LONDON, March 7 .- Hon. Charles Foster, Secretary of the United States Treasury, and Right Hon. George J. Goschen Chancellor of the Exchequer, have had two interviews, but nothing has been settled concerning the holding of a currency conference. That matter depends entirely pon coming negotiations.

Mr. Foster will start for Southampton tomorrow, where he will proceed on a short visit to the Isle of Wight before sailing Wednesday on his return to the United States. He has made a rapid tour around London, visiting the docks, the Tower of London and the National Gallery. He has also visited the Seven Diats' district, where so many of London's poor have their habitations, and expressed great surprise at the absence ofth e squalor he expected to see in the East End. The health of the Secretary shows a marked improvement. Found the House of Lords Dull.

Mr. Foster, accompanied by Mr. Lincoln this afternoon went to hear the debate in the House of Lords, but the House .sat for only 20 minutes, the officials simply going through the formal business. As Mr. Poster had been advised beforehand that the House of Peers was the gullest assembly in the world, he could not have been disan-

In an interview, Mr. Foster said that it is impossible to disclose the nature of his conversation with Mr. Goschen. They referred to a currency conference, but the matter had not been discussed at any length. The correspondent having referred to the confidence felt in America that such a conference would be arranged, Mr. Foster said that he hoped that the confidence was not misplaced, and that if a satisfactory basis can be obtained he will not hesitate to confer. Mr. Foster's attention being called to the weakness of the bi-metallic section in the German Reichstag as bad for the prospects of such a conference, and also to the Austro-Hungarian project to return to cash payments under a gold standard, said: Bi-Metallic Sentiment in England.

Of course, we are perfectly aware of these liculties; but I have been surprised to find so much interest taken in bi-mettalism in England and the extent to which public in England and the extent to which public opinion is going in favor of a double standard. Since coming here I have been constantly approached to express myself on the subject. My business, however, was, in the first place, to recruit my health, not to see Mr. Goschen nor to arrange conferences.

If there is one man in Europe I should like to see it is Prince Bismarck. I have no time for that, however, I shall not even go to Paris or Brighton, or any other place, as I had proposed. On Saturday I passed the day chiefly in seeing the city. Among other places visited, I dined in the ancient hostelry frequented by Dr. Johnson. I tried to get an idea of London by a four hours' drive to the East End as far as India Docks. The wastness of lite here is amazing. I saw only a small part, but it was enough to give me a sense of its immensity. I was struck, too, by the cleanliness and order of the streets, even at the East End, where I had been led to expect squalor and disorder. "The Seven Dials" seems to have lost the character it had at the time Charles Dickens wrote of it. Senator Teller's Silver Resolution.

Referring to the published account of the interview, Mr. Foster said, "the phrase 'clam-mouthed,' as applied to Irish emigrants, is not mine. I used the familiar phrase, 'flanuel mouth,' to denote the raw emigrant whose children become assimilated with the good American type. I have heard complaints already about the inapplicable word 'clam-mouth.'" Although he declared that his health was better, Mr. Foster had a slight hoarseness, having caught a fresh cold. ing caught a fresh cold.

The Czarina saw the man take something from under his coat. She turned white, half rose from her seat, and then sank back on her son's shoulder. The coachman drove on with all speed, shouting to the police on the drive, and pointing toward the man, who hurried off through the crowd Several arrests were made within a few minutes, but with what results cannot be ascertained. Lieutenant tietherington's Jet Has Split the Anglo-American Colony There

LONDON, March 7 .- A dispatch from Yokohama says that a serious division of feeling has arisen between the English and American colonies relative to the shooting of George Gower Robinson, the English banker, by Lieutenant J. H. Hetherington, of the United States Navy. Under the existing treaties with Japan, Lieutenant Hetherinton will be tried by the American Consular Court, but the by the American Consular Court, but the English are watching the case very jealously, and should Hetherington be acquitted or let off with a light penalty, there will probably, judging from existing teeling, be reprisals in form.

Robinson was very popular among the English colony, and his friends claim that there was no good cause or excuse for Hetherington taking the law in his own hands. The case has already led to very strained relations between English and American society in Japan, and some of the leading English have given the cut direct to their American acquaintan especially of the official class.

They claim that by falsely repre-senting to the jail warden that they had re-ceived orders from Coroner Lemonnier for ceived orders from Coroner Lemonnier for the clothing that Fitzsimmons were when he suicided, they got the clothes and brought them to this city, offering them to Harry Davis' museum for $1,000. ISPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE DISPATCH. ALBANY, March 7 .- After a good deal of debate the Senate declined to investigate the Keeley cure by a vote of 22 to 2. Sen-ator Endres, of Buffalo, had introduced the resolution, which went over from time to time until made a special order this evening. It proposed to have a Senate commit-tee investigate the Keeley cure and find out everything about it.

