CHICAGO-Wheat was unsettled to-day, but the general feeling was one of weakness, and prices averaged considerably lower. The first transactions were at $\frac{1}{\sqrt{2}}$ below to $\frac{1}{\sqrt{2}}$ chove yesterday's last figures. A heavy soling pressure was soon made manifest, under the influence of which the market broke over le in a very short time, but at the bottom parchases to take visible profits on the decline caused a reaction. There were several fluctuations within the established range, and the close was at a

There wrenes to the function of the process of a point by compared with yesterday's last figures. The cold wave made its appearance as advertised, but the trade did not feel as nervous over it as it did yester-day, and scenned to conclude that as winter when was not a tropical plant freezing was not the level of short duration, the Signal service predicting a rise in temperature. New York operators were the first to grasp the situation the long wheat which they took in on the cold wave scare of yesterday. This change in sentiment was supplemented by weak cables carly, which prove a disappointment. Another incentive to the sold prove a bear document, and show the stock of wheat in farmers hands depressingly large. In view of all this, many of the holders of or wheat in farmers' hands depressingly large. In view of all this, many of the holders of wheat made haste to get rid of it before the break they looked for should come, and the break they looked for the first inde was a very weak unaktet for the first half hour. There was then a halt, and, cellers having exhausted themselves, the market began to renet. The late enbles came in higher aimost without exception. Armour and N. B. Beam were said to be picking up large lots of wheat, and confi-dence was restored to some extent. At and near the opening May sold at 500
