

LOSING ITS NOVELTY.

License Court Hearings Lose Their Power as a Drawing Card.

HUSTLING THROUGH ALLEGHENY.

Officers Charged With Confessing Fraudulent Judgments.

A SALOONIST SUED FOR A MAN'S DEATH

The novelty of the license court is rapidly wearing off, and but little more interest is taken in its proceedings than in those of the other courts.

The first applicant of the day was Thomas Burger, of 149 South Canal street, Fourth ward, who was quickly passed. Just as he was about to be released, broken only by a few pointed questions as to the desirability of the location of the Hotel Elbourne on Sandusky street.

Joseph Hinkel, Chestnut street; C. K. and J. F. Hildebrand, 20 Federal street, followed and faced remonstrances.

George Kiedisch also had a hard row to hoe, as his place is near two churches. Hugh Knox, George Lehner and John Lofink faced remonstrances.

The latter had character witnesses in his behalf, but questions as to his being indicted for illegal selling when he held a wholesale license could not be answered.

John Lynch failed to answer on account of sickness, but was represented by his attorney.

William Pyne was remonstrated against, but stood up before it manfully.

Confronted by Remonstrances. Peter Stourangel, Kate Scherzner and Frank Schilling all faced remonstrances, but denied the statements that they sold illegally or were unworthy to have a license.

Several were passed in rapid succession, no remonstrances being filed against them.

Anton Breigel, Alexander Carson, Jane Pockroger, Joseph Fillingim, Kate Gerst, G. M. Hilliard, David G. Jones, William Kenney, Louis Lautner, H. J. Meyer, Adam Nickel, Charles Merker, John H. Naylor, David Schilling, John S. Snyder, James Kiddle, John S. Snyder and Frank Schilling.

Charles Schutte, 162 Leacock street, became rather excited in answering some of the questions.

Mrs. Margaret Sauer, 84 and 86 Federal street, was next. John A. Seifert, 292 Ohio street, was too ill to appear.

John Templemeier, 142 South Canal street, was refused for two years past.

John E. Wolfendale applied for 20 and 22 Federal street, he got off easily.

Charles E. Wolfendale applied for 20 and 22 Federal street, he got off easily.

Allegheeny Officers Apply for License. Eugene Buckler and Nicholas Kehl, of the Allegheny police force, had an application for 73 Ridge avenue.

Christy asked if the house had not been refused for the last two years. This was admitted, but neither of the applicants were applying for a license.

Martin J. Brennan, 34 Rebecca street, had Mr. Morris Mead, of the Bureau of Electricity, among his character witnesses.

Elizabeth Ziemer, 15 Pennsylvania avenue, was called. She was the last applicant of the Fifth ward.

Martin W. Oliver, 74-76 Rebecca street, was called. He was called without any questions being asked him, except one by Judge Single.
