Higher Standard.

According to an eminent New York divine, the age is drifting towards fatalism.

According to his way of thinking, fatalism and heredity are almost synonyms. But surely man does not tie his hands by discovering and facing facts. The doctrine of heredity is based on facts, with which everyone should be acquainted, because they are facts. It is not the purpose of the present discussion of this subject to show that natural law is supreme; for it is not. "Re sponsibility" and "will" are not to be eliminsted. Heredity, properly understood, has no sympathy whatever with the "insanity

There is a difference, as the New York brother contends, between the falling of an apple and the crime of man; between the blossoming of a plant and the affection of the heart. Heredity does not teach that the philanthropist is good simply because his grandmother was fond of children, or that a man becomes a thief simply because his great-grandfather was avaricious. In this study of the subject of heredity, let us simply seek facts. It is best to know the truth. There is too much "drawing the bow at a venture, when the arrow could be sent straight to the mark." Let the battle of life be fought intelligently, and because

It Cannot Be Destroyed.

Heredity cannot be destroyed, for as a law it is immutable; but by taking advan-tage of this unchangeable law man can rise to a higher level, physically, intellectually, morally and spiritually. "Visiting the iniquities of fathers upon the children unto the third and fourth generation." This portion of scripture means more than that some children are "born under a cloud," and hence commence life under very serious disadvantages socially under very serious disadvantages socially and morally. This is true, but it is not the particular truth of the text. It means more than that the children of wicked parents, because following their example, are thus led into sin. An unfavorable "environ-ment" is bad, but it is not primarily re-formed to in this secondure ferred to in this scripture. It means more also than all that is involved in the doctrine of "Original Sin." This portion of God's word teaches that some children start life not only inclined toward sin in general, but sin in particular-the particular sins of their parents. As another has said: "There are no abrupt beginnings, no to day that is not based on yesterday. The distant stars were shining long before their light reached the earth." There is a mighty law of continuity. "Lake produces like."

Physical and Mental Heredity.

Nothing is more common than the belief in this doctrine as it touches the physical sphere. Physical heredity is a powerful factor in life insurance business. The skill-

SINS OF FATHERS VISITED ON SONS

At the meeting of the Pittsburg Presby-tery at Wilkinsburg this week the retiring Moderator, Rev. J. M. Mercer, delivered an interesting sermon on "Heredity." It is Visiting the iniquities of fathers upon the children unto the third and fourth genera-tion of them that hate Me, and showing mercy unto the thousandth generation of them that love Me and keep My command-

Influence in So

Influence in Social Intercourse. An old lady, seeing a great many soldiers passing her home, said: "I don't suppose they all have names." Yes, they all had names, because they were all distinct indi-viduals. This fact must ever be borne in mind by all who would have success in dealing with men. Men must be handled as individuals, not in crowds-else great violence will be done to many, and poor success follow our efforts. Cast iron rules and methods are to be abandoned, if we would be successful in our efforts to influ-ence men. ince men.

ence men. Let us know men one by one. To know a man's nationality, is to know much as to inherited views and opinions on many sub-jects. Nothing will take the place of house to house visitation on the part of a pastor. He must know his people in order to have the highest possible snocess. Heredity culminates at birth, then en-vironment enters as a factor. Physical heredity can to a remarkable degree be overcome. If the sickly boy who has in-herited a tendency to pulmonary trouble is sent to the fields and gardens to dig and toil, rather than to the store to clerk, or to col-lege and seminary, his chances of life may be very much improved. Let him not die simply because his ancestors have died early. Let him heroically resolve to live as long as possible, and then use good com-mon sense as to food, exercise and employ-ment.

ment. Counteracting Effects of Environment. Our schools for the idiotic prove conclus-ively that one is not doomed by heredity absolutely. All reformatory schools prove likewise that environment can counteract heredity to a degree. Man must get "ac-quainted" with himself. He then can "in-telligently" fight sin. Knowing where the weak places in the wall are, he can strengthen them. He can restrain himself where he needs restraining, and do all in his nows to devalor the where in he is do. his power to develop that wherein he is de-ficient. Let all the power of the "will" be brought to bear on sins and failings. The poetess has very truly said:

Sure lever of success for one who tries. Some people are born not far from hell, with no friends, no education, with a strong bus toward evil and prejudiced against all that is good; yet by the grace of God any man can conquer who tries. He can com-mence the struggle of life just where he stands, with whatever of evil tendency he may have; and step by step he can drive the enemy from the field. A wound in an oyster becomes a pearl; sin overcome s virtue. God gives every man a chance "Where sin abounds, grace does much more abound." Let the gospel of good cheer be preached to all. Let all go into the great battle of life hopefully—because intelli-gently. gently.

