GENERAL SPORTING NEWS OF THE DAY

(SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE DISPATCH.)

CINCINNATI, April 12,-One of the numerous members of the Nemesis family with whom Cincinnati has to contend was stocked against the Reds. and the cranks tonight have puckered their lips and are whistling the tune that seems to be marked "T. F.. " and always seasonable on opening day. It would take a beautiful stretch of imagination to call the afternoon an ideal one for baseball. Seats in the sun were held at a premium. The bleacheries and terrace were packed solid, while a squad of police cleared the field of the lining fringe which encroached upon the players. The pavilion and grandstand were comfortably filled, and 7,468 people saw the Reds suffer their usual preliminary fall. A concert by the Cincinnati Military Band preceded the game. In one of the boxes sat President W. C. Temple, of the Pittsburgs, and his wife, and P. L. Anten, of Chicago. Secretary A. K. Scandrett was also on the ground.

The Keystone Delegation

wasdelighted with everything-the park, the crowd and the game. A delegation of Ohio editors and Mayor Mosby were the guests of the club and they pulled for the Reds in vain. Pittsburg won in the face of an accident that occurred not a half hour before time to call play ball. Their captain was not in the game. While at practice in running down a fly, Ned Harlon's leg, which bothered him considerably last season, gave way and he went lame without an instant's That necessitated a change in the warning. battery, Miller going to center and Mack behind the plate. He found it difficult to get the hang of Baldwin's curves; but his collection of passed balls did not cost a collection of passed balls did not cost a thing, while Muliane's wild pitches came in handy for the victors. Wild as Baldwin was, he was effective, and not until the last nning did the Reds discover the combination. He was not particularly speedy, but there were no less than six infield flies sent up at times when hits would have yielded Before the trouble commenced Mr. runs. Before the trouble commenced Mr. Baldwin confidentially informed a friend that the Reds would be murdered.*

McPhee, who was the first lad in white to face him, received a crack on the conk hard enough to impress one with the belief that that awful threat would be carried out. Latham followed with the only sacrifice of through the space between Farrell and Shugart, McPhee ran in with what was destined to be a tally stacked up alongside of seven goose eggs. The attempt of Mr. Halligan to convince Connie Mack that he was a sprinter led to his demise at second The Reds began as if they all had reserved seats on the anxious seat. "Calliope" Miller sent an easy grounder to Smith and the boy had time enough to light a cigarette and then squelch his man, but he was nervous and the throw hit the ground While "Commy" was juggling, the "Calli ope" got under cover. Then the "Count" let go of a wild pitch. Bierbader's fly was not far enough out to be of service. After Swartwood had been sent to first Farrell forced him at second and then purloined th

How McPhee Fared.

Colonel Beckley, of Missourl, had a far-away look in his eves when he faced Antonio. A couple of strikes were entered on the books against him and then he swatted that ball. The crowd in right field opened ranks and let it glide by. On sped visiting Red legs and before Halligan could get the ball back the whole procession of three had filed over the piate. Out of the second it seemed as if the Reds could draw some consolation, for O'Neill was sent up on balls and "Baldy" took the seat of Commy's tronsers for a target and plugged him with the leather. Smith posed for a sacrifice hit, but he sailed the ball on a line to Farrell and O'Neill was doubled at sec-The Captain stole second and reached third on a passed ball, but he was left with Harrington, who was also the recipient of a pitelier's gift. Mulianc gave Shugart a pop ap. There were a couple of star plays when the visitors took their turn. Smith's tap rolled toward Latham and he stumbled as he reached tor the ball. He recovered in time to get his man. Baldwin sent a foul high into the air and the wind carried it around in corkscrew style. Big "Jerry" circled with it and got under on schedule time. Farrell drove Bierbauer home in the third after the latter had gained third on his hit, a steel and McPhee's failure to handle Swartwood's grounder, Still Scoring Runs.

Their fifth was the result of a gift to Shugart, a wild pitch and Latham's low throw after he had corralled Baldwin's slow bunt. The pair were made in a lively inning. Smith was on third when McPhee gathered in Baldwin's tip and caught Elmer at home Mack had made a hit and then Miller dropped a ball into deep field. Holliday and Smith by quick returns caught him at home. In every inning but the second, Cincinnati had men at bases. There were three on bases in the eighth, when Comiskey came to bat, but he fell a victim of Baldwin's foolers. With nobody out in the last, the Reds rallied and gave the Smoky Ital ians z jolly scare. Harrington rapped the ball over second. His able effort was seconded by the "Count," who sent Swartwood his aerial card. McPhee got in a beauty, however, and when Latham's hit skimmed safely into left and the big boy scored, the crowd broke into cheers. Baidwin was afraid of Halligan and sent him down to fill the only vacant corner. He had sized the "Bug" up as a "mark," but he was mis-taken. When Holliday batted after his taken. When Holliday batted after his cleared. Two rups meant a tie score, but O'Neill's fly was seized by Swartwood and Pittsburg clinched the first game. The hidden from view, and nobody outside the mine officials and Mrs. Maust knew that it had been found. Not even the workmen engaged nearby knew of the ghastly secret hidden in the slope.

The body of Maust was found 50 feet above the bore hole, where the fire started. He had made a desperace effort to escape past the burning cars, and it is a remarkable fact that ten steps more would have carried him to the overcast in the manway and to liberty. He was evidently straining every nerve to reach the manway, and had but 25 feet to go when he fell, stifled by the blinding smoke from the burning cars. His body bore some slight evidences of having burned. His lamp lay beside his side.

FIVE ROAD HOUSES BURNED. Massachusetts People Rapidly Getting Rid of These Dens of Intquity. LAWRENCE, MASS., April 12 -[Special.]

-A year ago six road houses were running full blast on the road between Lowell and Lawrence. To-day only one remains, the other five having been burned, to all appearances by the torch of an incendiary. Last Friday night the farmers of Dracut and Methuen saw two of those dens of iniquity go up in flames, and last night they witnessed a similar sight. The fire of Friday night destroyed the "Brick End" and the "Doolin." Last night's blaze wiped the "Hillside" out of existence.

About a year ago the townspeople of Dracut began to grapple with the road-house evil, and soon the houses were closed. They opened up at intervals, however, new pro-prietors taking the places of the prosecuted ones, and these in turn being driven out. Then fire completed the work of the police, and the evil has been practically wiped