"We might as well undertake to investigate the workings of cod liver oil," said Senator Coggeshall. "What business is this of the State? We are not called to find out what patent medicines are made of or to look after the health of the people, who know what they are doing. Where would this course end? All this is a proper sub-ject for the State Board of Health, which was created for that purpose."

"You can't kill a Democrat with whisky," retaliated Senator Coggeshall. 'It takes dynamite to kill a Democrat, and it depends on what part of his body the dynamite strikes."

Senator McCalland said that the Keeley Institute was at White Plains in his district, and that he knew something about its workings. Seventy-seven per cent of the patients were cured. The Keeley Institute did not object to an investigation, only they wanted to have it settled whether or not the Senate was going to investigate them, as the uncertainty hurt their busi-

A Letter That Was Not Read. If the investigation had proceeded the following letter from Dr. Edward C. Huse, of Rockford, Ill., would have been read. It will attract notice from those who have made the gold cure a study:

ROCEFORD, ILL, February 21. Charles A. Earle, Deputy Journal Clerk, State Senate, Albany, N. Y.:

Senate, Albany, N. Y.:

MY DEAR SIR—An exhaustive and resolute investigation of the bi-obloride of gold oure is dictated no less by justice than humanity. That the deplorable death of Walter B. Earle at the Poughkeepsie Insane Asylum resulted from atropia poisoning admits of no conceivable doubt. Hence the expose as contemplated by the State Senate of your State must meet with the approval of every right-minded man and every thoughtful and honest physician.

right-minded man and every thoughtful and honest physician.

A careful study, extending to a good many cases and through several months, convinces meof its extreme danger as practiced at Keeley's "joint" at Dwight, and elsewhere. Fifty-two of his "graduates" are in this city. One—Mr. Culver—died last week at his "institute." Culver's death was reported to be from manuscrift. No Mystery About the Medicine.

There is no special mystery about the com-position of Keeley's remedies. He claims wondrous secrecy about their make-up. Quackery always does. Yet the formulæ are endowment, so will its harmful influence be manifest in varied intensity.

Hence, while one loses, in part or whole, his memory, another is violently insene. All are injured in man's strongest appetite, his reproductive, and soon become utterly impotent. All, for a long time show on "graduation," protound lassitude, a staring, listless indifference, a mental hebetude. Pallor, anxiety, enfeebled circulation, exhaustion on slight effort, extreme dullness of comprehension occur to all. The dilated pupils, intense thirst, dryness of mouth and throat, confusion of ideas, these symptoms belong to life at the Institute after two or three days treatment. three days' treatment.

Atropia a Perilous Drug

Atropia a Perilous Drag.

All of the effects above cited are due to one drug alone. It is atropia. Any competent physician, any standard authority, as "Stille & Maisch's National Dispensatory" or the "United States Dispensatory," will confirm what is stated. Why Keeley and his henchmen use this toxic and fearfully perilous drag God only knows. Its use is worthy of a fool or a lunatio.

As to strychnia, this is not, as the papers seem to think, the source of any trouble. Used by itself in decent doses, from one-sixteenth up to one-thirtieth grain, it is entirely safe. It is often given alone as a tonic by the very best physicians.

Of Keeley himself it is neither my place nor purpose to speak. He "lectured" at the Auditorium, in Chicago, December 18, 1891, and the writer was present. His statements, if true, utterly upset all former medical learning. He is not an educated man.

Death from atropia poisoning (accidental) occurred here 12 years since to a prominent druggist. The writer was his physician. Acute paralysis of brain occurred, followed by softening and paresis.

It may be learned from Prof. Hermann M. Biggs, of Bellevue Medical College, of New York City, whom the writer communicated with after the death of Thomas S. Mines, in November, 1891, that my views on atropia were then and there stated. Also to Prof. E. C. Seguin of my own college, the College of Physicians and Surgery, in New York.

Few Recover From Its Blight.

An account in the Chicago Herald recently of a man who died on a doorstep in Chicago insane and screaming, and who beat out his brains on that stone step, attracted my notice. He has just come from No. 1184 West Monroe street, Chicago. The Herald said Monroe street, Chicago. The Herald said Keeley's late partner, one Hargreaves, runs a "joint" there for dipsomania cure. Of all the effects of atropia, amneria, partial or complete, is most common. From its blight few if any wholly recover.

Mr. Earle also has a letter from a prominent Chicago lawyer who proposes to have Keeley investigated by the Illinois Legislature, asking for a copy of the resolution ordering an investigation in this State. These and other letters would have been submitted to the Senate Committee.

