A Golden Gate Detective in Pittsburg to Take Him Back.

BIG MONEY SPENT ON THE MAN-HUNT

Detective E. H. Byram, of San Francisco, arrived in this city yesterday, his mission being to take James M. Husselman, the young man who gave himself up to the police in this city two weeks ago, back to San Francisco for trial. Husselman is in the workhouse, but requisition papers have been applied for, and Detective Byram expects to start home with his prisoner on Saturday.

The story told by the detective is quite a different one from that related by Hussel-man when he surrendered to the police. Husselman's story was that he had been employed by the Overland Express Company, with headquarters at San Francisco. day he quit work rather suddenly and went to Chicago, where in a short time he learned that he was charged with having robbed the company of $2,000 or $3,000 and was being pursued by detectives.

Weary of Being Pursued by Officers. He left at once and had been traveling about the country, tracked by detectives, until he was weary and heartsick and had decided to give himself up, tell his story, go back to San Francisco and prove his innocence. He declared he had not taken any money; the whole thing was a mistake, and he would have no difficulty in proving it. In his pockets at the time were letters from his relatives in California which did not correspond exactly with his story, and when the police telegraphed to San Francisco they received a reply to hold Hussel-

Detective Byram puts quite a different light on the accusation against the young fellow. "I don't know much about Husselman," said he last night, "but I understand he belongs to a good family and always bore an excellent reputation until this affair. He had been a trusted employe of the Fidelity Insurance Company, of 'Frisco, for years, and one of duties was to go down to the bank each day and deposit the receipts. Sometimes he would carry several thousand dollars, but no matter how large the sum he was trusted implicitly.

Made a Mistake of a Thousand.

"One day early last November he was given $1,960 to deposit, but he only turned over $950 and kept the balance, altering his account book after it was returned to him by inserting a figure 1. It was not long until there was some difficulty between the company and the bank, and Husselman, hearing of it, supposed he had been discovered.

"That night he went to the hav where he kept a boat which he was accustomed to go as usual. Several days later the boat was found adrift in the bay with Husselman's Suicide at once suggested itself and the authorities spent several weeks in searching for the body. The search was not stopped until the police received word that a man auswering Husselman's description had been seen in Omaha and later in Chicago.

His Sweetheart Will Help Him. "A private detective was put on the case and did succeed in getting pretty close to the fugitive several times, but failed to capture him, and at the time he gave him-self up in this city the trail had been completely lost. It has cost considerable money to follow the young man up," concluded the detective; "nearly as much as he got away with, but I expect his friends will come to the front after we get him back and he will get off easy. There is a young lady in 'Frisco, I understand, who is deep in the case, and it is likely she will lend some assistance in Husselman's Detective Byram is a cousin of the late H. H. Byram, of this city, whom he re-sembles and with whom his early life was spent. He is a veteran detective, has been on the San Francisco force for 16 years, and among his greatest performances he relates the capture of Hedgepeth, one of the desperate train robbers who stole a $75,000 express package from a train at Glendale, near St. Louis, on November 2.

O'BRIEN WAS DECEIVED.

Nothing in That Wild-Eyed Mazeppa-Like Story From Imperial.

General Agent O'Brien, of the Humane Society, returned from Imperial yesterday afternoon, where he had been to prosecute the case against D. B. Avres, a railroad man, whose home is at Turtletown. Avres was charged with cruelty to his 16-year-old daughter, it being alleged he tied a strap about his daughter's wrist and getting on a horse drove hurriedly along a muddy country road, dragging his child after him. It was further alleged that he beat the girl when their home was reached.

The hearing in the case was held before 'Squire John Wilson, and as none of the allegations could be verified Agent O'Brien asked for the discharge of the father. He had based the information on statements received, but had been deceived. Ayres had all the farmers and other persons of the township to testify to his good character. The girl is greatly overgrown for her age, and it was alleged that she did not attend to Four Houses Floated Across the Allegheny, Four more eight-room frame houses were moved across the Allegheny river, from the Pittsburg and Western Railroad property at the month of Pine creek to the foot of Fifty-fourth street. Six were moved about a week ago. The houses belong to F. H. Bucking and Houston Brox, of Lawrence-ville. Contractor Fichleay performed the work and the houses were towed across the river by two steamboats, stopping in midstream to be photographed. The houses have now all been moved.

