TAXATION AND WORK.

Labor That Is Given for the Support of the Government.

IT AMOUNTS TO FIVE PER CENT

Of the Energy of the People in Processes of Production.

THE BURDEN IS COMPARATIVELY LIGHT

WRITTEN FOR THE DISPATOR. In a previous number an approximate computation was given of the value of our annual product. Given a certain measure of such products-then it follows that by so much as some persons secure a larger share of the whole-by so much must the share of the others be reduced. The share or proportion which must be assigned to the support of Government is taken from those who do the work of the country in proportion to consumption and not in ratio to the work done. The case may be stated in other terms. A certain part of every persons work must be devoted to the support of the Government, and since the revenues are derived mainly from the taxation of articles of common consumption, therefore the cost of Government is put upon the people in proportion to their consumption of the subjects of taxation rather than in proportion to their personal incomes.

In order to make this case of taxation and work clear we will first give a statement of the expenditures of the Government in the fiscal year ending June 30, 1891, measured by men's work for one year of 300 days at $2 per day; we will then deal with the subject by the customary method in terms of money. It might be suitable to make this computation at a less rate per day, since national taxes upon articles of common consumption are paid in largest measure by people of moderate incomes of less than $600 for each working group of three, or less than $1,000 for each family of five. It is probable, to say the least, that the actual cost of Government when stated in terms of work would be one-fifth greater in number of men occupied in one year, than the figures which are given in the subsequent tables.

The Best Way to State the Case,

This will become apparent by recurring to the sorting of occupations in No. I: taking observations of the great proportions of laborers, mechanics, factory operators and persons engaged in personal service as compared to all others.

The best way to put this case is in the eustomary form of an account current.

By Men Numbering 172 266

10,609,197 15 17,682 8,760,461 71 For the interest on the 62,578 taxes to States.

roil 124,415,951 49

For the postal revenue. 63,931,785 72 Total $458,544.233 03 Which sum represents the work of 764,257 men for one year of 300 working days at $2 per day each.

In other words, it required the full year's work of about 765,000 men to support the President, Cabinet, officials, legislators, judges, tax gatherers, postmasters, soldiers, sailors and others who performed the actual work of the Government; including also the pensioners and the claim agents who batten upon them, and all others who get their living out of or by direct payment from the Work to Support the Government.

In addition to this sum, under present laws the Government will tax the people in the next fiscal year for some other purposes, For the payment of bounties to sugar-planters and maple-tree tappers, about ten million dollars ($10,000,000) representing men's work for 300 days at $2, to the number of.

For the purchase of four million dollars' worth of silver bullion per month, to be stored in the vaults of the Treasury, forty-eight million dollars ($8,000,000),

Adding these last items the facts will show about 860,000 men now working for the support of the Government and for the support of those to whom bounties are to be paid; or, what is nearer the truth, every one who is at work in every occupation is forced to continue the effort so much longer, or to work so much harder, as the cost of the government is in ratio to the total consumption of taxed articles by every one who does any work, moral, mental or me-

The cost represents nearly 4 per cent of all the work that is done by all the people. The work done to support State and municipal governments is somewhat less. It may come to 2 or 3 per cent.

The Burden Comparatively Light. When we get the full census figures we Meen we get the full census ngures we may secure a more adequate measure. In 1880 the writer computed the ratio of all taxation to product at about 7 per cent. Since then the product has increased, but taxation has somewhat diminished in ratio to the product. If the taxes were rightly the taxes were rightly the taxes were rightly the taxes were rightly the taxes. framed and rightly spent we might not com plain. Compared to other countries, the burden is very light, although in many ways we do not get as much for our money especially in cities-but that subject is aside from my present purpose

According to the Blue Book lately issued by the Government, the total number of persons employed in its service, omitting postmasters, was over 160,000, to whom must be added the men in the army and the navy, making a total of about 200,000. The number of mechanics and laborers who are employed upon public works cannot be

In dealing with the cost of Government in terms of work it will be observed that we may rightly compute the numbers occupied in the service itself and also the number occupied in making provision for their sup-

Energy Diverted From Production. It is not held that the work of government It is not held that the work of government is not necessary and conducive to production, but it represents so much energy diverted from actual production. If men actually governed themselves, then all who are now in the service would be producing something for personal use or exchange and there would be no taxes to pay. The remission of work now exerted for and by the Government would then be substantially that of a number of men considerably ex-that of a number of men considerably exceeding 1,000,000. In other words, if there are now about 23. one,000,000 men, women and children occupied for gain in all the arts of life, including the support of the Government, we may very surely assume that very nearly if not quite 5 per cent of the actual work or energy of the people is expended in the processes of the National Government. The cost of the National Government treated in customary terms of money will be dealt with in No. III. EDWARD ATKINSON.

An Important Difference. To make it apprent to thousands, who think themselves ill, that they are not affected with any disease, but that the system simply needs cleansing, is to bring comfort home to their hearts, as a costive condition is easily cured by using Syrup of Figs.
