Lively Legal Battles in the Delamater Trial Yesterday.

MUCH TESTIMONY RULED OUT. Evidence as to Character and the Status

VALUE OF COMPRESSED AIR STOCK

of the Bank Assets.

PETECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE DISPATOR. MEADVILLE, Feb. 20.-The morning session of to-day's proceedings in the trial of G W Delamater was opened by the defense placing upon the stand Frank S. Barker, of Chicago, who testified regarding the value of the stock of the Judson Compressed Air Company, which G. W. Delamater yesterday testified would eventually be of sufficient value to pay the full in debtedness of the firm of Delamater & Co. Mr. Barker said he had purchased a number of the shares of the stock at $40 per share, and that he had been given the shares at a much less price than an outsider could have obtained them. He expressed the belief that in a few years the stock would have a value many times greater than at present, the company at this time being engaged in the development of the enterprise.

More About Compressed Air Stock.

Lewis Walker testified that he is a stockholder in the Judson Compressed Air Company, that he knew of some of the stock having been sold at $40 and $45 per share, and gave as his opinion that the stock would in a few years time be of far greater value than at this time. He also stated that, being a general creditor, he had, when he learned that James E. McFarland had entered judgments against Delamater & Co., advised an assignment and ordered the deeds to be prepared by Haskins & Mc-Clintock; and that he had assumed full responsibility for the act, it having been done by him without the knowledge of any of the members of the firm.

F. W. Ames, of Titusville, was called by the defense to show the value of the Delamater block, but, objection being entered by the prosecution, Ames' testimony was ruled by the Court to be irrevelant. James E. McFarland, the person who entered the judgments which caused the assignment of Deiamater & Co., testified that he had refreshed his memory since his first examina-tion, and was satisfied that the notes entered against the firm of Delamater & Co. had been written in his house a few hours prior to the making of the deeds of assign-Delamater Always Considered Honest. Dr. Hammond testified that be became acquainted with G. W. Delamater when the latter was a boy, and that he has always re-garded him as a man of good reputation. The prosecution objected on the ground that Dr. Hammond, being a professor of Allegheny College, had not the opportunity to meet with the masses of the people, and was therefore, not a competent witness, The court decided against the objection and the latter then endeavored to bring into the case the charge made against G. W. Delamater by Lewis Emery, Jr., during the campaign for Governor in 1890, which the Court at once ruled as not competent testimony. Several witnesses testified as to the good character of the defendant up to and

The counsel for the prosecution said that there was no belief in the minds of the people but that the Delamaters were honest prior to the failure. Court then adjourned until the afternoon. The afternoon session was opened by the calling of ex-State Senator Homer J. Humes, who testified that the defendant, G. W. Delamater, had said to him and others that the Judson Compressed Air stock had no regular, but only a speculative, vi and that its value depended entirely upon the result of future experiment.

The Court Accused of Unfairness. Counsel for the defense entered objection against the admission of any statement ! witness for the prosecution, which should have been put in during the examination in chief. A somewhat heated argument against a decision for the defense was made by George F. Davenport, one of the coun-sel for the prosecution, who, during his re-marks, charged by innuendo that the Court was not acting fairly for the Common wealth, but in the interest of the defense. The Court, after admonishing the counsel for his intemperate remarks, said: "I do not want the suspicion to go out that the prose-cution has not had all the time and latitude it required for the presentation of its cause. In order to wipe out any thought of that kind which may have crept into the minds of counsel or any other person, I will order a bill of exception filed for the defense, and will permit you to ask any question you

The Prosecution's Last Evidence In. The prosecution then, by several witnesses. sought to show that at the time G. W. Delamater was seeking to effect a compromise he had stated that if the committee representing the creditors would accept the terms proposed by him, thus preventing a forced sale of the stock of the firm, he wou be able to settle at 35 cents on $1, and also that if the committee refused to accept the terms and the stocks were sold at forced sale, the assignees would not be able to pay more than 10 or 15 cents on St.

