Rev. A. W. Mann Again Visits His Voiceless and Unhearing Flock.

AN IMPRESSIVE HOUR AT TRINITY.

Rev. Dr. Sutherland Talks of the Modern Woman in Business.

ELDER BOND IN DEFENSE OF MORMONS

Without the moving of a lip, without the uttering of a single word, and without the swelling notes of the pipe organ God was worshiped in Trinity Chapel yesterday afternoon. It was the quarterly meeting of the deaf mutes of Pittsburg, who on these occasions gather there to listen to Rev. A.

There were about a score of these voiceless and unhearing people nestled down in the front of the chapel. They seemed to slip into the chapel as quietly as a mid-summer breeze; even their feet made no sound as they walked up the carpeted aisles and silently and seemingly sadly took their

The lookers-on in the rear of the church were watching closely, and some of them, too, were listening for the opening anthem, which, of course, never came. When the time for the opening of the services came, Rev. Mr. Mann walked to the front of the chancellory and commenced. With the working of his fingers he beckoned his congregation to rise, and they followed him in a responsive reading. This lasted for sev-eral minutes, and then the regular sermon eral minutes, and then the regular sermon commenced.

Rev. Mr. Mann took his position at one side of the altar and during his entire discussion he never moved out of his tracks. His fingers were soontapidly telling the tale of Christ, and when this commenced a silence fell over the house that was almost oppressive. The speakers' eyes were fixed with intense gaze on the congregation and his facial expression never changed but once. That was when he seemed to be talking of heaven; then a faint shadow of a smile stole over his countenance for a moment.

It was remarkable, the degree of rapidity he attained in his talking. His fingers were opened and shut with lightning haste. Sometimes his hands would come together with a fittle more force than usual and a soft little smack would be the result. This would not have been noticed at an ordinary church service, but in this case each smack seemed to startle the sight-seers who could hear and wake them from their lethargy. He at last came to the end of his discourse, and by some expression not noticeable to those who did not live within the realm of this finger-speaking neople, his congregation rose and joined him in prayer. A little more energy in the way of gesticulating was shown in this, and the face of the speaker several times wore a smile as he brought down Divine blessing on his unfortunate flock.

WOMEN IN BUSINESS.

Rev. Dr. Sutherland Says Her Present Position Is an Outcome of Christian Civiliration—Better to Be Busy Than Thumping a Plane and Waiting for a Beau. Dr. Sutherland, of the Second Presbyterian Church, preached last night to a large congregation the fourth of his course of sermost to young women. His special theme was "Women in Business." He said: While in many regards the conditions of human society have undergone a decided change, and that for the better, we can still find in the record of events and ages long gone by many valuable thoughts and practical suggestions to which, as a people and as individuals, we would do well and as individuals, we would do well to take heed. There is one law of buman conduct or duty that, aithough often violated or disregarded, is fundamental and is enjoined over and over again in the Bible. It is this: "Whatsoever thy bund findeth to do, do it with thy might." This law is designed for women as well as for men. Obedience to it is an essential condition of usefulness and happiness here in this life and of reward in the life to come. Whatever a woman has the power to do and Whatever a woman has the power to do and the opportunity of doing properly lies within her sphere. This 'w makes provi-sion for special exigencies and special work, such as that which is brought before us in the text. The daughters of Shallum took their places beside their father, and with trowel in one hand and with trowel in one hand and sword in the other worked to repair the broken down wall of their beloved city. There was work to be done and need of some There was work to be done and need of some willing hands and brave hearts to do it and these leal hearted, brave girls did not think it beneath their dignity or foreign to their mission as women to inclinate it by the labor of their own hands. It will be easily seen and readily acknowledged that work like that in which these women engaged is, under ordinary circumstances, outside of the sphere of woman.

