QUIET AT ECONOMY.

The Long Expected Unpleasantness Fails to Materialize.

THREE NEW MEMBERS TAKEN IN,

But They Are Not Disciples of the Alleged Mersiah, Teed.

LOOKING OUT FOR THE SECOND ADVENT

The anniversary ceremony at Economy passed off quietly yesterday. The expecte d difficulty as to the admission of new members did not come. There was no effort made to secure the admission of any of Dr. Teed's Koreshan followers into the society. In fact, the storm clouds that had been threatening the peace of the Economites blew over, and solemn worship, feasting and good fellowship were the only features of the day.

With the dawn came an unusual stir about the little hamlet. The yearly cele-bration of the society's birthday is looked they were written in water, or rather wine, forward to as an exceptionally bright spot in the tranquil lives of the members, and there was not a soul in the village but was anxious for the festivities to commence. All was as usual, however, until the town clock struck 10. Scarcely had its echoes died away when people came trooping from all directions to the quaint old church where the distinctive doctrines of the society have been taught for years.

One Trustee Laid Up.

The only thing to mar the perfect harmony of the occasion was the absence of Trustee Fisher, who is confined in the Allegheny General Hospital seriously ill. As the hour struck the venerable Father Henrici emerged from his house ncross the way and passed over to the church. He was leaning on the arm of Trustee Duss and wore a heavy storm coat, the collar of which his long white locks fill. The entire population crowded into the church.

The services were opened with a hymn, which Father Henrici led at the organ. Then in a clear, strong voice, which told no tale of advanced years, he read sacred passages from the Bible. Then for 15 minutes he spoke, explaining the chapters he had read. There were several more hymns and each time the aged leader of the society had to be assisted to the organ by Trustee Duss. The scene was an impressive one. The congregation gazed with reverence at the familiar form with which time had almost won its battle, and every word had almost won its battle, and every word he said found a place in the memories of his heavers. His advanced years have not dulled his intellect and the words of counsel he attered were still more precious to his followers than ever.

They Love Their Aged Leader.

The Economites love their hoary-headed patriarch, and as the meeting broke up yesterday there was doubtless a silent prayer from every heart that he be spared to speak to them at another thanksgiving.

The services over, the women hurried away to prepare the feast, while the trustees proceeded to Father Henriei's house to consider the applications for membership.

In half an hour they came out, having elected three new members. These are Samuel Sieber and wife and Gottlieb Reithmueller. All of them have lived at Econ-omy a long while. Mr. Sieber has been constable of the town since 1878. Reithmueller is an uncle of Trustee Duss and a familiar

Shortly after 12 o'clock the feast of meat, sauer kraut and the far-famed Economy ginger cakes, was ready. Half a dozen long tables were spread in the town hall and the hungry multitude repaired to dojustice to the contents of dozens of baskets brought by the women and girls. In addition to the substantials mentioned there was an abundance of the choice home-made wine for which omy is famous. After all were satisbed the reast was concluded by the screen ceremony of breaking bread, the last act of the reception of new members. Music was furnished during the feast by a band of

Economy youths. Continued in the Evening.

At 6 o'clock in the evening the tables were spread again with a similar pepast.
Only the breaking of bread was omitted.
With its conclusion the eighty-seventh annual thanksgiving ceremony ended, and the members departed quietly to their homes, happy in the remembrance of the events the day just concluded and the anticipation of many more such seasons of good cheer.

As far as could be learned none of the three members admitted yesterday have ever shown any leaning toward the Koreshan faith. It had been expected by many that an effort would be made by Trustee Duss and others to secure the admission of several avowed followers of Dr. Teed into the Economite Society. Among these were Daniel Silverfriend, a converted Hebrew, and Mr. and Mrs. Turner. But this proved incorrect, as they were not proposed. Many stories have been told of plans laid by Koreshans to get some of their members into the society with the ultimate view of obtaining control of it. Yesterday was looked upon as the day when the inaugural move of the Korestians would be made, but all predictions proved incorrect.

It had also been asserted that the position John Duss has taken, relative to a union between the Koreshans and Economites, had so displeased several influential members of the latter that he would be removed from the Board of Trustees. This, like the other expected moves, failed to show itself vesterday, and there were no changes in the board.

Believe the Messiah Is Coming. One of the cardinal points in the belief of the Economites is the second coming of the Messiah. This coming they believe is not far distant, and the recent signs in the sky have strengthened their belief. Said one old patriarchical Economite yesterday

"Yes, we firmly believe that Christ will soon appear on earth. The signs fortell us. The spots on the sun; the conjunction of Jupiter and Venus; the brilliant display of Northern Lights and other signs known and visible only to the initiated, portend some mighty convulsion of nature near at hand, prophisies of the final time when the Messiah will visit those who have been faithful to him. that visit we, as a community, are fully pre-pared, and when that final time arrives, we, who are living, and those of us who now sleep in yonder little cemetery will be found awaiting him without fear or trembling, to accord to him the welcome due him, and receive our reward."

