Saturday night. Thomas Brown and William Sprague were fined $1 and costs for drunkenness. At the Fourteenth ward station Patrick Healley was fined $10 and costs for fighting at Hazelwood.

There were 17 cases before Deputy Mayor Braun, of Allegheny. None of them were of any importance.

A Horse Left to Starve. Officer Carmody, who does duty in the Thirty-first ward, reported a peculiar case of cruelty at the Twenty-eighth ward station last night. Sometime ago a resident of Allentown, named Mickel, died and left town who had not seen the Northern Lights a will. In this will it is alleged that he stipulated that the heirs should take special care of a horse which had been a favorite of the deceased. The stipulation was that the

The watchman patrols his beat from Cough—A Remarkable Cure by Jayne's 7 in the evening and on Saturday night was Expectorant Years Ago, and the Condition of the Patient Now.

Moscow, Ohio, Dec. 3, 1891. Dr. D. Jayne & Son—Gentlemen:—For years, in my younger days, I was troubled with a bad Cough, and in consequence was weak and delicate. My friends thought I was verging toward Consumption, and every indication pointed to that fact; so much so, that I was refused admission to the Army. I was induced finally to try Dr. D. Jayne's Expectorant, and almost immediately re-ceived relief. After the use of a number of bottles, in connection with Dr. D. Jayne's Sanative Pills, I was entirely cured. To-day I am well and hearty, and weigh 35 ounds more than in my younger days, and have no signs of Consumption.

was arraigned before the Circuit Court here yesterday, charged with perjury. He entered the court room praying to God to give him more light and expressing himself will-ing to submit to any sentence the court saw fit to impose upon him.

The Sheriff was obliged to remove him from the court room to quiet him, he was so excited and prayed so loudly. On being re-turned to the court room Judge Steere asked him if he was guilty or not guilty, and he answered guilty. He was then sentenced to ten years in the penitentiary.

A Physician's Prescription.

When it becomes necessary to employ an alcoholic stimulant as an effective adjunct to sustain the flagging powers of life in disease, I know of no better one than Max Klein's Silver Age. I have examined it
