PASTOR AND PEOPLE.

The Lack of Reverence for Sacred Things and Places a Prime

DEFECT OF AMERICAN CHARACTER.

Topics to Be Discussed in Our City Pulpits Sunday Coming.

GLEANINGS FROM CHURCH PIELDS

A lack of reverence is one of the prime defects of American character. Sacred things and sacred places are no longer held in such respect as in days gone by. People from the Old World at once notice young America's lack of respect for parents, the aged and for ministers. While our churches are sending money and men to convert the heathen world, the heathen in many lands could give wholesome lessons to our American people in regard to the respect and reverence due from the young to the old, and the reverence due to sacred things and

Fathers and mothers are often spoken of as the old man and woman, and the minister is no longer held in the high esteem with which our ancestors held him. In the matter of respect and reverence it is plain that our young Americans need to come up

(b) 12-16, 24-19, 15-24, 28-12 and 11-16 would have won for black; though two pieces short white play as they will could never recover.

(c) 26-29 draws, easily. The above game is the only game Mr. Benny lost out of eight games played. JOSIAH SIMKINS CORRECTS HILL

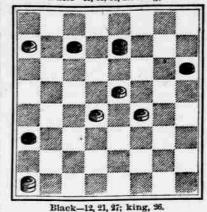

The day succeding the team match Josiah Simkins arrived in town, and insisted on contesting a game with Mr. Joseph Maize, declaring "I swan I must play a game with the State champion, and I can beat him, too, because." by gum!"
The men were soon set, and Mr. Maize played black, and opened with the "Double Corner."

Black—Maize. White—Simkins.

We have now the position where Mr. Simkins corrects Mr. Hill, claiming a win for the white side instead of the blacks. Black-2, 3, 5, 6, 8, 9, 10, 12, 16, 20, 21.

B.—"Say! yew don't know how to play book," snorted Josiah, as Maize went 7-11.

"The white doctor down our way showed me a game in the paper. He knows the numbers an' is learning me, but gol darn! I don't seem to get the hang o' the pesky things—played by a top-notcher in London, an' he goes here (pointing to 20) an' I can jest beat it all to little pieces."

C.—Josiah's face lighted up with a broad smile as Maize played this.

D.—"Thar," exclaimed Josiah, "that feller in London, what writes them funny pieces for the papers, says black can win jest here, but I'll bet a har'l o' cider I can beat with my (white) side."

my (white) side."

E—This seemed to somewhat unsettle Jo-E—This seemed to somewhat unsettle Josiah; he stared for awhile, and finally burst out with: "Say, that London Oppy Feller or something yew call him, goes right here (indicating 914) to win, but I kin win right off by this (pointing to 9-13). A feller what plays by book kain't see nothing. That's great, ain't it?"

F—"I've got yew now," chuckled Josiah, highly clated at his success in gaining the man; "I kin beat."

G—"That keeps yew from stealing back the man; you kain't play no tricks on me," beamed Josiah.

K-"This forces the draw, Mr. Simkins," remarked Maize. "What!" said Josiah, "I'll bet you a hult bar'l o' Baldwin apples I can beat right here!"

L-For over a hundred moves or more Josiah formed and reformed this position, finally giving up the game with this remark: "When I kaint win with four against three, I want some able-bodied man to lead me out an' hol' me up while I kick myself the hull way home to Peters township."

ALLEGHENY VERSUS WASHINGTON. ALLEGHENY VERSUS WASHINGTON.

This match was played on Tuesday evening in the presence of a large number of spectators, who had come to see the home team make a good showing against the visitors, but felt very much disappointed when the score was announced. But the onlooker who understood the game, and went from board to board, could see that the home talent, in many instances, defeated themselves. Our twin sister city team, though, deserves great credit for the way they played, and their gentlemanly demeanor all through the match won, them many friends in Washington. But when the return match is played we predict our neighbors will not have such a walk over. The following is the score: Allegheny, 31 wins; Washington, 12, and five games were drawn.

pared for this wonderful preparation, and we might add that in one of the endings Mr. Denvir got through with a narrow draw.

Mr. J. C. Brown, of Hawick arrived at Marsden on February 29, and spent the whole of last week with Mr. J. L. Richmond, when draughts received a great amount of attention with the players of that district. According to previous arrangements a friendly contest of 12 games was played between Mr. Brown and Mr. Richmond. This encounter brought forth some fine play on both sides, but the Marsden man proved a little too strong for the visitor, and the match finished with: Richmond, 4: Brown, of draws, 8. This score compares favorably with Mr. Wyllie's, who won 2 and drew 9 in a match of 12 games against the "Border Champion" in December last. Mr. Brown after his match with Mr. Richmond, played all comers in the reading room, winning 23, losing 1, and drawing 11. The following is a summary of Mr. Brown's play since the commencement of his tour:

CORRESPONDENCE OF THE DISPATCH MCKELVIE VERSUS SEARIGHT.