The frequent rise and fall in our rivers causes, a large accumulation of dirt and sediment in our water pipes, more especially at the outlet of water plugs. As a consequence when they are opened we often, for the first few moments, have a stream containing a much larger percentage of so called mud than water. This not only retards our progress, but is very severe both upon the nose and engines. In a large measure this could be remedied by a more frequent opening and consequent washing out of all plugs.

A MILLION DOLLARS NEEDED AT ONCE

The exodus of people from Allegheny this spring has startled the thinking people of that city. Real estate men on this side estimate that fully 5,000 people have moved from the Northside to the East End. The citizens who are interested in maintaining and increasing the growth of the city have been inquiring the causes, and a good many of them have come to the conclusion that the bad streets are responsible for the result. Back of all this as the root of the trouble, they place their hands on the corrupt government which is about broken up. Recently Senator Flinn remarked to an Allegheny man that values were on the standstill on the Northside "And why?" he continued. "Because your people don't spend money on the highways. The houses over there are substantial and attractive, but families want more than that. Their homes must be accessible by good roads Look at the East End.

"Property is on the jump in that section of Pittsburg, and the houses are in great demand and bring good rents. We spend money out there on the streets, and it pays ten-fold. Nice sidewalks and asphalt reads will catch anybody. But what is Alle-gheny doing in this direction? Nothing." William Witherow, who lives in Alle-gheny and is interested in the future of the town, admits that Senator Flinn's arraign-ment is correct. He has been urging the Councilmen from his ward to stir them-selves and do something to improve the streets. He said that two one houses near him on Sherman avenue are vacant and to let signs are posted on the front doors. He understands a number of houses are tenantless on such fine streets in Manchester as Bidwell, Sheffield, Fayette and Locust.

Large Returns From Street Improvements.

We have the prettlest city in the State and it should not be allowed to go to decay while Councils are bickering over small matters. The parks are in the center of the town and I believe in building fine driveways and boulevards from Dutchtown to Woods' Run.

A number of other citizens talked in the same vein. They all admitted that the streets are in bad condition, and should be improved, the sooner the better. In some quarters the taxpayer, whose constant cry is for retrenchment and rigid economy, was roasted, and held responsible for the present standstill, if not decline of the city.

Time to Spend a Million, A proposition was laid before the Allegheny people last spring to raise $900,000 for street improvements. The originators of the scheme realized how things went drifting and knew that something had to be done. The majority, however, against the proposition was overwhelming. It is the opinion of some people now that the citizens voted against it, because they had no faith in the men who would handle and distribute the money. Subsequent developments would indicate to some extent that this view is the right one. The people are not opposed to street improvements, but they want the assurance that the money will be want the assurance that the money will be honestly and rightly expended.

Another eyesore to many is the electric lights. They are placed on very high poles, and the rays may pierce the upper darkness, but they seldom show the pedestrian the footfalls in the pavements. It was suggested that a public meeting should be called, or a citizens' committee formed to scriptly the citizens' committee formed to agitate the Councils is the body that must solve problem, and their attention will soon be called to this important subject. Consolidation With Pittsburg Suggested.

Councilman J. R. Henricks was asked for his opinion. He said:

Councilman 3. K. Henricks was asked for his opinion. He said:

An effort is being made now all around to deery Allegheny, and some people advise consolidation with Pittsburg. I do not think as many people moved away from the city as has been reported. I know the streets and electric lights are not in good condition, and the first thing to be done is to improve them. The only way it can be accomplished is by spending money. We can't get away from that fact as much as we dislike it. Values have been standing still in the old city, but this is not true in all sections. I bought property on California avenue for $12 a foot a lew years ago, and now I can get $79 per loot for it. It is assessed at $60. But the first thing necessary in Allegheny is to stop fighting and bickering. Let the people get down to business. This is what I have advised for some time. The audit has done a reat deal of good. It has put all the public officials on their mettle, and in the future they will do their best to retain the confidence of the people. The peculations have not been as large as people imagined. We have had a country village style of government.

