MIRACLES OF TO-DAY.

An Evangelist Talks of Conversions as Strange as That of Saul.

ONE MAN SAVED FROM SUICIDE.

A Presbyterian Version of the Career of Ireland's Saint.

TOPICS DISCUSSED IN LOCAL PULPITS

Rev. F. R. Farrand, of the Southside Presbyterian Church, has been conducting a series of gospel meetings assisted by Rev. W. H. Clagett, the evangelist of St. Louis. The meetings have been a decided success and were largely attended. Yesterday afternoon Rev. Mr. Clagett made an address to men only on the subject of "Remarkable Conversions, From Personal Knowledge.' The church was filled to its utmost capacity, and the evangelist was listened to with attention, and a number of conversions were

Rev. Mr. Clagett selected his texts from Luke xix., 10, "The Son of Man has come to seek and to save that which was lost;" Psalm ev, 1, "Make known His deeds among the people, talk ye of all His wondrous works." "The miracles of the olden times He said: are not more wonderful than those of the present day. The taking of Saul of Tarsus and sending him forth as the Apostle Paul to preach the gospel is not more wonderful than the conversion of an infidel of the present day." Some Remarkable Conversions.

He ther gave a brief outline of a number of remarkable conversions, among which was one of a dentist in a Western State who had been an infidel, and was converted after having attempted to commit suicide. was meditating a second attempt when, by almost a miracle, he was led into the told. Mr. Clagett read a letter from the told. Mr. Clagett read a letter from the doctor, wherein he gives a history of his experience. He had been a misbeliever all his life, and from the time Ingersoll first gave his thoughts to the world had been a firm believer in his doctrine, so much so that he contemplated erecting a temple and securing persons of that faith to preach to the people. In business the doctor had been very successfut, and had risen to the high-est office in the State dental society. But a change came: matters did not go on as smoothly as before: the most triffing thing annoyed him. One day, having taken his family to the country, something hapthing annoyed him. One day, having taken his family to the country, something hap-pened that he cursed and swore. His little 2 year-old child said: "Papa, don't talk so," but he dia not desist. That night the little one was taken fil and died; then business ventures failed until finally driven to des-peration, he concluded to end his life.

An Attempt at Suicide. Securing a quantity of morphine be took three large doses; but his life was saved by taking an overdose. That was on May 2, 1889. Still determined to end his miscrable existence he secured more morphine and Inid his plans to take a trip on a boat with the idea of taking the poison and then jump-ing overboard. The evening before his wife asked him to take a walk. In going up street they saw a sign announcing the meeting conducted by Evangelist Clagett. His wife suggested that they go in which they did. When a call was made for those who wished to make a confession his wife went forward and wanted him to go also, but he refused. A person nearby said to him: "Don't let your wife go alone." Then he decided to go. After talking for some time he finally con-fessed everything, including his intention to commit suicide the next day and also his first attempt, at the same time giving up the package containing the morphine. Mr. Clagett says: "I left him that night a happy man and the next night his entire family was received into the church and he is now, he writes me, the happiest of men." laid his plans to take a trip on a boat with

He said one involuntarily associates the idea of greatness with the city of God or with any work to which God's name is atthe family are respectfully invited to at tend. FRANKENBERGER-On Saturday, March tached. He called attention to the great tached. He called attention to the great cities of Rome, Babylon, London, and of America, and then said to think of all these in one great aggregation, and you have but a hint of the vastness of the city of God. He then referred to the figures of astrono-mers which seem horeedible, but they only know a small portion of the universe, and in the center of all this God had placed His great city of unchanging foundations in which He has placed everything to delight the eye, the ear, the taste and the mind-so great that earthly joys are but an intima-tion of what is to come. He also said peo-ple were transformed into a condition to en-joy everything to the fullest extent. He said this city would always be attrac-tive to the people of earth because it was the home of the living God and was the re-sult of His handiwork. He referred to the works and great buildings of great meh, and then asked what the heaven'y city must be since its Maker has all power and every re-source.

A MURDERER GIVES HIMSELF UP.

clock this evening a man wearing a slouch hat and cowhide boots, into which his rousers were tucked, crossed on the Des-0 days. Brosses street ferry from Jersey City, and, osting a backman, asked where he could see the "high constable," as he wanted to give himself up for murder. The hackman directed him to Leonard street station, where he was taken in charge. He gave his name as Joseph Alexande

Farmer, and said that he was a native of Jackson county, Georgia, where he had committed a murder in May of last year. His victim, he said, was a boy, R. Drake. He had been arrested for the murder, and while being conveyed to the county jail he works his accounted by formite provided made his escape and his family provided him with funds with which he had been traveling all over the country, but his con science had lately troubled him so much that he decided to surrender himself. He was locked up. On his person was found $60 in cash, and a huge revolver, nearly a toot and a half long.

An Important Difference. To make it apparent to thousands, who think themselves ill, that they are not af-fected with any disease, but that the system simply needs cleansing, is to bring comfort home to their hearts, as a costive condition is easily cured by using Syrup of Figs.