There are occupations for which woman by virtue of her physical if not mental constitution is unfitted, and those who are at this day so strenuously and persistently advocating the obliteration of all and every line of demarkation between the respective spheres of the sexes, and doing it as they fancy in the interests of woman, are engaged in a fruitless task. They are simply setting themselves against nature, whose order and arrangements are imperative and final. There can be no question but that the home with its varied and sacred duties furnishes the finest and most ities furnishes the finest and most uitful field for the exercise and develop-ent of woman's peculiar powers and pacities. But at the same time it does not ment of woman's peculiar powers and capacities. But at the same time it does not follow that her labors should be confined to the home. More than this, under the varied and complex conditions of society as we find it, to do so would be neither possible not desirable, and we must remember, too, that these conditions are the outcome of our advanced Christian civilization.

There are scores of branches of labor on which delicate manipulation, carefulness and patience are specially required. In such positions women are far more successful than men, and they who are engaged on them are 'scaving their generation.' It is simply vulgar prejudice, which, in any way deprectates a young woman because she elects to be independent and earn her own living. With much that is good that has come down to us as an inheritance from the past, there are some notions that are as silly as they are unsound, and one of these is that a woman who works for a living in some honorable occupation in preference to sitting down thumping an old plane and waiting for a bean—that such a woman forfeits her right to be regarded a lady. Let no young woman be ashamed of her position as a toiler in the broad field of the world's industries. Be thankrul that you are not mere doils to be dressed and painted for the empty admiration of empty-headed "dudes" and "mashers," who know more about canes and neck ties than they do about the Lord's Prayer or the Ten Commandments.

A DEFENSE OF MORMONISM.

Elder W. H. Bond Speaks for the Creed of the Latter-Day Saints-A Claim That More Proof Has Been Secured Re

Elder W. H. Bond, a minister in the Church of the Latter-Day Saints, appeared in Goeddel's Hall in the East End last night, to answer the lecture of the Rev. Dr. Passavant on "The Inside View of Mormonism." Elder Bond's argument was abusive of Dr. Passavant and was chiefly a defense of the "Book of Mormon." He denied in vigorous language that Sydney Rigdon had stolen a copy of the manuscript of Solomon Spalding's novel from a Pittsburg printing office and charac-terized what is generally believed as the erigin of Joseph Smith's "Golden Bible" as an invention of the enemies of Mormonism, Old claims were rehearsed at great length, and with a show of pomp the Elder an-nounced that as a final proof that the Solo-mon Scalding story is a myth be lead and with a show of pomp the Euger announced that as a final proof that the Solomon Spalding story is a myth, he lind recently interviewed a nephew of Spalding who lives in Crawford county who had laughed at the idea of his uncle's novel being taken as the Mormon Bible. "This man told me," said Eider Bond, "that Solomon Spalding had never been a minister; that previous to moving to Conneaut, C., he had been a partner of his brother, the father of the man I was interviewing, in the distilling business, and that they fell out because Solomon refused to may his brother what he owed him. Solomon, it seems, contracted a great many debts and expected to pay all of them with the proceeds of his novel He was a very liliterate man, my informer told me, and never graduated from Dartmouth College, as has been announced. The origina' manuscript of spalding's ctory is at Oberlin College, Ohic, and shows no similarity whatever to the Book of Mormon. It has been published by us, but not by our enemies."

Refeiring to the band of faithful ones in Utah, the elder said: "I would rather stop in Pittsburg than go to Salt Lake City it I wanted more wives than one. In Utah they arrest people for having too many wives, and I don't think they would in Pittsburg. I've got one wife, however, and that's more than I can take care of now. I am opposed to polygamy and will have to be furnished proof that Joseph smith practiced it before I believe he did. If the fact should be proved that Smith had more than one wife we must overlook that as we do the sins of David!"

TALES ON PARIS.

Rev. T. H. Anderson, of the McAll Mission

Speaks in Allegheny. Rev. T. H. Anderson, who for eight years has been working in the McAll Mission, Paris, preached in the North Avenue M. E. Church last night, His sermon was more in the form of a talk on his work in Paris. He cited many instances of where even in that highly cultured city the Bible was unknown. He said it was customary for people to come to him and ask who was the author of the Testament and when it was first published. He told of one incident of a Parisian who had searched through 33 book stores in Paris and could not find a Bible on sale.

