The Last Liquor License Applicant

Ground Through the Mill. DECISIONS IN HOLD-OVER CASES.

The Schlosser and Seventh Avenue Hotels Still Hung Up.

ALL THE NEWS OF THE COUNTY COURTS

The License Court finished its work, so far as bearings are concerned, at 7 o'clock last night. There will be no court to-day. The Judges will spend the day going over the applications, and it is expected that at least a portion of the list will be handed down Saturday. Yesterday the court granted licenses to the following Pittsburg applicants who had been held over: Tenth ward-Best & McDade.

Fourteenth ward-Michael R. Collins. Eighteenth ward-P. Brennan and John

McIntyre. Twenty-third ward-John M. Kelly.

Thirty-fourth ward-John F. Sullivan, Thirty-fifth ward-B. Schmidt. It was expected that there would be a decision in all the "held-over" cases, and the fact that the Court made no reference to the Hotel Schlosser and Seventh Avenue Hotel, caused considerable excitement. There is no doubt that there is feeling that both houses will be refused, although the neither case was this done. Court will reconvene Saturday morning, when some half dozen cases that were passed

Listening to the License Applicants. William T. Armstrong, the first applicant in Stowe township, headed the afternoon list. Mr. Christy only had one remonstrance in the entire township. It was against Brodwerkel, Henry Goetzinger and George A. Merz. They were backed up by Rev. J. B. Turner, the Presbyterian minister at Glenshaw. The bardest fight was made against Mr. Merz. It was shown that he is a driver for a city brewery and that while delivering beer he did a little quiet business of his own from the wagon, and Mr. Turner said he had sold to a number of men whose wes had stood in the door while he was delivering it and plead with the applicant not to leave it, and one of these same men had been killed on the railroad while intoxicated. As to the question of his selling from the wagon, Judge Slagle asked the ap-plicant who collected the money for the er he delivered.

Mr. Merz-The brewery gets it. Judge Slagle-Do you collect any of it? "The brewery gets all of it." "But do you collect any?"

Judge Slagle Compliments an Attorney, Judge Slagle made some remark about the man being incompetent because he had admitted having sold from the wagon and collected the money, and also because he Attorney Stadfeldt-Well, Mr Merz, if you get a license, will you also take out a Mr. Merz-Yes, sir.

Judge Collier-Well, if you get a liquor license, you had better get Mr. Stadfeldt to attend to your marriage license for you; you will be sure of getting it [Laughter.]
Attorney John S. Robb got into a mud-dle trying to establish the temperate habits of John D. Hohn, of Scott township. A witness he called did not seem to understand the difference between the words tem-perate and temperance, and when asked if he persisted in saying no, and he stuck to it until he had an explanation made of wha the attorney meant. In the case of Frank Schaffer, of Scott township, the Court said the landlord and present tenant of the property he applied for objected to him getting a license and would refuse to rent to him in case one was granted, and for this reason there was no granted, and for this reason there was no use hearing the applicant. Mr. Galbraith, the applicant's attorney, wanted to show how he intended to get possession of the house, but Judge Slagle said the court was not trying ejectment cases.

The Last Man on the List.

William Der, of Upper St. Clair township, was the last applicant on the list. He was heard shortly before 7 o'clock.

Amelia Fisher, of Spring Garden borough, who was sick at the time her case was called, was then heard, and after a few manions had been made court adjusted. motions had been made, court adjourned.

Mr. Riley wanted to make a motion in one of his cases after court adjourned, and asked Judge Collier if he could do so. His Hodor, who is always in a good humor, jokingly said: "Well, if you want to make motion, this is Quarter Sessions Court, and you can make a motion just as you do in "Well," said Mr. Riley, "I thought you might cut my head off it I would attempt to "No we will cut your head off after we bear your applicant, if we do it at all," re-plied Judge Collier laughingly. The other applicants heard yesterday were:

CALL IT AN UNJUST LAW. The Grand Jury Say Poor People Should Be Allowed to Buy Oleo.

The grand jury yesterday made a presentment to court stating its position in regard to the oleomargarine law. The presentment was as follows:

luasmuch as the grand jury has had to many of our best citizens, for selling oleo-margarine, we beg leave to make a presentmagarine, we beg leave to make a presentment for the purpose of expressing that in our sudgment the law is unjust, and interferes with the Tights of a large class of people. We believe that those who cannot afford to pay gill-edged prices for gite iged butter ought not to be deprived of the right of purchasing oleomargarine. While we cannot fail to take cognizance of those who are seiling it as violators of the law, we believe that the next session of the Legislature should either liberally amend or repeal the act under which many have been indicted.

March 30 an American flag was seen floating over Punch Bowl hill in the rear of the city, which gave rise to much talk until it was ascertained that it had been placed there by some youths who had taken it from their homes. The flag was seized by the police.

A decision in the contested election case of the nobles elected on the island of Oahu, which was expected to be the cause of trouble if adverse to the petitioners, who represented the supposed revolutionary faction, was rendered March 30, and decided that the election was valid. No opposition was shown further than the legal one of an appeal to the Supreme Court.

A PARALYTIC CASE,

Which Is an Entire Mystery to the Medical World.

Peter Costello, a boy employed at Moreiland & Neeley's bolt works, is now hovering between life and death. His allment is a curious one.

About two weeks ago he and some others were together in the mill. Costello said he could lift a keg of nails, which he did by a faighty effort. After he had lowered the keg, he experienced a severe pain in his back, which kept up for several days. Last Saturday he was sitting eating at the table, when he suddenly fell to the floor. From that time the boy has been totally paralyzed and his speech has left him. The doctors think it a remarkable case, from the fact that he was nearly well when he was taken down with paralysis.