An important match at checkers for the championship of Glasgow and a stake of £50, between D. G. McKelvie and J. Searight, began on Saturday, March 19, in the New Central Halls (the site of the old Mitchell Library), Ingram street. Attempts have more than once been made to hold a tourna-ment to decide the city champlonship, but these having come to naught, the contestants above mentioned decided to tack on the championship to the £50 stake; and leave it open for any player to challenge the winner for the honor. David Gardner McKelvie was born at Braco, Perthshire, in May, 1834. He first began to study the game of draughts in 1878, and made so good progress that be soon found himself placed on equal com-peting terms with the leading players of the city; and of three handicap tournaments promoted by the Glasgow Draughts Associcity; and of three handicap tournaments promoted by the Glasgow Draughts Association when its headquarters were in London street, McKelvie was second in one and third in another. He also took a prominent part in the annual tournament held under the suspices of the Lamarkshire Draughts Association, and carried off the first prize in 1883, when he defeated James Young, of Carluke, in the final. In the following year he was again in the final, the runner-up being William Campbell, of Glasgow; and when both scored a win with three games drawn, McKelvie settled matters by winning a fine "Fife" game with the whites. About this time he also successfully held the Central Club gold medal for a year against all-comers. Then came the international with England, when he was chosen one of "the eleven" to defend the reputation of the North. His opponents during the three days of the match were—Gardner, of Leeds; Kear, of Bristol, and Jackson, then of Manchester, but now of Glasgow. McKelvie succeeded in winning two and drawing four games with Gardner; won one and drew five with Kear; while all the games with Jackson were drawn. What made his success on this occasion somewhat remarkable was the fact that—not more than 20 years of age—he was by far the youngest player on either side. Among the most important of McKelvie's matches since that time was a contest with Moir, in which, in order to avoid book play, each played with eleven men a side. The result was: McKelvie, 3: Moir, 3: drawn, 14. For two or three years McKelvie has practiced blindfold play with much success; and, on one occasion, he engaged in such a maten with Campbell, the blindfold champion, when the result was a win to each and a James Searight will be on restricted lines, which, paradoxical it may appear, is the only certain method to ensure variety in the openings. The best of 30 games, wins and draws to count, will decide the match, which is exciting an interest in draughts circles quite as great as that created by the Ferrie Bryden match in May last, and of which, in one sense, it is the outcome, for, while Ferrie practiced with Searight, Bryden practiced with McKelvie; the positions of the principals are now reversed, but it is the same pairs allied against each other. Full particulars of the conditions of the match will be found in articles as signed by McKelvie and Searight, a copy of which we append: The Play in the Match

ARTICLES OF AGREEMENT.

ARTICLES OF AGREMMENT.

First—It is hereby agreed, between David G. McKelvie and James Searight, to play a match of draughts, consisting of 39 restricted games, wins and draws to count, for a stake of £25 a side.

Second—The openings of the 30 games shall be decided as follows: At the commencement of the match, all the possible opening moves for black shall be placed in a bag, from which a move shall be drawn by lot; in the same way, all the possible moves for white shall be placed in a bag, and a move drawn—the moves thus drawn shall form the opening moves of the first game of the match, of which each of the contestants shall play the black and white sides.

Third—On the termination of the two first games, the moves drawn from the bags shall be replaced therein; and on starting the third game the same procedure shall be gone through, and so on until the stipulated number of openings have been played. (Note—It is to be understood that, in the event of 9-14 or 10-14 being drawn as Black's first move, then the move 21-17 shall be removed, from the bag containing White's moves.) To prevent repeats, say that 11-16 is drawn for Black and 34-19 for White, should 11-16 be again drawn for Black, then 24-19 shall be left out for White, and so on with any other possible repeat.

Fourth—The games and play of the match.

Fourth—The games and play of the match shall be in accordance with the standard laws as laid down in Anderson's "Third Edition." shall be in accordance with the standard laws as laid down in Anderson's "Third Edition."

Fifth—The match shall start at 12:30 on Saturday, 19th March, 1892, and be continued daily at the same hour until the stipulated number of games are finished. The hours of play shall be from 12:30 till 4, and from 6 till 10. No new game to be statted after 2:30 and 9:30 respectively. In the event of a prolonged forenoon sitting, not less than one hour and a balf's interval to be allowed. Sixth—The match shall be decided by the best of 30 games, as already mentioned, wins and draws both counting.

Seventh—It is mutually agreed that Mr. Robert McCall, Glasgow, shall act as stakeholder. Each player shall appoint his own umpire or timekeeper, and the election of referee shall be mutual.

Eighth—Five pounds a side are herewith lodged with the stakeholder. A second deposit of Di0 shall be lodged on Wednesday, Pebruary 3, 1892; and a third instalment of £10 on Wednesday, March 2, 1892

Ninth—The party failing to perform or carry out the articles of agreement shall forfeit the £5 deposit first lodged with the stakeholder to the party performing or willing to carry out the articles. On the match being commenced, however, there shall be no minor forfeit; all the money in the stakeholder's hands shall be liable as above to forfeiture.

Our special correspondent states from holder's hands shall be liable as above to forfeiture.

Our special correspondent states from present outlook we may look forward to having some very fine and original games, and it will be his privilege to give the cream of the endings to the readers of The Disparce.
