

WOLCOTT ROASTIVE.

The Inconsistent Senator Charges the Silver Defeat to Two Sources.

HARRISON'S MAGNETISM

Furnishes Sport for the Gallery, but Not for the Statesmen.

BLAINE GETS ALL THE APPLAUSE.

Fear of the Closure Rule on the Bland Bill Stops Filibustering.

VICE PRESIDENT MORTON A CANDIDATE

[FROM A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

WASHINGTON, April 6.—The speech of Senator Wolcott on the silver question today was remarkable, principally for its very inconsistent and somewhat impudent attack on President Harrison.

Senator Wolcott is a very interesting generalist. His voice is almost as big, his vocabulary almost as prolific, his speech almost as fluent, and his avowals almost as great as that of Mr. Bourke Cockran, of New York.

He is six years older than Cockran, and now 44, but his intimate relations with the people and manners of the "wild and woolly West" have worn off nearly all the veneering of politeness which makes Cockran so pleasing in his treatment of an adversary.

Wolcott shocked the Senate.

Wolcott is rough and blunt to an extreme, and his unqualified abuse of the President to-day was a great shock to the dignity of the Senate. Others have said things equally severe, but they have said them in the language of a senator rather than of the rural stump. To the galleries, however, Mr. Wolcott was a circus. His vigor, wit, sarcasm, volubility and impudence were a rare treat to the disinterested frequenters of the funeral Senate chamber, and to-day the galleries were full, the world having been passed around that Wolcott would "speak out in earnest."

The audience evidently had an admixture of anti-Harrisonism and free silver Democracy. Wolcott's abuse of Harrison seemed to be very acceptable. A sarcastic allusion to the President's "magnetic" qualities tickled everybody immensely, for if there is one thing that Harrison conspicuously lacks it is magnetism.

Harrison a Good Summer Friend.

Everybody knows him as a cold, unimpassioned, introspective man, beside whose incisive Senator Sherman is positively tropical. Mr. Wolcott's allusions to Blaine, bringing him in direct contrast to Harrison, brought applause from all sorts of people in the galleries. It was evident that with them, as with the whole country, there is no name which seems so close to the patriotic heart as that of Blaine.

Blaine's renunciation seemed inevitable, as since Blaine's letter of declination, "no man of greater stature than the present incumbent had been found willing to stand in the Senate chamber, and the galleries and with many frowns among the Senators. It was not a clever remark. It was crude and coarse and against both the critical and the popular judgment of the people. Mr. Blaine is dear to the heart of the people because he seems to be the most conspicuous and truest type of the keen, shrewd, aggressive American.

Wolcott's sarcasm misplaced. Mr. Harrison has not touched the popular heart because he lacks the ardent and approachable qualities which seem to mark the best type of Americans. But no one here who is ingenious, Democrat or Republican, attempts to belittle the great intellectual stature of Mr. Harrison. He is generally given credit for a finer and more variable mental poise, a clearer discernment of the safest methods, and an abler treatment of all public questions, than almost any other man who has occupied the White House.

Mr. Harrison confined his sarcasm to those personal characteristics which make Mr. Harrison unpopular, and which, whether they are properly a subject for discussion or not, are much discussed in making up estimates of the man, he would have had his audience with him; but even those to whom these repellent qualities are unendurable, in the interests of justice and fair play frowned upon the Senator's vulgar and ill-timed allusion to what he esteemed to be a smallness of the intellectual stature of the President.

Filibustering Tactics Ended. The sun which set last evening upon such determined filibustering by the Republicans against the free wool bill, on account of Speaker Crisp's bad treatment of Mr. Burrows, rose this morning so fine an atmosphere of health and peace that it was found impossible to continue the war. Mr. Burrows is a man who cannot hold his breath. The speaker to-day permitted him and Mr. McMillin to talk across the desks to each other without interrupting them, and the two leaders arranged to occupy three-quarters of an hour on each side in discussion of the first section of the bill and then to take a vote.

A deeper reason, however, why the Republicans did not care to carry the war farther and force the report of a cloture rule was because they knew the free coinage men were trying in vain for such a movement to force the inclusion of the Bland bill in the operation of the cloture. There will probably be no serious interruption of the progress of the tariff bill, but the silver Democrats yet talk aggressively of filibustering against all other legislation until they force the House to agree to a final vote on the Bland bill.

Colonel Shepherd Not a Drawing Card.

Neither Congress-at-Large nor the World's Fair Commission, which gives its immediate ear to the matter, nor the silver world is greatly interested in the earnest effort of Sabbaarians to shut the doors of the Exposition on the Sabbath by legislation. Even the expectation of a visit and sermon from Colonel E. S. Shepherd failed to bring more than two or three of the committee together to-day, and the address of a representative of the National Religious Liberty Association attracted more attention than that of the great orator who advertised his paper by the eccentricity of publishing every day a quotation from the Hebrew Scriptures or the New Testament. The opponents of Sunday opening want a provision in the appropriation bill that the money shall be available only upon an agreement of the Fair managers that the gates shall be closed on the Lord's Day. Though President Harrison is a very devout churchman, he made no such suggestion in his late message in regard to the appropriation.