No Harmony Between City Departments There was no head, no concentration, no pleased. Harmony between the depart ments was unknown. The Street Com-missioner went in one direction and the pothe city lost prestige. Chicago and New York have had their boodlers, and for that matter every city has a blot on its record. They have all had their siege at some time or other.

The danger now is that the fight is become The danger now is that the fight is becoming factional. One ring has been organized to down the other, and turmoil follows without anything being accomplished. Meanwhile the business of the city is neglected. It is high time to bury the hatchet for the good of the municipality. In the way of improvements I would recommend, first, the opening up of suburban property with fine, wide streets. There is a pretty rolling country, beautifully situated, between the Perrys-ville avenue and New Brighton roads. It has a better location for sewerage and is nearer Pittsburg than the East End. Indeed, it would be as desirable a place to live in as Oakland or East Liberty if pavements and streets were laid and the means of communication provided.

Improvements Needed at Once.

Improvements Needed at Once. This should be done at once, and the whole country would soon be covered with homes

Then the streets in the old city could be re-Then the streets in the old city could be repaired without a great deal of expense. Believne will be taken into Allegheny also, and this will add to the population.

I think in the next five years that $1.000,000 should be spent for street improvements. The valuation of property is $170,000,000 and the rate of taxation is 9 mills. This could be increased to 12 mills, and the additional $200,000 raised should be expended on the streets. In five years we would have the $1,000,000, and the taxes would not be high. No taxpayer would feel the increase.

The Glass Workers as a General Thing Hall the Idea of an Extra Month's Vacation With Delight-It is Caused by Over-

The fact made known yesterday that the window glass factories would close a month earlier this year than usual caused a good ical of talk in glass circles.

It was at first said by many that the glassworkers would strike, but this did not seem possible. Those who knew the men who are at the head of the window glassworkers' organization laughed at such an idea. The men who hold the controlling power have been too long in the business and are too wise to allow a strike.

The manufacturers give as their most important reason are give as their most important reason are give as their most important reason are given.

portant reason, overproduction. They say there is enough glass in stock to supply all orders from now up until the time of the fall fire. To run until the 1st of July would be a losing undertaking. They anticipate no trouble from their employes, and cannot see how an uprising would benefit the worker.
Some of the workers, of course, would sooner get it in the month of June, as they say it is hard work to make both ends meet during the two months they are generally idle. The great majority of the men hail the idea of an extra month's vacation with joy. As a general thing the glass worker makes big money and no one enjoys his recreation more than he. The month of May is usually a hot one, and to get away from the heat of the glass furnace from May 31, to September 1, will be enjoyed by most of the men.

Two Mysteries Cleared at Once. The body found at Aliquippa last Sunday has been identified as that of Stuart Falkender, of Harrisburg, who was yard brakeman on the Pennsylvania Railroad, and who mysteriously disappeared on February 13. He was last seen on Market street at 11 o'clock that night in company of men who were described at the time as thieves. His father has been here looking for him, but the identification was made by Harry Upte-graff, a roommate of the deceased, who read a description of the clothing worn and effects found on the body in the newspapers. The Coroner had by this time interred the remains, which were unrecognizable from ong lying in the water. Falkender's fellow workmen declare that he met with foul play from the men last seen with him, and they will try to find them. They say he had $30 on him when he met these men, but no money was found on the body.

DIED AFTER SCHOOL.

Jacob Lortz, Growing Despondent From Being Removed From

THE POSITION HE HELD FOR LIFE,

Throws Bimself Under the Wheels of a Train and Is Killed.

SUICIDES AT SEVENTY-SIX YEARS

Jacob Lortz, an old worn-out school teacher of Duquesne, yesterday ended his life under the wheels of a train on the Pittsburg, Virginia and Charleston Railroad, or at least this is the opinion of the citizens of that borough.

Mr. Lortz was 76 years old. For many vears he had conducted a little school at Germantown, a suburb of Duquesne. So long had he been an instructor that threefourths of the people of Duquesne, who to-day are turning gray, received their early instruction from him. With his increase of years he was of course incapacitated for duty, and a short time ago he was deposed. The Evening of Life Grew Dark.

