RECIPROCITY TALK IN THE SENATE

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 25. - The House of Representatives was in the throes of political dissension for five hours to-day, and partisan feeling reached a fever heat when Representative Jason L. Brown, of Indiana, denounced Senator Quay, Postmaster General Wanamaker and W. W. Dudley for their efforts in carrying the election of 1888 for the present occupant of the White House. The Craig-Stewart election contest was the subject under discussion, and, although the contestant and contestee are residents of the Twenty-fourth Pennsylvania district, the discussion soon assumed a wide scope and afforded partisans of both political faiths an opportunity to denounce their political antagonists to their bearts' content. The majority of the committee finds in favor of the contestant, Craig, and the minority holds that the sitting member, Stewart, Republican, is en-

Representative Brown, of Indiana, led the debate in behalf of the contestant, Craig, and was particularly severe in his indictment of leading Republican politicians. "The Republican scheme of 1888," said he, "was to divide the voters into blocks of five [laughter], and put a trusted man with necessary funds in charge of these five, and make him responsible that none five, and make him responsible that none got away, and that all voted the Republican ticket. [Renewed laughter.] This scheme was not intended for Indiana alone, for it was the production of one whose name is written high on the roll of honor of the Republican party, and who was the Treasurer of its great National Committee. [Applause on the Democratic side.] In Indiana, at least, it accomplished its intended purpose, it corrupted the voter, polluted the hallot hox, debauched the election, and prevented the people from making an honest choice. [Renewed applause.] [Renewed applause.]

A Pretty Cost'y Scheme. was an expensive scheme, but its founder and originator was equal to the emergency. Large contributions of money were secured, alike from the good and the old of the Republican party, and history tells as that the subscription list contained the name of at least one eminent citizen of Pennsylvania who has received the reward of official preferencent for the part he took and the contribution be made. [Great appraise on the Democratic side.] When the result of the labors of this scheme was asceptained high carnival was held and joy and congratulations were the order of the hour. It was imagined that the public treasury would soon be within the grasp of the nry would soon he within the grasp of the eminent patriots whose ingenuity had planned and worked this wonderful device, and that their thirst for greed would soon be appeased. [Laughter.] But suddenly dismay and consternation appeared when ts originator and all who abetted him were confronted with the fearful responsibility of introlled with the fearful responsibility of aving violated the Federal Crimes act.

laving violated the Federal Crimes set."
[Laughter and applause.]
Mr. Brown was interrupted by a point of order from Mr. E. B. Taylor, of Ohio, that the remarks of the gentleman were not directed to the question under consideration. The Speaker pro tem, Mr. Hatch, overruled the point of order. Mr. Taylor appealed from the decision. Did not the the decision. Did not the understand and the members understand that this rhodomontade in regard to the history of Indiana politics had nothing to do with the case of Craig against Stewdid not know that his point was well taken Having said this much Mr. Taylor concludes to withdraw his appeal and let Mr. Brown

An Attack on Judge Woods, Continuing, Mr. Brown recited the pro-ceedings of the Federal Court in the attempted indictment of Dudley and others, and charged Judge Woods with a violation of the oath of his high office in interposit to save prominent Republicans of national reputation from indictment and degrada reputation from indictment and degrada-tion. "Yet," continued he, "the President of the United States, whose election resulted from this criminal scheme, has now invited Judge Woods to step higher up into the temple of judicial glory, even if his presence there diminishes its splendor and casts a mantle of shame on its honor." [Prolonged audicine on the D. progratio side.

appliance on the D mocratic side.]

The defense of Mr. Dudley and the other The december of all bridges and the color enders of the Republican party was made by Mr. Johnson, of Indiana, who was the eading speaker for the contestre. He said leading speaker for the contestre. He said that he would not descend to petty political discussion, although the temptation held out to him by this colleague from Indiana was very inviting. "Yes," said he, "i' I were disposed to claim an indictment against the Democratic parry for violation of the froe bailet and a fair count I might put in so many counts that no Democratic member upon the floor would be willing to entertain a motion to quash. [Laughter,] It is possible that if I cared to enter into the question of the conduct of William W. Dudley I might present it in a very different light from that in which it has been presented by the gentleman from Indiana. [Republican applause.]