Congress Won't Interrupt the Fair.

Casual expressions which have come to my ears from many members of Congress hint at a pretty general opposition to Congressional meddling with the religious phase of the subject, and also at a belief that hundreds of thousands of visitors whose time and money will be short should not be shut out of the building for one whole day

A BROTHER'S TRIBUTE.

John Sherman, the Statesman, Talks of W. T. Sherman, the General, AT THE LOYAL LEGION BANQUET.

A Simple Story of the Soldier's Life and a Eulogy of His Virtues.

THE BEAUTIES OF HIS PRIVATE LIFE

NEW YORK, April 6.—The event of the evening at the banquet of the Loyal Legion was the tribute paid by Hon. John Sherman, the statesman, to his brother, General W. T. Sherman, of which the following is an abridged report.

It is a delicate task for me to respond to your toast in honor of the memory of General Sherman, who has been so long and so long when I accepted the invitation of your commander, General Swayne. He and I often, in the freedom of personal friendship and intercourse, have talked of the traits and character of the man who has been so long our Civil War, and especially of General Sherman, to whom each of us was bound by the strongest ties: he by intimate association, by the warm friendship that had existed between his father and mine, and by the closer ties of comradeship in war, and by the natural ties of brothers, associated during all our lives in the most intimate confidence and affection.

As to the merits and services of General Sherman as a soldier, I am not an impartial judge. His standing as such will rest mainly upon the opinions of his comrades and the official record of events now being gathered into diplomatic position. He was first Secretary of Legation and Charge d'Affaires ad interim at Paris from 1874 to 1881, and in the latter year was called home to take the position of Assistant Secretary of State.

The Probable French Minister. It is said that the President contemplates the appointment of Hon. Robert Roberts Hitt as Minister to France to succeed Mr. Reid. The President would honor himself by the appointment of Mr. Hitt. Mr. Hitt is not a distinguished man in personal appearance. He has not the air of the great man like Mr. Reid. But he is fitted as few men in this country are to the position of a diplomat.

He was born on the 8th day of February, 1830. He was three years and three months older than I, and, therefore, was always to me an elder brother.

"Cump," as we called him, entered the family of Hon. Thomas Ewing, then or soon after a Senator of the United States, and he became General Grant's aide-de-camp and affection of Mr. Ewing and his family to him as a full degree as his own father. By his influence with the Ewings, General Grant was appointed in July, 1850, to the position of West Point, and there laid the foundation for his military career.

He took part in the Florida Indian War. At that time he had a strong prejudice against the Indians, and he was one of the first to carry out the policy of extermination.

At the approach of the Mexican War Lieutenant Sherman was ordered to Pittsburgh on recruiting duty, but was so impatient to join the army that he left before he had been appointed. He was appointed to the position of major in the 3rd Artillery, and he was ordered to California to take and occupy that distant territory of Mexico.

He was ordered to California to take and occupy that distant territory of Mexico. He was ordered to California to take and occupy that distant territory of Mexico.

Reigning During the Gold Frenzy. General Sherman shared in the up and down of this adventurous period. While an officer in the United States Army his daily pay became insufficient to buy a dinner. His servant deserted him to earn $10 a day. He was ordered to resign his commission in order to support his family and children. He was ordered to resign his commission in order to support his family and children.

HURLBERT A FUGITIVE.

A Warrant Out for His Arrest for Perjury in the Gladys Evelyn Suit.

LONDON, April 6.—A report just made by Sir Augustus Stephenson, Solicitor for the Treasury and Public Prosecutor, officially confirms the statements made some time ago that a warrant had been issued for the arrest of William Henry Hurlbert, in charge of perjury in the suit for breach of promise of marriage brought against him by Miss Gertrude Ellis, otherwise known as Gladys Evelyn.

On trial of the case the jury returned a verdict for Hurlbert, which Mr. Blaine is due to the heart of the people because he seems to be the most conspicuous and truest type of the keen, shrewd, aggressive American.

A TEACHER'S SUICIDE.

She Jumped From the Fourth Story of a New York House.

NEW YORK, April 6.—[Special.]—Jane Beale, a teacher, threw herself from a fourth story window to-day while suffering from melancholia and was killed. She was 40 years old, and when not practicing her profession lived as a domestic. Her mother and sister in Roselle, N. J. Her specialty was natural sciences, which she taught to private pupils and also to classes. The mental disturbance which led to her suicide forced her to leave teaching in February, and seek rest at home.

RIVER STRIKE ENDED.

