PITTSBURG ALL RIGHT.

The Increase of Death Rate Caused by Complications of Grip

NOT SO BIG AS IN OTHER CITIES.

No Longer Any Fear of it Becoming an Ipidemic This Year.

FEATURES OF THE HEALTH STATISTICS

"Thank heaven it looks as if we were not going to have a repetition of last year's la grippe epidemic," said Dr. McCandless, of the Board of Health, yesterday, as he put the finishing touches to the statistical part of his annual report. Continuing he stated that in the year 1891 there were 5,832 deaths as compared to 4,979 the year before. The increase, he said, was due chiefly to the grip and its complications. He thought Pittsburg got off as easily as any other city in the country, and that its death rate would continue lower than the majority of other large cities. In New York, the only city that has yet been heard from, the percentage of death was 26 and a fraction. In Pittsburg the calculation was made on a population of 247,000, making rate of 23.60. The percentage in 1890 was 20.74.

Of the 5,832 deaths, only 108 were returned as having been caused by influenza or the grip. The complications following attacks of the grip, however, are believed to have been responsible for over 1,000 deaths. There were 740 from pneumonia alone and 207 from bronchitis. Both diseases followed the grip epidemic last year and in the majority physicians think death was indirectly caused by the Russian terror.

Results of the Epidemic.

Besides pneumonia and bronchitis there were 172 fatal cases of cerebro spinal fever, a disease which followed the grip and by many physicians thought to be due to it. In 1890 there were only 24 deaths from cerebro spinal fever and but one more case reported from influenza. In the same year there were 556 deaths from pneumonia and 153 from bronchitis,

Another explanation of the increased death rate was the diphtheria epidemic that lasted about two months. The number of deaths from it was 301, compared with 266 the year before, which was also an un-usually big number. In 1889 there were 213 and in 1888 126. The latter is about the normal rate. The greatest number of deaths there has been in any single year in Pitts-burg was in 1878, when there were 483,

Consumption as usual leads with the greatest number of deaths from any one disease, there having been 532. A number of these cases are believed to have been hastened by the grip. From contagious dis-cases there were 976 deaths. Of these diphtheria has the greatest number. Typhoid fever follows with 248. There were 114 deaths from whooping cough, an nunsually large number. Only one died from the disagreeable, distressing mumps. There were 33 deaths from measles, a lower rate than the average.

Not a Fatal Allment.

Rheumatism with all its terrors was only fatal in 29 cases. Of the entire number of deaths, 3,903 were of native white American citizens. Of these 2,122 were males and 1,781 females. Among the foreign popu-lation, 948 males and 698 females died during the year.

The colored people demonstrated their longevity by the fact that there were only 152 male and 131 female deaths. Of the 5,832 who died during the year, 1,524 were under the age of one year; about 1,300 were between one and five years; none had passed the century mark and only 19 were between 90 and 100.

In commenting on the report vesterday Dr. McCandless said: "The increased death rate is due almost entirely to the grin, and does not indicate that Pittsburg will not continue to be a healthy city. All

Ended in a Murder.

Michael Niland and Edward Fostill, two Baltimore and Ohio employes, had a quarrel at Yoder's station shortly after midnight on Tuesday. Niland was shot and instantly killed by Fostill. The murdered man was a fireman on pushing engine No. 483, and Fostill was the flagman. A dispute arose between them about some work. Niland advanced toward Fostill with a coal pick, when the latter shot him through the heart. The facts were telegraphed to Su-perintendent Holbrook, and Fostill was arrested when the engine reached Rockwood. Coroner Gilder, of Somerset county, ordered an investigation at once. The body of Ni-land was taken to his home in Connells-

David J. Morgan, McKeesport,

David J. Morgan, of McKeesport, aged 75, the well-known Grand Army man, died yesterday. The cause of death was general debility, superinduced by advancing age. David J. Morgan was a veteran, having served in the late war as Orderly Sergeant of Company G, One Hundred and Second of Company G, One Hundred and Second Regiment, Pennsylvania Voluntoers. He was a brave soldier, and has for some years past been a member of Post 52, G. A. R., of McKeesport, which organization will have charge of the funeral exercises. De-ceased was one of the pioneer glass blowers of the State, and was a resident of Pittsburg for many years, coming to McKeesport in 1879, where he has since resided.

General Bordonne.

Bordonne, who was Garibaldi's chief of staff during the Franco-Prussian war, died in Paris yesterday. He had served under Garibaldi in Italy, and was practicing medicine when war with Germany commenced. After the war he was bitterly attacked by the French press on the score of peculation, but was completely cleared by the auditing officers.

I deaths in 1891 is greater by far than in preceding years. Not a city in America escaped the epidemic, and nearly all suffered more than our own. The grip has proved itself to be a terrible disease from which there is no retreat. It is admitted to be a disease of which the germs are transmitted through the air, and there is therefore no prevention. I think, or at at least I hope, that it spent its greatest fury last year.

No Sigus of an Epidemic.

"There have only been a few deaths re-ported from it this winter, and as it looks now there will not be an epidemic. Last year it did not start until about this time, but there were more cases of sickness than there are now. There have been a few cases of grip in Eastern cities this year, but nothing like the number there were at the same time in '91. The country disticts seem to be suffering this year more than the cities. I know of no condition that accounts for this. If the grip follows the characteristics of other epidemics of its nature, it will not appear again for several years. Diseases that are carried by geross in the air usually last three years, the first being mild, the second severe and the last like the first. If we have only a light attack of grip this year, there will be good grounds to hope that our visitor will not any out year.

visitor will not appear next year. "I have not received the reports from other cities yet, but will do so soon. Pittsburg is as healthy as the majority of the other cities, however, and I am confident the increase here will be less than the average increase all over the country."

Our Better Haives Say

They could not keep house without Cham-berlain's Cough Remedy, especially for the children. In a case a tew weeks since at the home of a neighbor the attending physi-cian had given up a case of what he called dropsy. Mother happening in, told the parents that in her mind it was a case of lung fever, and advised the use of this cough syrup, which they did. Result, the child is well and the parents happy. Chamberlain's medicines are used in more than half the homes in Leeds - Sims Bros., Leeds, In. This remedy is not intended for lung fever, but for colds, is grippe, croup and whoop-ing cough. It will loosen a cold, relieve the lungs and prevent the cold from result-ing in lung fever. 50-cent and $1 bottles for sale by druggists.
