comes late, say nearer 4 o'clock than 3. Then they all appear in together, and ex- | pect to be served with the regulation two courses in about five minutes in a crowded drawing room; for he says no matter how bijou the hostess' house may be she rarely ever will consent to calling her second floor into requisition. The same gentleman says, moreover, that the old fashion of having a cup of tes and a slice of bread and butter was by far the more preferable to the present plan of croquettes, bouillon and ices. He would suggest bouillon and an ice as sufficient for any woman who doesn't earn her bread and butter by attending afternoon teas. This would require only one serving and could be done in one-half the time. The difference in the caterer's pocket, too, he thinks would be more than counterbal-anced by the many more people who would entertain in the afternoon if elaborate courses were done away with. Preparations are almost completed for the annual reception of Tancred Command-ery, No. 48, K. T. in the Alvin Theater. The scale on which affairs have been arranged is much more elaborate than heretofore. For instance, owing to the feeling that there was no more suitable nor agreeable place in Pittsburg for the reception than the Alvin Theater, the committee with a pluck that is commendable bought out the visiting company for Tuesday evening, which is the evening of the reception. They have also a bridge built across the narrow lane, which separates the theater from the Hotel Schlosser, where supper is to be served. This will be covered and having an entrance to the dining floor of the hotel, the matter of supper will be as easy of access as though in the same building and much more pleasant, since everything pertaining to the culinary department will be as if miles away. Guests will be received at the main entrance of the theater by the committee, who will personally look after the comfort of every one with the same care as if it was a house function and every visitor a personal friend. It is not too much to say that the

> The twenty-sixth annual encampment of the Department of Pennsylvania will hold its sessions in the Opera House next Wednesday and Thursday, February 24 and 25. It bids fair to be the largest encamp-ment in the history of the Department, and will be composed of prominent men from all sections of the State.

The officers to be elected will doubtless be General John P. Taylor, of Post 176, Lewistown, Department Commander; W. O. Rus-sell, of Post 151, Pittsburg, Senior Vice Com-

There may be considerable discussion over the action of the Board of Managers of the Soldiers' Home at Eric in retaining 80 per cent of the pensions of the inmates. On this subject there is considerable difference of opinion. No doubt there will be some strong arguments from both sides. A pretty appearance will be presented by the Opera House during the Encampment. The interior will be decorated with the post colors, corps oadges, markers, etc., bunting, flowers and plants. Post 41's and 157's firing squads will act as guards and have charge of the Opera House during the sessions of the Encampment. One of the most interesting things con-nected with the various encampments is the neoted with the various encampments is the badge. Some unique designs are often turned out, but is can be confidently claimed that the Allegheny County Committee has outdone them all for the Twenty-sixth De-partment Encampment of Pennsylvania, As much as the emblem will be appreciated by courades in this section, it will be tenfold more interesting to those who come from the north, western, central and eastern portious of the State. The badge is representative of the industries of Pitts-burz. The pin piece is formed of bronzed steel, and has the word "Delegate" in bold letters. From this hangs a sailn faced slik ribbon, finished at the botiom with gilt fringe. Attached to the ribbon are a cut glass Keystone and Grand Army star. They are finely polished and finished. On the keystone is the inscription: "Sch Annual Encampment Dep's, Pa. Pittaburg, 1894."
