THE DURHAM COLLIERIES BOUND TO LOSE

(BY CABLE TO THE DISPATCH.)

LONDON, April 9.—(Copyright.)—The majority of the Anarchists recently expelled from France have arrived in London and may be seen and heard nightly at a well-known club off Tottenham court road, which is the headquarters of the Reds in this country.

The Government, though appealed to by its own supporters in Parliament, made no effort to prevent these revolutionary gentry landing on these free shores, Home Secretary Matthews professing the utmost confidence that they could be effectively dealt with by the ordinary laws should they attempt to translate words into deeds in this country.

Scotland Yard is already ostentatiously "taking precautions." Extra guards have been placed on all public buildings, admissions of strangers to the Houses of Parliament is hedged round with greater restrictions than ever, and the few discreet journalists who are admitted or manage to get behind the scenes are "keeping up the history of the Irish-American series of dynamite explosions, and studying the plans of Government offices and palaces.

The closing of the German frontier against emigrants from Russia has had the effect of greatly reducing the number of pauper aliens arriving in this country. The favorite route has always been by way of Hamburg, the cost of transport from that port to London being only 6 shillings per head.

Considered a Perilous Action. The receiving agents in East London are of opinion, however, that the decrease will be only temporary, and that the ultimate effect of Germany's action will be pernicious to this country, because the kind of emigrant who has heretofore landed here with a few pounds in his pocket will spend all his money on the way and arrive absolutely destitute.

The Evening News and Post, a Tory paper, which has always given much attention to this subject, announces to-day, as a result of inquiries made by its reporters, that the United States will be the only gainers by the closing of the German frontier. The increased cost of getting to this country will compel many emigrants intending to push on to America to remain here.

An Extra Long Easter Holiday. Although scarcely any progress has been made this week with public business, Parliament is to have a longer Easter holiday than usual, an arrangement which affords further proof of the extreme reluctance of the Government to take in hand the Irish land government bill.

A Bill That is Practically Useless. It has been pointed out in THE DISPATCH that the bill in question, which seeks to revive a class of small freeholders or yeomen in the country, is practically useless, unless land owners be compelled, where necessary, to sell the land required for division into small holdings.

A BANQUET FOR CUMMING. At Which the Prince of Wales Will Not Be Tended. (BY CABLE TO THE DISPATCH.)

LOVE-MAKING OF ROYALTY.

Roumania's Crown Prince Cured of One of His Loves With Another. (BY CABLE TO THE DISPATCH.)

LONDON, April 9.—The objections of the Car having been overcome by the joint efforts of the King of the Belgians and the Countess of Flanders, the forthcoming betrothal of Crown Prince Ferdinand of Roumania and Princess Mary of Edinburgh is semi-officially announced.

Courty chroniclers are waxing eloquent over the match. We are told that "Princess Ferdinand, after once meeting Princess Mary, in Germany, was so deeply impressed by her youth and beauty that all his later travels in search of a wife only confirmed his attachment. The Prince and his bride, after a honeymoon of three months, will set out for their new abode and building them a fine palace at Jassy, where they will have to reside after marriage.

Princess Ferdinand is a young man who, a year ago, set the diplomats of Europe by the ears by wanting to marry one of Queen Carmen Sylva's maids of honor. Disappointment sent the Queen into hysterics and broke the maid's heart. Princess Ferdinand was said at the time to be deeply affected, but the wound inflicted was evidently not deep, and his recovery has certainly been rapid and complete. Mademoiselle Varese is at present in Rome.

BARONESS DELLARD'S SLAYER

Laughs From Sheer Nervousness Just Before His Head Is Severed.

PARIS, April 9.—Louis Anastay, the ex-lieutenant who murdered his benefactress, the Baroness Dellard, on December 4 last, was executed in the Place de la Roquette at 5:10 o'clock this morning. In accordance with the French custom the condemned man had no knowledge that he was to meet his death this morning until the prison official entered his cell and told him to prepare for execution. Anastay walked to the guillotine without displaying any great amount of nervousness; in fact, his bearing was firm. He was very pale, however, and it was apparent that he had steeled himself against the ordeal.

He laughed as he reached the guillotine, but his laughter was caused by nervousness and not by any lack of appreciation of his awful position. Arrived at the place of death the preliminaries were quickly completed. Anastay embraced the chaplain, who administered the last rites of the church to him, and bade him farewell. Deliber ("Monsieur de Paris"), the executioner, met with not the slightest resistance from the prisoner. The father of Anastay, who had been in the view of having a special examination of the head made, to prove that the murderer had suffered from cerebral troubles. The authorities, however, refused to permit a special postmortem examination to be held.

