NOT ONE EXCEPTION

Made to the Wholesale Denunciation of Secret Societies.

A PLEA FOR TEMPERANCE ORDERS

Fails to Secure Them Anything but Strong Denunciation.

THE CLOSE OF THE STATE CONVENTION

The Anti-Secret Society Convention was again in full operation yesterday.

Short addresses were made by delegates, and Dr. Stoddard answered several questions which were handed him relating to church members and their relations to secret societies. Dr. Bates, of Boston, he said, was opposed to oath-bound societies. "Let little snakes go where snakes belong," he said. Dr. Stoddard was opposed to the Good Templars as detrimental to the Church. The God of Masonry, he said, was not the God of Jesus Christ, All church members who belong to secret societies should lose their fellowship. He objected to the secret password required by the Grand Army and said that the record of a man as a soldier in defense of his country should be paramount to the barrier of a ritual. Dr. Campbell, a Wesleyan minister, said he was proud of belonging to a church that would not tolerate secret societies. Concerning the Jr. O. U. A. M. he said he preached a sermon against it, but previously sent to Councilor Collins for information, and received a reply that it could do the order no good, and it might do harm to advocate the divinity of the Lord Jesus

An Obstacle to Christianity.

Rev. J. L. Wenver, of Burgettstown, and Rev. J. Schub, of Allegheny, were the principal afternoon speakers. The former attacked especially the Masonic order, claiming that it was an obstacle in the pathway of Christianity, a temptation to young men, and, in fact, a deception. He made the statement that a man could not be a good Mason and a good Christian at one and the same time. He referred in like manner to other secret societies and denounced them as untrue to honor and religion. Seventy per cent of the Presbyterian ministry, he claimed, were opposed to secret socie-

Rev. W. P. Shaw, of Midway, Pa., ex-Rev. W. P. Shaw, of Midway, Pa., expressed his sentiments in a few chosen stories which, he alleged, proved the falsity of the pretensions of different secret societies. He knew of a case where a young man had become oblivious to piety, forgetful of his work and weak in integrity because he was a member of some of the traternal societies. Rev. J. P. Stoddard, of Boston, arose and real source a place in habit of the towner. made quite a plea in behalf of the temper-ance cause. He said he had at first been a temperance man, afterward a prohibition-ist and finally an abolitionist. He said he was still an abolitionist and always would be. He then branched from the temperance subject to that of the much-discussed socie-ties. The Knights Templar was the order at which he directed almost exclusive attention. This order, as was the fate of other Stories as Arguments.

Rev. Dr. D. C. Martin, of Allegheny, had a fund of stories reflecting on Knights Templar, Odd Fellows and Masons, and said the stories represented accurately his views and convictions. His assertions were that each of these orders existed merely by "plucking" from new members sufficient money to carry the order through. Help was asked of everyone who was newly elected yet. of everyone who was newly elected, yet when help to him was imperative he could find it not, except from a more recent mem-ber than himself. The speaker claimed that the Free Masons terminated their lodge meetings by adjourning to saloons to drink and dissipate otherwise.

Rev. Dr. McAllister said that the fault lay with the Church; that if the Church wanted temperance it should work for temperance, and if it wished the supp secret societies it should work, and not talk, to accomplish this end.

Reports were then heard on church cor respondence and benefits. The report of the Committee on Resolutions was presented by Dr. McAllister. The purport was that the Christian Church was opposed to secret societies, as they were inimical to the general welfare. The report was adopted.

Charitable Features Ridiculed. Last night's meeting concluded the convention. There was a fair but not large attendance. At the conclusion of the devotional exercises an address was made by the Rev. J. H. Schuk, of Allegheny. After reiterating statements made by former speakers denousely account of the conclusion of the devotional exercises. iterating statements made by former speakers denouncing secret societies as an evil to society and a menace to our civil institutions he took up the charitable societies. He ridiculed the idea of a so-called charitable society asking $25 or $50 to take in an object of charity. They would not even then, he said, take any one in who was disabled or who couldn't keep himself and family. To call it charity was a hollow pretense and a sham. They say they are charitable to their own members, but not one dollar in five goes to the

was a hollow pretense and a sham. They say they are charitable to their own members, but not one dollar in five goes to the widow and orphans. They pay money for hall rent, salaries of officers, uniforms, traveling expenses of delegates, banquets, street parades, etc. After all these are paid for there might be a mite left for the widow.