The Warfare on the Judge. "It is sufficient to say that W. W. Dudley has denied always the charge that has been made against him and which has been repeated upon this floor. Certain gentlemen think it is only necessary to reiterate that charge in order to make it true. Judge Woods has not been nominated by the Judge Woods has not been nominated by the President to a higher office as a reward for partisan services, but on account of nis learning, ability and high integrity. I believe he will be confirmed, and when he is, a learned, upright and cuntent Judge will take his seat. [Applause on the Republican side.] This warfare is made upon him, not for the reason alleged, but because he was instrumental in convicting and sending to the penitentiary the noted hallot box stuffer of Indianapolis, Simeon McCoy. [Applause on the Republican side.] I assert that all these charges against that eminent Judge are not made in good faith, and nent Judge are not made in good faith, and that the gentleman who has been most active in pressing them in the United States Senate has, when at home, privately ad-mitted that he regretted that party necessity compelled him to take the stand that he has assumed in opposing the confirmation of Judge Woods." [Applause on the Republi can side.]

After further discussion by Mr. Paynter, of Kentucky: Mr. Powers, of Vermont, and Mr. Cobb, of Alabama, in favor of the contestant, and by Mr. W. A. Stone, of Pennsylvania, and Mr. Waugh, of Indiana, in favor of the contestee, the House, without action, adjourned.

VEST TALKS ON THE TARIFF.

He Charges Republicans With Having Stolen Some of the Democratic Principles-Reciprocity Was Adopted as a

Plank to Help Them Ont of a Hole. WASHINGTON, Feb. 25 .- In the absence of Vice President Morton, the Senate was this morning presided over by Senator Manderson. The report on the rainfall experiments called for by Mr. Sherman's resolution yesterday was presented and referred to the Committee on Agriculture. A Grand Army post in Illinois protests against the free coinage of silver, and its protest was presented by Mr. Cullom, and one in Colorado petitions for further pension legislation, and its petition was presented by

After some discussion a resolution giving Mr. Claggett, the contestant for Mr. DuBois seat, the right to occupy a sest in the Senate during the discussion and to speak as to the merits of his right was agreed to, with an amendment limiting Mr. Claggett's time for speaking to two hours.

Mr. Hale's resolution of January 19, calling Mr. Hale's resolution of January 19, calling on the Secretary of the Treasury for copies of reciprocity agreements under the last tariff act, was then taken up, and Mr. Vest moved the following amendment: "And that the Secretary of State also inform the Senate whether any steps have been taken by our authorities to negotiate a reciprocal commercial treaty with Mexico; and if so, what has been done, and with what results; also, that the Secretary inform the Senate if negotiations have been inaugurated for the purpose aforesaid, and have been unsuccessful, what has been the cause of failure."

Reciprocity to Be a Leading Issue. Mr. Vest addressed the Senate in reply t Mr. Hale's speech on the resolution. He agreed with Mr. Hale that the discussion of the question would become the leading issue in the approaching National canvass. Quot ing from Mr. Hale's speech the statement that it was only the reciprocity feature of the tariff bill that had saved the Republican party from being totally swamped in the last election, Mr. Vest said that it seemed to his benighted mind that the results of these elections, in the Senate and House of Representatives, constituted a swamping process

sentatives, constituted a swamping process even on the coast of Maine.

He referred to the famous incident in the Senate Finance Committee in which Mr. Blaine was represented as having "smashed his silk hat in baffled rage as he denounced McKimley and his colleagues" on account of the removal of sugar duties, and said that a full report of that occurrence had been published in an interview prepared by William E. Curtis, Chief of the Bureau of American Republics and Adjutant General of the reciprocity arrangements. Much of Mr. Vest's speech consisted of quotations from the succeedes of Republican Senators in the turiff debate and of trade statistics.

The Democratic party has been represented by Mr. Hale as being opposed to a police of reciprocity. Mr. Vest denied that assertion and deciared that the Democratic party was only opposed to sham reciprocity.

Advocating the Free Trade Policy. The reciprocity afrangement with Brazil did not benefit the American farmer. No act of Congress could change the inexorable law of supply and demand, which prevented an agricultural people from purchasing agricultural produces, South America furnished no market for the agricultural products of the United States, Every man qualified to vote knew that the market, for American agricultural products was in Great Britain, not in South America.