A number of others spoken to on the

HE LOVES THE BOTTLE

Amelia Barr's Daughter Says 5he Did Not

Marry to Start a Reformatory. NEW YORK, Feb. 15,-Eliza, daughter of Mrs. Amelia Barr, the novelist, married claudestinely Captain Frank B. S. F. Morgan, about seven years ago. A year afterward the marriage was openly celebrated. Mrs. Morgan lived with her husband a few days only and then she returned to her mother, saving she would never live with him again. Since that time and until two years ago they kept up an almost daily correspondence.

On November 21 last Captain Morgan brought suit for divorce on the ground of desertion. The fact was kept quiet, and not until Saturday did any word of it get out. Last night a reporter saw Mrs. Morgan at her mother's house. Mrs. Morgan

"The truth about the matter is, that Cap-tain Morgan set up a rival against me. Had this rival been a woman I should have taken my chances, and perhaps might have enjoyed the contest. But it happened that this rival was the bottle, and I declined to enter the lists. Captain Morgan is a good-locking man of good manners, but when I once saw him drunk, I never could see him as it were.

"I married Captain Morgan because cared for him and because I thought we would have a home together. But I did not marry to start a reformatory. It may be that some women will blame me for not putting up with him and trying to reform him. But I confess I do not feel equal to a combat with hereditary instincts and longformed habits."

Mrs. Morgan is still a young and hand-ome woman. Before her marriage, she some woman. wrote a good deal and promised to follow in the footsteps of her mother. But, as Mrs. Barr said, she fell into the daily composi-tion of love letters, and that rather inter-fered with the development of her literary instincts. It is expected that the divorce proceedings will come up the latter part of this mouth, and that the divorce will be granted by default.

CORNERMEN IN ALLEGHENY.

Chief Murphy Says They Are Needed, but

He Is Powerless. Considerable talk has been raised of late about the absence of the cornermen at dangerous street railway crossings in Allegheny. This was brought out forcibly yesterday morning in the Coroner's inquest on the body of Fred K. Buechler, 10 years old, killed by a traction car at South Diamond and Federal streets last Friday. The testimony showed that had there been an officer at the corner the boy's life might have been saved. The jury recommended that action be taken at once toward having cornermen placed at dangerous crossings. In com-menting on the suggestion Coroner Mc-Dowell sa d:

"It is a great shame that there are no cornermen in Allegheuy. In several places they are almost as necessary as on this side of the river. Since so many lines of rapid transit have been operating over there four or five deaths have resulted from the fact that there were no officers to take care of the corners. Councils should see to it that this precaution is taken against fatalities this precaution is taken against latalities that are entirely too frequent."

Chief Murphy, of the Allegheny Department of Public Safety, when asked about the matter said: "I realize the necessity of having cornermen and would gladly do everything in my power to have them. But the trouble is my hands are tied and I have no men to detail to such duty. Instead of giving me the additional men I need, Councils have cut down my force by five. We cannot compel the traction companies to hire men for the purpose, and our only hope is that Councils will realize the situation and allow me enough men for the work. "

FORGOT THERE WERE ANY STREETS. An Attempt to Open Up the Thoroughfare

of Willow Grove. The village of Willow Grove was laid years ago by C. H. Love and after a flourish of trumpets it experienced for years a sort of dry rot and some people got into the habit of using the streets, that had been dedicated to public use, for private purposes. Among those who did so, as alleged, is Frank Mandenick, who is charged in an information made by Benjamin Ferady and laid before Alderman McMas-ters by Attorney Kinnear with nuisance in erecting a number of outbuildings on a street. Mr. Mandenick waived a hearing and gave bail for court.

It looked at one time as though the streets of Willow Grove would be lost en-tirely, but it happened to be underlaid by an oil belt and a few people remembered that a portion of the town had been devoted to public use and hunted up the records. This has caused considerable contention, as some of the citizens object to oil wells on the thoroughfares and the village has risen to considerable importance since it became

AFTER THE ADMINISTRATIVE ACT.

Chicago Importers Will Claim in Court That it Is Null and Void,

CHICAGO, Feb. 15.-The constitutionality of the McKinley administrative act is to be attacked. The first move was made in the United States Circuit Court this afternoon by the filing of a motion to dismiss the appeal of Collector Clark from a decision of the Board of General Appraisers, assessing certain duties on dress goods belonging to Locke, Huleatt & Co. A number of technical points are raised in support of the position that the act is void.

Success would mean that the present Board of General Appraisers is abolished and the administrative act of 1883 revived.