Rev. Anderson then told the people how sale.

Rev. Anderson then told the peonle how badly funds were needed to carry on the work and asked for aid. Blank cards were passed around with the request that they be filled out with the amount the giver could spare. A large number of cards were taken, and also a basket collection.

Interesting Services at the Jail. Interesting religious services were held at the jail yesterday afternoon by Rev. E. R. Donehoo, who was ably assisted in the ceremony by a cheir of good singers from ceremony by a choir of good singers from the West End M. E. Church. The congregation of prisoners paid close attention to all that was said and done and not a whisper was heard among them through the entire proceeding. The services consisted of readings from the Scripture, a ten-minute talk by Rev. Mr. Donehoo and plenty of singing by the choir, which prevented the interest from flagging at any time. The regular Sunday services at the jail are becoming a feature at that institution that for discipline and close attention would do credit to many of our churches.

NO MORE BREAKING OF TRAINS: B, & O, Freight Crews Instructed to Run to

Bennett Station Hereafter. Beginning to-day, the Baltimore and Ohio freight crews instead of stopping at Laughlin station and transferring Western traffic to the Junction shifters, will run over the road to Bennett station on the Pittsburg and Western. This is the first real indication that the Junction and Pittsburg and Western roads have been merged into the Baltimore and Ohio system. Bennett hereafter will be the end of the Pittsburg division. From this time forth the Western freight over the Baltimore and Ohio will be run to Chicago through Pitts-

A large force of men has been to work ballssting the Pittsburg and Western be-tween Newcastle and Akron. During the winter 5,000 tons of cinder were dumped on this section of the road. If the work of making the tracks solid progresses as rap-idly as the engineers think, Third Vice President Lord, hopes to have the fast pas-senger trains running over the new main line by June 1.

Quits the Hotel Business To-Day. To-morrow the Central Hotel will be closed up for repairs. George Anderson has sold his interest to Mr. Rowan, and for the present will retire from the business. He is a member of the Land and Power Company, of Buffalo, and will spend some time there, but he has not decided to locate in the city. The company has a capital stock of $1,000,000, and one of their schemes is to utilize the power of Niagara. They have also bought 220 acres of land, on which they expect to realize a handsome return. The Central Hotel will be closed for six weeks or two months. The improvements to be made in the house have already been described in this paper.

A Peculiar Death in Sharpsburg. Coroner McDowell was notified yesterday burg of Mrs. Elizabeth Sullivan, who was found dead in bed at 7 o'clock vesterday morning. An inquest will be held into the case to-day. It was said Mrs. Sullivan had been almost continuously intoxicated dur-ing the past four weeks. Her husband, who is employed at O'Donnell's Hotel, went home for breakfast yesterday, and when he tried to awaken her he found her dead. She

Mrs. Robert Dunseatt, of Manchester, whose little boy was recently killed under an electric car, takes exceptions to the verdict rendered in the case. She says while some mothers may have been careless she was most particular, and that the motormar neither rang the bell nor slackened the speed of the car, although it was on an up-grade.

Deals with Nature.

In extracting fruit flavors Dr. Price deals directly with nature and leaves the use of artificial extracts to those who have not the chemical knowledge to extract from the true fruit, and who care not what they sell so long as they can make money. Dr. Price's Delicious Flavoring Extracts are conceded to have no peers in the market and thus the demand is constantly increasing. The manufacturer of cheap extracts gets all the profit there is in the dishonesty and the grocer has to shoulder all the James Gilbraith, a 6-year-old boy, whose parents live at the foot of South Sixth parents live at the foot of South Sixth street, made a narrow escape from death shortly after 6 o'clock last night. The boy was crossing over Carson street, and failed to notice the approach of car 13, which struck him and knocked him sideways onto the pavement. When picked up it was found that he had suffered a severe wound on the back of the head. The injured lad was carried into a physician's office, where his injuries were dressed, after which he was removed to his home.