DURHAM COLLIERIES MUST LOSE

A Game Struggle to Win a Strike Against Too Great Odds.

(BY CABLE TO THE DISPATCH.) LONDON, April 9.—The Durham colliery dispute seems as far from settlement as ever, but owing to the slack demand for coal the disturbance to trade has not been so great as was at first expected. Neither side shows any disposition to give way, though the position of the men grows daily weaker.

The colliers of Great Britain have this week met and confirmed their decision to work only five days weekly, in order to re-assert their position, but this effect upon the Durham will be infinitesimal. Next week there is to be another ballot, and the probabilities are now that the men will take more kindly to the suggestion that the delegates be empowered to treat with the employers.

A BANQUET FOR CUMMING.

At Which the Prince of Wales Will Not Be Tended.

(BY CABLE TO THE DISPATCH.) LONDON, April 9.—On Tuesday next the canny Scots of Forres and district will entertain Sir William Gordon Cumming, at the Town Hall, at a complimentary dinner. Throughout the troubles which have well nigh overwhelmed Cumming residents in the district stood by him with a touching loyalty, and any man who felt doubts in reference to Sir William's honor would have been wise to select some other man than Forres to give attendance to them.

The toast list on the occasion is significant. The Queen occupies the usual place of honor, but no reference of any kind is made to the Prince of Wales or the other members of the royal family.

AN EPIDEMIC OF COTTON FIRES.

New Orleans Afflicted With a Series of Incendiary Blazes. (Special.)—New Orleans has suffered greatly from fires, particularly cotton fires, during the last few days. Sunday was the day of the big cotton fire which destroyed four presses. On Thursday a second fire destroyed the Kahn cotton pickery. Friday Chief O'Connor, the head of the fire department, declared that the fires were not accidental, but of incendiary origin, and announces that two other cotton fires had broken out at the Shipp, Virginia and Terrell presses at the same time as at Kahn's pickery, but had been fortunately extinguished without serious losses.

On Monday also it seems two fresh fires broke out in the Shippers' press, which were extinguished by the employes. An investigation showed that holes had been bored in the doors of the cotton presses last night and highly inflammable material thrust into them, but the perpetrators were frightened away before they could accomplish their purpose. The same thing had been done at the Orleans cotton press, and it was evident that incendiaries had attempted to set fire to the building. An investigation of the fires will be made by the insurance companies.

SCALDED IN A RUSSIAN BATH.

Fatal Accident to a Patron of One of the Cheaper Bath Houses. PHILADELPHIA, April 8.—(Special.)—Solomon Solomons, a Russian Hebrew, died in the Pennsylvania Hospital yesterday from scalds received at a Russian bath patronized by the poorer class of Hebrews at 824 Lombard street. Solomons and several companions visited the place on Sunday, and were in the steam room. The steam is generated by the primitive method of throwing water on stones placed in an oven at one end of the apartment.

A gust of the scalding steam poured through the open door, and although the bathers had been warned to keep to the benches provided for them along the wall at some distance from the rush of steam, Solomons started across the room directly in the path of the scalding vapor. He was horribly scalded about the head and body. William Kline, the proprietor of the place, and one of his attendants were arrested, but afterward discharged.

BY SAUCERS OF SALT LICK BIRDS THAT FLY OVER THEM.

An Indiana Prospector's Rare Tale From the Salton Lake—Nothing Said About His Blushing When He Tells It—Checks Probably Tanned by Western Life.

INDIANAPOLIS, April 9.—(Special.)—Mr. Ephraim Carter, of this city, who has for the past seven years spent winter months prospecting through the region now famous for the suddenly formed "Salton Lake," tells many curious stories of his experiences there, but none, perhaps, stranger than this one: The action of the waters in the overflow that resulted in the noted Salton Lake has scooped out of the loose, friable soil of the valley many saucer-shaped depressions, varying from 40 to 50 yards in diameter. The subsidence of the lake and evaporation of the water has left many of the basins incrustated with salt of a dazzling whiteness. While Mr. Carter was watching the flight over one of these natural saucers of a flock of "sand swallows"—a small bird indigenous to the valley, about the size of the English sparrow—he was surprised to see at least one-half of the covey fall as though shot. Mr. Carter and his companions picked up 29 dead or dying birds, all of which had their feathers more or less scorched, while some had been completely cooked.

The party were almost ready to accept the theory of their Indian guide, who ascribed it to "spirits," when the drifting of the smoke from their camp fire over the center of the basin solved the mystery. It could then be seen that the sun's rays were reflecting from the concave surface of the salt-lined basin in such a manner as to form a focus of intense light and heat at a height of about 150 feet. Into this focus the unlucky birds had flown.