Why exclude shoddy and clothing? Genuic reciprocity was free trade. Mr. Hale said be did not propose to be drawn now into a general discussion on the merit or weakness of the McKinley tariff bill. He supposed from the indications at the other end of the Capitol that ample opportunity would be given before the session closed to discuss the McKinley bill, its operations on the country and whether or not, on the whole, it had been beneficial.

The Senator from Missouri and himself did not agree on that, the Senstor believing that the tariff bill was the sum of all financial iniquities, and believing that it was a sound, strong good measure that the sense of its merits would increase with the Ameriagricultural produces. South America fur sound, strong good measure that the sens of its merits would increase with the Ameri can people, the longer it was beheld and ex-amined by them. What the Democratic party wanted and believed in was "Simon pure" Iree trade.

Mr. Hale read a newspaper paragraph showing the increased imports into Cuba of American flour since the reciprocity arrangement went into effect and said that the flour of Old Spain had been driven out of the market.

Time Will Tell Which View Is Right, In testing the subject he could only say that time would tell more fully as to whether the Senator from Missouri or he were right as to the beneficent effects of reciprocity. The Senator was in a dilemma. Reciprocity has been made the Republican policy. It was one of its cornerstones. Senators had not heard the last of it. It would be before the American people in the next campaign. There was not a miner or a aborer or a farmer or shipper who was not interested in reciprocity and in its suc-cess, and who was not hoping and praying for its success. That was the attitude of the

for its success. That was the attitude of the Republican party.

Mr. Vest said that the very fundamental doctrine of the Democratic party was free trade and larger intercourse with the whole world. And the increase which Mr. Hale had mentioned of the import of American flour into Cuba proved that the Democratic party was right, and that when the duties were put down, exports were increased. were put down, exports were increased.

The fundamental doctrine on which the Democratic party stood to-day was: Larger Democratic party stood to-day was: Larger trade and greater markets for American farm products. And the Republican party, in inserting the reciprocity section in the McKinley bill, had attempted to get out of its difficulty by stealing a portion of the doctrine of the Democrats. It never would have taken reciprocity with any country under heaven if it had not been for the indication of the people of the United States against the McKinley bill.

The tariff discussion closed with no action on Mr. Hale's resolution or Mr. Vest's amendment, but with the intimation that several other Senators wished to take part several other Senators wished to take part in the discussion, notably Mr. Allison and Mr. Voorhees. The Idaho election case was then taken up, and Mr. Vance argued in support of the views of the minority to admit Mr. Claggett. Without action on the

She Refused Him and Married a Dashing Officer-He Wedded Another and Now That Both of Their Partners Are Dead

They Join Their Fortunes, NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., Feb. 24 .- [Special.]-A romantic story has been disclosed in connection with the sudden marriage of Rev. C. J. Wilson, of the George's Road Raptist Church, to Mrs. Emily F. Getty, of Toronto, Canada, in New Brunswick on Monday evening after a week's courtship. Many years ago, toward the close of late American war, there appeared in the city of Montreal, Canada, a young, pious, intelligent and aspiring clergyman, whose genial nature soon made for him a warm circle of friends. Among the acquaintances of those days was the daughter of Major James Elliott. She, more than all others, interested this young clergyman to such an extent that he pleaded with her to take him in marriage.

A dashing young Southerner from Virginia, attached by birth and rank to the Southern Confederacy, appeared and he too soon fell madly in love with the fair Canadian girl and was accepted. Through many years they walked the path of life together, then death broke the ties that bound them. Rev. Mr. Wilson found and married a woman of many virtues and excellences of character. Death sundered the ties that bound them together, so that for the last year he had been alone.

Fortune now smiled again upon the clergyman, and after a brief correspondence he was permitted to meet a few days ago in New Brunswick his "first love," and again he said: "Will you be mine?" and she sweetly answered "Yes."