The committee on correspondence reported that they had received two communications. One was a lengthy letter from the Rev. Mr. Chalfant, of York, Pa, expressing his hearty sympathy with the work and wishing it success. The other, it was stated by the chairman, was not so lengthy nor so hearty. It was from E. D. Glenn, of Johnstown, Grand Chief of the Knights of the Golden Eagle. The letter was not read but a brief extract giving some of the qualifications for membership in that order was cited in order to take exceptions to them. Among the qualifications were that to become a member a person must be "a white male of good moral character and a believer in the existence of a Supreme Being and of the Christian faith." This, it was stated, meant that it was only necessary to believe in the existence of the Christian faith.

An Attack on the Oaths.

An Attack on the Oaths.

An Attack on the Oaths.

The next speaker was the Rev. J. P. Stoddard, of Boston. He devoted his address to the covenants or oaths of secret societies. He said that ail true Christians are held together by their living Head, while these secret organizations are held together by their lost on the country and without it they fall. He referred to the oaths to obey the lodge and lodge masters, and not reveal the secrets under various penalties, of the Grangers, Knights of Labor, Knights of Pythias, Golden Circle, Kluklux and others, and placed them on the same footing. He next mentioned a Chinese order that dealt out death to those who offended it, and said its oaths and code suggested Free Masonry.

gested Free Masonry.

He spoke of the Clan na Gael and the murder of Dr. Cronin in Chicago, and the murder of Chief of Police Hennessy, in New Orleans, by the Mafia, a secret society, and referred to their oaths. He said no community can exist with murderous socie-ties in its midst, and these wolves in sheep's ties in its midst, and these wolves in sheep's clothing may be nearer their homes in Pittsburg than they thought of, and no one knows when it may strike him. The perpetrators of the Mountain Meadow massacre were bound by a similar outh, and it is a warning against secret society. He then spoke of Joseph Smith, the Mormon prophet, having been a Free Mason, and his lodge having rebelled against some order it was expelled, and became the founders of the Mormon Endowment House, making some modifications in ment House, making some modifications in the Masonic rites. Touching on the oath of Masonry, he said no law of the land or anathema of the Church can affect it. The covenant which makes the Mason unmakes the man, and leads him to obey his Masonic superior and give up his right of private judgment and discretion. The Masonic oath, he said in conclusion, is more binding and menacing to civil liberty than the oath of the Jesuita.

> DEATHS HERE AND ELSEWHERE. Alexander Fink.

Alexander Fink.

Alexander Fink, one of the most prominent Hetrews of the city, died suddenly at his home, 307 Ferry street, vesterday afternoon. He had been alling for several months. Coroner McDowell was notified, but as the family physician had attributed death to heart disease, no inquest was deemed necessary. Mr. Fink was 75 years old and had lived in this city for upward of 50 years. He was one of the founders of the Tree of Life Synagogue on Grant street, the local Hebrew Benevolent Association and the Society for the Improvement of the Poor. He was a liberal giver to charity in an unostentations way and regularly spent a portion of his wealth in this manner. The funeral will take place from the Tree of Life Synagogue ac 2 o'clock to-morrow afternoon.

Prof. D. Haves Agnew. Prof. D. Hayes Agnew.

Prof. D. Hayes Agnew died at his residence in Philadelphia yesterday afternoon, passing quietly away. There were present at the last moments his family, Dr. J. William White, Dr. Deland and Rev. Dr. John S. MacIntish, D. D., of the Second Presbyterian Church, of which Prof. Agnew had long been a member. Prof. Agnew had long been a member. Prof. Agnew was born in Lancaster county in 1818. He ranked among the most eminent-surgeons of his time, and in the pursuit of his calling and as a contributor to modern medical literature he had won a name that will illuminate the pages of history. He came in closer touch with time American people in the autumn of his career as the consulting surgeon of President Garfield.

Milliam C. Mifflin.

William C. Mifflin died Sunday at the Presbyterian Hospita; New York, of Bright's dis-ease. Mr. Mifflin was a descendant of General Thomas Mifflin of Revolutionary fame and Pennsylvania's first Governor under its Constitution as a State. His father was associated with the elder James Gordon Bennett in the editing of the Fensylvanian in Philadelphia. Mr. Miffilm was born in Philadelphia in 1844. At the opening of the Civil War he entered the navy, but went out of service in 1857. Since then he has been engaged in n.ercantile nursuits.