With his situation, which had been his life-long pleasure, gone, the old man grew despondent and life no longer held anything good for him. It was his wont to say he had taught the people all they knew, and now, since he had grown old and could least afford to be idle, these same men had cast

He took a little house at Germantown, where he kept batchelor's hall. Lortz's finances became so low that he could not pay the little rent demanded for his house and after several notices, a few days ago the constable put him out. He was offered another small place at Oliver station and another small place at Oliver station and snother small place at Oliver station and yesterday moved his few small effects, the most of the latter being a little library of books, to his new home. Arriving there he grew homesick for his former home at Germantown and the neighbors could not console him.

Just before noon he went to the railroad, which passed close to his door and sat on the side of the track until the train, about 2 o'clock came by.

Walked Calmly to His Death, Just before it reached him he arose and walked away from it, the engineer whistled for down brakes, but before the train was stopped it was upon him and had thrown him to one side. The few neighbors who saw the casualty ran and picked him up and took him into his house. Dr. Bodkin ar-rived shortly, but Lortz died in a few min-

The facts developed at the inquest, and the opinions of the neighbors, substantiated the belief that suicide was intended, but, as it was only an opinion, a verdict of acci-dental death was necessarily rendered.

The body is now lying at an undertaker's in Duquesne. It will be kept there until his friends, if he has any, are hunted up. But very little is known of Loriz's private life or his relatives. It is thought he has a son somewhere in Pittsburg. The opinion is also advanced that he had been married twice and the second wife was still alive, but where she is no one knows.

BIG DEMAND FOR SPACE

Pittshurg Manufacturers Will Be Well Represented at the World's Fair. George N. Riley, one of the State World's Fair Commissioners, went to New York last evening. He said the Executive Committee would meet at Harrisburg on the 10th. The commission has the work so divided up that it is not necessary for them to meet very often. Mr. Riley is pleased with the progress being made and the interest manifested. He thinks they will be able to keep within the appropriation of $300,000 and still have an exhibit that will do credit to the State. He said:

and still have an exhibit that will do credit to the State. He said:

I think that oil and gas will have a place in the Fair. The Chicago people are taking great precautions against fire, and if any, body haw the wooden frames of the buildings they wouldn't blame them. When the buildings are finished there will be less danger from fire, and we can soon convince the managers that oil and gas, when handled by experts, are perfectly safe. Pittsburg's manufactories will be well represented. Carnegie and the National Tubo Works have asked for 18,000 feet of space each. They say if they can get it they will fill it. I don't know how the space will be allotted, but we will do the best we can for everybody. Heinz & Co. intend to make a display worth $50,000. In the machinery and transportation departments the Baldwin Locomotive Works want space to exhibit five engines, and the Pennsylvania road will show a full train of vestibuled cars with a crew constantly on hand. The French will make a great display. They are like the Russians, very triendly toward the United States, and having had an Exposition recently they understand the business. They would fill up half the space in the art gallery, if they could get it, and Holland would take a fourth. The other nations want a chance, but the people can depend upon it that the French art display will be magnificent. Their manufacturers will also make a great showing.

The contract for the Pennsylvania building has heen let. In Western Pennsylvania The contract for the Pennsylvania building has been let. In Western Pennsyl-vania Mr. Quinn is employed to visit busi-ness men and furnish them with all the information they may want. This plan works better than writing letters. Thinks It Is His Father-in-Law. George May, living at 4513 Friendship avenue, called at the morgue last night, and stated that he believed the old gentleman found in the Allegheny river, at Creighton, on Monday last, was his father-in-law, John McQuay. The description of the dead man, he said, tallied with that of McQuay, who has been missing for several

The Mayor's Ordinance Officer. Frank McKenna, of the Seventeenth ward. was yesterday appointed to the newly created position of Ordinance Officer by Mayor Gourley. He will watch the coal dealers that they give good weight and possibly enforce a number of other ordinances that have become obsolete from disuse. A special excursion will leave Pittsburg May 3 for California. A very low rate has been secured. Excursionists have chocle of two routes on return trip. For tuli information address Sloan & Co., No. 127 Fourth avenue, Pittsburg, Pa., or George W. Crow, Uniontown, Pa.