PERCUAL THE PERAM TO THE DISPATCH. 1 BOSTON, Feb. 25.-Baseball Manager Mc-Gunnigle, in an interview to-day, gave his opinion of the salary cutting by the Western League managers in the following language

"The way this Western League is trying

o squeeze the players in salaries is all wrong and will hurt the game. These clubs can stand better salaries and the public, I know, does not want to see the game cheapened. It will never do, mark my word. It is very small. It is all very well to lower salaries, but there is such a thing as going too far, and these Western people are hurting themselves and no one else. The Western League is trying to get the best men outside of the League at salaries of less than $1,000 for six months, for there will be few men they will pay more than $1,000. These players will be expected to provide two omplete suits of uniforms and keep these clean and in repair, which means pay for all extras. Then the players will suffer a reduction of 50 cents a day for board; again, the men must report when ordered, although their salaries do not begin to run until April 1. The players can be released at any time at a minute's notice. I suppose that the clubs will put up at cheap hotels and will be transported from depots to hotels in the horse cars. The whole shows very small caliber, and people who try to run baseball that way do not know much about the business.

"It advertises the game and gives it prestige to treat the players liberally and put them up at the best hotels. Do they sup-pose that men that have to submit to such conditions will put any enthusiasm in their work? Not by a jugful. The people in the cities of the Western League know a good article and have been used to getting a very superior article. They will not stand this cheap way of trying to run a league depend upon it?

He ducked his head as I fired, and the ball grazed his forebead. He dropped his revolver and reached for the bell cord. When he had pulled the cord twice, and while attempting to pull it a third time, I fired and shot him in the arm. After I got into the cara gust of wind THE GIRL, STOLEN BY HER FATHER blew out the light. I was suspicious that he would feel for his gun, and for a moment I expected a bloody fight. They opened a hole in the floor and dropped me down into the barroom, where I was caught by a big man and hurried off to another house. I was kept there several days, and then father tion of this young man tallies exactly with the printed description of Train Robber the printed description of Train Robber Perry. In the afternoon I dropped in again. Mr. Perry brought out a bottle, which contained an ear of a colored man preserved in alcohol. He said it belonged to Mr. Hopkins Miss Jessie Soule was in the room and saw it, too.

The last I saw of Mr. Hopkins was on Saturday afternoon. I called on him Sunday twice, but he was not there, and I asked if her boarder had gone. She said he had. The next morning, after the story came out in the newspapers, I called at Mr. Perry's houseagain, but Mrs. Perry greeted me very coolly and I left.

This morning Mrs. Perry came into my house, and in a very agitated manner informed me that if I didn't stop talking about her family she would have me arrested for slander. I had said to a couple of neighbors that I thought Hopkins was none other than Perry, the robber, and had also told about seeing the bottle containing the ear.

BARRIOS HOLDING OUT,

He Refuses to Surrender to His Successor for Diplomatic Reasons. SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 25.—The Pacific Mail Company's steamer City of New York arrived from Panama and way ports to-day. When the steamer was in San Jose. Guate mala, the election was just over. The rival andidates for the Presidency were Lieniesta and Barrios. According to statements nade by passengers the former received the popular vote and was declared elected, but Barrillas declined to hand over the reins "bolter." Basing his action on this advice, it is now claimed that Cleveland will very soon inform his late Secretary of the Treasurv that he does not wish him to proceed with the May convention. He will tell him that he does not care to go to Chicago as a "botter" or "kicker," and precipitate a Cleveland-Hill fight at the beginning of the convention, and perhaps sustain defeat at the start. In place of such a performance he prefers to let the Hill convention stand and let the other States send Cleveland delegations to Chicago. Mr. Cleveland has been advised that the effect of the solid Hill delegation from New York, such as already selected, will not hurt his cause before that convention haif so much as a contest in which he appears as a bolter from the regular party. The convention will be thoroughly cognizant of the character of the Hill delegation, and with an overwhelming number of delegates from other States he can wire with of Government to him. His excuse was and as trouble was expected it was not diplomatic to change the Government at that time. The passengers assert that Barrillas only wanted time to find out the sentiment of the army. If the troops will side with him Barrillas will refuse to resign. From Panama the steamer brings word that work on the Nicarangua Canal is not progressing very rapidly, although men are constantly at work surveying and laving out lines. Others are engaged in building houses for laborers who are expected next Change in Parlor Car Service Between Cleveland and Pittsburg Via Pennsylvanta Lines.
