In view of this statement, the need of a ship canal to the lake is more than ever ap-parent. By a canal coal could be sent to the lake for 20 cents a ton and ore could be brought back for the same price, and when it is considered that Buffalo and the lake cities anearly are determined to ever the same cities generally are determined to wrest from Pittsburg its manufacturing supremacy if possible, an expenditure of $10,000,000 would be a mere bagatelle in the way of preven-

MEETING OF FREIGHT AGENTS.

Union Line Men Make Suggestions About Handling Traffic,

The annual convention of the Union Line freight agents was held at the Monongahela House yesterday. About 60 representatives were present. The last meeting was held in Cincinnati two years ago, but the present gathering is the largest number of agents ever brought together. It is the first time that the freight hustlers of the Pennsylva-nia system East and West have met, and the object is to learn to know each other better, compare notes and hear suggestions about improved methods of handling about improved methods of handling through traffic. The Union Line used to be a separate organization that built cars and rented them out at certain rates, but a few years ago the company was absorbed by the Pennsylvania road, and now it is a bureau of the great trunk line system. The agents came from various cities in the territory between Omaha and Kansas City in the West and New York in the East. After hearing nu-merous suggestions at the meeting yesterday a committee was appointed to draw up a set of resolutions embodying the ideas of the freight agents.

Ireight agents. E. A. Dawson, the Chicago agent, was one of the leading spirits on the committee. The resolutions have been prepared, and will be presented at the meeting this morn-ing. Mr. Dawson said there was nothing in them that would interest shippers. He added that the Pennsylvania people like to get their men together every once in awhile to hear any suggestions they may have to make. The chances are not one in a hundred will be adopted, still the officials like to know what the employes are think-ing about. ing about.

Lawrence Hardtel's Body Unclaimed.

The body of Lawrence Hardtel, the Southsider who was tound dead in an outhouse at the boarding house of Mrs. Deakin, No. 28 Eleventh street, is still at Semmelrock Brothers' morgue, and has not been claimed by anyone. He boarded with Mrs. Deakin over 17 years, but she declines to look after the interment. A stepbrother and step-sister called at the morgae yesterday, but they did not leave any orders as to the final disposition of the body. Hardtel was em-ployed in Oliver & Phillips' mill for the past 20 years, but his fellow workmen know little about him. It is thought a subscrip-tion will be taken up to give him a respect-able burial in case no one clears the cable burial in case no one claims the remains.

at the Schlosser yesterday. He is in the United States gathering statistics on tanning for the Russian Government, and came to Pittsburg with letters to Mr. Groetzinger and other local tanners. The young man was much interested in Mayor Gourley's proclamation, calling for contributions to feed the starving Russians. Mr. Holstein thinks any foreign assistance is unnecessary. He says the famine is not as bad as report-ed, and the trouble is that the farmers have sold the whole of their crops. He claims the Government has ample resources to feed all the people. Mf. Holstein speaks good German, and Jacob Keller acted as inter-preter. Mr. Kel, er was much impressed with what the Russian said, and he thinks there is a gigantic scheme on foot to fleece kindhearted Americans.