The Court, after listening patiently to re-marks of counsel on both sides, decided that no statement would be received by the Court which did not have reference to statements made by G. W. Delamater regarding the value of the assets of the firm of Delamater & Co. prior to the time of the assi gu-

Pending a motion to strike out testimony the Court adjourned until Monday at 10 A. M., after which, in the afternoon, the Delamater case will again be taken up.

BORE OF THE HOUSE OF COMMONS.

Member Who Drove Everybody Away When He Began to Speak. [BY CABLE TO THE DISPATCH.]

LONDON, Feb. 20.-Sir George Campbell, M. P., who died at Cairo this week, was the bore of the House of Commons. He was in private life the most reticent of men. In the House of Commons he talked on every possible occasion. On the Indian subject he was well versed, but there was no limit to his talk, and members would not listen to

He was, however, appreciated in the reporters' gallery. The men all dropped their notebooks and trooped off to some other room or bar whenever Sir George was successful in catching the Speaker's eye.

Pleuro-Pueumonia Comes From Germany LONDON, Feb. 20.-The official report of the Danish veterinarian on the recent outbreak in London of toot and mouth disease among cattle, said to be from Denmark, concludes with the statement that it is not possible that the contagion was contracted in Denmark on board ship, and that it is probable that the cattle became infected in the Islington market. This report confirms the view of the veterinarian attached to the American Consulate in London, that the germs of the disease were imported in raw hides from Germany.

PEPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE DISPATCH. CINCINNATI, Feb. 20 .- Just without the shadow of the Government building this morning one well-dressed man handed an envelope to another. It was the signal for an arrest that led to the breaking up of the neatest little gang of swell counterfeiters that the Secret Service officers ever stumbled over.

It was Ralph Wishon who tendered the caled packet, and a moment later he was on his way to Uncle Sam's quarters, in charge of United States Detectives Bauer and Williams. The confederate whom Wishon had trusted proved to be an honest man, and he baited the trap into which the leader fell. He was soon joined by W. G. Hera, one of his companions in crime, and later on William T. Brown, an engraver, was captured. The consternation was great, and when Hera realized that his secret had been discovered he pulled out a revolver and to end his miserable life. Forty years have passed over his head. A minister's son and the brother of Dr. Hera, an honorable man, he sought death rather than face

Interesting Story of the Raid.

The story of the raid is a most interesting one. The Government authorities learned several months ago that a gang of counterfeiters was located in this city, and some of the best detectives in the service were sent here to locate the gang. It was through in-termation furnished by Chief Engineer A. V. Fleming, of the Consolidated Distilling Company, that they got the first clew. Some time last December Wishon called at the distillery and asked for Fleming. He said he was out of work and wanted a job.

Fleming promised to assist him, and the two became very intimate.
The day following the arrest of William
T. Powers, a Walnut Hill cable car conductor, on the charge of shoving counterfeit quarters, Wishon called on Fleming and asked him what he thought of a man who would try to get rid of counterfeit money. Fleming jokingly replied that it was all right so he didn't get caught. Wishon took the reply in carnest, and he made an engagement to meet Fleming at his house.

How the Gang Was Trapped. At this time he unfolded his plans. He told Fleming he had been in the business of making counterfeit money for some time, and as he had been his friend, he would let him in on a snap. He said he was getting a 50 plate made, and when it was finished their fortunes would be assured. He also told Fleming that he had taught Powers how to make the silver quarters, but that he had been too free in getting rid of them and had got into trouble. Fleming realizing that the man was a scoundrel, nevertheless fell into his views. and said he would like nothing better than to join the gang. They had a number of meetings, and in the meantime, Fleming reported the matter at police headquarters. To-day was the time booked for the delivery of the first bills to Fleming, and the arrest of Wishon took place. Hera's home in Newport was searched and the find was the richest made for years.

A room full of the counterfeit stuff was found, with plates of the Grant $5 silver certificates and the $10 Hendricks bill. The work was almost perfect. The three pris-ouers were arraigned before United States Commissioner Probasco, and in default of bail they were all committed. Their hearing will take place next week.

Kennedy & Mason, of Broadway, had received an order for a new printing press, and the queer would have been flooding the market in another fortnight. The bills are remarkably good imitations and would puzzle an expert.