A child's peculiar tastes and in-alternations should be consulted; and when these are known the training should be so-cordingly. Every child has a way peculiar it own in which it ought to be trained. This is true with respect to pro-tession and calling. Let them go in the san injustice to a child to try to bend it out of the way it ought to go. — And still further, if the child has a fault, fet the child intelligently struggle to over-torinsh" the will of a child. Facts indicate the presence of the same law in the mental sphere. There probably never lived any distinguished person whose parents were both fools. Neither one of them may have been known as more than ordinary in their mental capacity, but one of them at least, was a diamond in the rough. Many a mother, apparently of very ordinary mental capacity, under more tavorable opportunities, would shine as a star of the first magnitude; they shine nevertheless in their remarkable children. We would say of a Gladstone or a Garfield, not knowing the facts in the case, "they were well born." "Blood tells."

were well born." "Blood tells." Peculiar mental traits can be inherited. Abraham was rich. Isaac was very pros-perous in financial matters—so much so that his neighbors invited him to move on. that his neighbors invited him to move on. Jacob's superior financial ability over Laban his father-in-law is quite evident. It lead to trouble between them. Joseph performed one of the greatest feats, finan-cially speaking, the world has any knowl-edge of during the years of plenty and famine. He gathers the great storehouses full of corn, and deals it out to great advan-tage during the famine which followed. Some of the year greatest financiers of the Some of the very greatest financiers of the world to-day, are the descendents of these

Heredity in the Spiritual World.

We find this same principle in the "moral" and "spiritual" world. Men most radically differ. They differ from birth. A lovely disposition can be inherited. A ten-dency to be untruthful is evidently born with some children. It is in their very blood. A violent temper can be inherited, as also a desire for strong drink. Dr. Deems gives a case of a Christian young man who had a struggle with the demon strong drink every time he passed a saloon. He had never tasted strong drink himself. Neither his father nor grandfather had been addicted to the use of strong drink, but his great-grandfather had been a habitual drunkard. "Visiting the iniquities of fathers upon their children unto the third and fourth generation of them that hate me."

The fifth generation back will show 16 ancestral forces entering in a greater or less ancestral forces entering in a greater or less degree into the individual life. It is quite possible for any one of the 16 to exert a baneful influence on the individual. "Being dead, he may yet speak." One or two gen-erations may be skipped, and yet a taint of insanity, or a desire for strong drink or a tendency to doubt and disbelieve may re-terations. "No ama liveth to himself." The "No man liveth to himself." appear. The subject of heredity is worthy our most seri-ous consideration, our best thought. The importance of this subject cannot easily be overestimated. It is gradually coming to the front.

The Influence of Education.

Education primarily is to draw forth. person may hear a recitation and not be "educating" a scholar. To be a true edu-"educating" a scholar. To be a true edu-cator is to successfully draw forth the powers of the mind. What mind? The mind of the particular scholar or pupil that is to be educated. How can this be done until the teacher has gotten "ac-quainted" with the particular child that is to be educated? The carpenter must know the kind of wood he is working with, and the smith must know the metal he is to work with: how much more ought the work with; how much more ought the teacher to know his scholar? Each scholar is "a distinct individual" and ought to be so treated.

The primary department in all educational work is receiving that emphasis it so much deserves. The primary room in any school ought to be regarded as second to no school ought to be regarded as second to no other in importance. The foundation is there laid. The child there forms its habits of studying and thinking, and they will keep those as long as they study any-thing. How important that the teacher should be able to distinguish each scholar from every other, and draw forth the powers of his particular mind. Let the teacher work in harmony with the mental capacity of each pupil. He will then suc-ceed, and he will fail in any other way.

Heredity and Training of Children. Solomon says to "Train up a child in the way he should go, and when he is old he tions have rights which ought to be re-spected. Another has said, "A child does not become man, he is born man. Poten-tially the child is all that it ever will be. Maturity reveals the mystery-the possibil-ities of childhood." An idiot can be educated, yet we have but an educated idiot. Heredity we cannot destroy, but we can take advantage of it and rise to a higher level in every sense of the word. Let all who assume the responsibilities of parent-age, for their own sakes and for the sake of future generations, live noble and pure lives. Let woman, for her own make and for all she is to the human race, enjoy the grandest opportunities of every kind. "No man liveth to himself." The good we do, the evil we do, goes thundering down the ages. It becomes the heritage of the na-tions, "Being dead we shall continue to tions. "

Teaches All to Be on Their Guard.

Let us learn finally in the light of the doctrine of heredity, that if man knew his fellow man better, he would be more charitfellow man better, he would be more charit-able and less critical. One man knows nothing of the fierce struggles his brother may be passing through daily. To us the man at our side seems to be on the down grade to ruin; but as God sees him, he may be on the upgrade to glory. A freight train is passing us, over the tops of the cars a brakeman is running in an opposite direction from that in which the train is moving. We are disposed to ask ourselves the question "Which way is that man in reality going?" While we stand and wonder, the train sweeps by, and the man who seemed to be going in one direction, is found to be going in the very opposite. The under force did So the poor brother at our side seems to have his face toward perdition, but through many a fierce battle-if we only knew allhe may be moving toward glory and God. Heredity teaches us to be on our guard, as we mingle with men, lest unhappily we add another burden to an already over-burdened heart, and turn possible victory into certain detest defeat