Strangled fler Baby With a Garter, 'Squire John R. Leams, of Millvale borough, held an inquest last evening on the body of the child found Sunday. When Delia Cain was put on the stand she confessed she was the mother, acknowledged she strangled it and threw it in the well. The girl had previously denied it, and said she had been sick in an entirely different manner and received the care of a physician. She broke down yesterday, however, and described the birth of the child and her subsequent killing of it. She said she had removed a muslin garter from her stocking and wound it about the haby's neck until it was dead, and had then thrown it into the well. The verdict of the jury was in accordance with her confession, and 'Squire R. Leams committed the woman to jail on a charge of murder. She was brought into jail last night. The girl had previously denied it, and said

He has been in Columbus for some time. Mr. Neame says to abolish their street parades would kill the army. They would be recognized as a church, and their object is to reach the people that never hear a sermon preached and are not attracted by the sound of a church bell. A Flattering Swindling Scheme That Didn't Work Very Long.

BANKING ON THE WORLD'S FAIR

Halsey De Baud Organizes a Triple Theatrical Speculation.

HERMANN AND KIRAGPY BOTH CAUGHT

PERCIAL TELEGRAM TO THE DISPATCE. NEW YORK, March 7 .- The arrest and arraignment at the Jefferson Market Police Court to-day of a clever young swindler, nipped in the bud one of the most carefully planned schemes for securing money under false pretenses which the great fair to be held in Chicago in 1893 has as yet given occasion for.

About five years ago Halsey C. De Baud was well known to theatrical people as a clever theatrical architect. He used to have an office in the same building as H. S. Taylor, Edward Zimmerman, Sanger, and other dramatic agents and managers. De Baud was known as "Newark," because he lived in that town and would go home every evening while the rest stayed in the city to gossip along Broadway.

But DeBaud was not particularly suc

ful and he disappeared from view. It was not until about a month ago that he turned up again on Broadway, but he no longer was the struggling young architect. He drove up to the door of H. S. Taylor's dramatic agency in a swell brougham drawn by two fine horses. With him was a man whom he presented to his old associate as Mr. Sears, his personal attorney. He called on Mr. Taylor and engaged an office in his building, and in a few days installed a pretty typewriter there, who ticked away on the keys from morning until night, In Bosiness at Ningara Falls.

DeBaud would be absent for several days at a time, and his typewriter said he had gone to Buffalo or Niagara Falls. . The gone to Buffalo or Niagars Falls. The great milling industry which it is hoped will be developed at the falls by means of the tunnel now in construction will tend to increase the size of the town, and the authorities are preparing for a boom. DeBaud entered into partnership with W. C. Johnson, and the two drew up a plan for constructing a system of sewerage which they presented to the town council with such good success as to get them to bond the city for $750,000 to raise money to construct the sewer. to raise money to construct the sewer. De-Baud and Johnson were to receive a large percentage. DeBaud then organized the "World's DeBaud then organized the "World's Columbian Transportation, Amusement and Construction Company," of which he was President, Treasurer and Board of Directors, and came to New York to establish his headquarters. On his cards he put the title "Directour General." The scheme was to construct three theaters on the plan of the Eldorado at Weehawken—one in this city, one in Nigagra and one in Chicago. Agencies were to be established in all the great European centers, and people abroad were European centers, and people abroad were to be urged to buy tickets of the transporta-tion company, which would enable them to stop off in these cities to witness the great performances at these theaters.

Kiralfy and Hermann Canght, De Baud even went so far as to engage Bolossy Kirally to organize the spectacular part of the entertainments, and made a contract with Hermann to give three percontract with Hermann to give three performances a day at a salary of $1,800 a week. DeBaud got Mr. Taylor to manage these great shows, but Taylor grew suspicious. On February 29 Taylor cashed a $150 check for DeBaud, drawn on the Cataract National Bank, of Niagara Falls. A few days tater the check was returned. Taylor talegraphed for information and received word that De Baud had drawn numerous checks on the bank above his balance.

On receiving this information Mr. Taylor got a warrant for the arrest of DeBaud, and it was served by Detective Hays this morning. At court another complainant ap-peared. He was William Moules, a grocer, who said he had cashed $150 in checks for DeBaud in payment for liquors and cigars.

The godie amounted to $98, and he had given DeBaud $52 in money.

Justice Diver held De Baud in $500 for each offense, for examination to-morrow.

It was learned to-night that at the time De Baud made his $1,800 contract with Hermann, he purchased from the magician an opal ring, for which he paid $90 in a check on the Cataract Bank. He took the ring to a jeweler in this city and had it mounted as a scarf pin, surrounded with diamonds. It was to be ready this morning, and was to cost $167.

Mr. Taylor said last night that a man named Douglas, a conductor on the Lake Shore Railroad, called to see DeBand a few days ago. He had been led to believe in the scheme and wanted to invest all his savings in the "Company." Taylor, being a fellow Mason, advised him to wait awhile. . How Hermann Lost a Ring.