The Men Gained an Advance but Non-Union Men Can Be Employed.

St. Louis, April 6.—[Special.]—The big river strike terminated to-day and nearly all the engineers, roustabouts and longshoremen will be at work again by to-morrow night. The strikers demanded 25 cents a day for longshoremen, $1.50 a month for roustabouts, $90 to $125 a month for engineers, and an agreement not to employ any but union men. To all except the last demand the Anchor Line Company agreed to-day and the other companies followed.

MARRIED HIM JUST FOR FUN.

And Her Advertiser Brother-in-Law.

CHICAGO, April 6.—The fact was developed this afternoon that Mrs. Frederick Winters, who has had such a disagreeable marital experience in Denver, met her husband through a matrimonial agency in this city. She was Miss Ida Witt, daughter of a retired Chicago merchant. She answered the agency's advertisement just for fun, her brother believes, and she was married before her friends knew of her intention or could make any inquiry.

ONLY A SPARRING MATCH.

A Southerner in New York Talks of Fighting a Duel, but Don't.

NEW YORK, April 6.—[Special.]—That Colonel F. G. Skinner, of Richmond, did not spill the blood of Mr. John S. Wise, of this city, is not the fault of the Colonel, who has his dueling clothes on for some time. Miss Isabelle Greene was left out of the Mendelssohn Assembly dances and the cause thereof was Mrs. John Sargeant Wise. When called to account, Mrs. Wise, very unwisely, said something at which Miss Greene took offense and sent for her grandfather, the Colonel, to defend her honor. Colonel Skinner was on his high horse at once and demanded an apology. Mrs. Wise wrote a very pretty little note, but it was not broad enough to suit Mr. Skinner, who still dreams of blood. He said, "Wise says he wouldn't fight under any circumstances, there is little chance of New Yorkers having any real Southern sport."

MORMONS' CROWNING WORK.

The Cap-stone of Their Temple, Which Was 60 Years Building, Laid With Simple, Impressive Ceremonies—Full in Its Place by Electricity.

SALT LAKE, UTAH, April 6.—The cap-stone, or the last stone, on the Mormon Temple was laid at noon to-day by President Woodruff, of the Mormon Church, in the presence of an assemblage of people estimated at from 40,000 to 50,000. The ceremonies were simple but of the most impressive character, and the stone was placed in position by electricity from the speaker's stand. Nearly every leading man of the Mormon Church was present, and the occasion was viewed by the people as one of the most important in their history.

A resolution was adopted by cheers by an immense assembly to complete the building by April next. After laying the stone a conference, which has been in session four days, adjourned to next October. It is just 59 years since the laying of the corner stone of the building. Beneath the cap-stone there was laid a copper plate, bearing an inscription: "Holiness to the Lord."

At 3:10 P. M. the work of placing the statue of Angel Moroni on top of the cap-stone was completed. This figure is of gigantic proportions, being 12 feet 9 1/2 inches in height. The idea conveyed by the statue is that of a herald in the act of blowing a trumpet. The figure is admirably proportioned, and its pose is graceful. It is gilded with pure gold leaf, and amounting its crown is an incandescent lamp of 100-candle power. The stone pier on which the statue was placed is 210 feet high, and, altogether, the top of the statue stands 22 1/2 feet from terra firma.

LAWYER BEGG'S WIDOW

Receives a Letter of Consolation From One of the Jurors Who Cleared Him.

CHICAGO, April 6.—The remains of Lawyer John E. Beggs will be buried Sunday at Mt. Olivet Cemetery here. His widow to-day received the following letter:

Chicago, April 6. MADAM—I have just read with surprise and sorrow of the death of your husband. I did not know he was sick or I would have called to see him. He is one of the number whom the people have terribly wronged. I have said this to him in person, and have said it to many others, and I wish that he had lived longer to have seen his good name fully cleared (as I believe it will be) of all suspicion, my wife and myself, and the murderer of Dr. Cronin. When 19 jurors took our first ballot on him on the question of guilty or not guilty, there were eight votes "not guilty," and each succeeding ballot showed an increase of votes "not guilty" till it was a unanimous vote that way. The vote "not guilty" can mean, as you are aware, "not proven" or "innocent," and I believe that the God of the widow may sustain and comfort you in your great bereavement. I remain JOHN COVINA.

SEEKING GOLDEN RULE VICTIMS.

The Only Way They Can Be Found Is to Wreck the Vessel's Hull.

CINCINNATI, April 6.—T. J. Russell, mate of the United States snagboat E. A. Woodruff, made a careful examination today in a diver's suit of the sunken hull of the steamer Golden Rule, which burned last Thursday.

He found the deck so crushed with coal and heavy freight that it is impossible to explore the hold to find the bodies supposed to be in it. The work of wrecking the hull will be begun at once, and that is the only way by which the bodies can be found.
